So, Britain Builds.
Baby With a Tail.
Air Mail Teaches Us,
A Fainting Cow Is News.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE BRITISH conclude, sadly, that war must come, and, wisely, decide to be ready. Intensified warship building begins, with seventeen major warships, including three powerful submarines, in the program.

Britishers hate submarines, because Britain has so many ships afloat, and submarines sink floating ships, but if others have them, Britain must have them.

IT WILL interest our financial wizards, printing billions in bonds, paying as many billions in interest, to learn that Britons feel able to build because their budget shows a surplus of more than $125,000,000 this year.

No surplus in our blessed country, thanks to sending to friends in Europe billions that will not return.

NEXT IN interest to British warship building comes the birth of a child in London with a "tail" two inches long.

This should have happened while William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were arguing evolution in Tennessee.

Infants with tails are born occasionally, confirming Darwin's belief that the small incurved os coccyx at the lower end of every human back-bone, was once a full-fledged tail.

Darwin never said we descended from monkeys, only that we came up in a parallel line of development, diverging and passing the monkey on our way up. Evolution teaches and proves that every human being goes through many different lower animal forms in the months previous to birth. You may see that for yourself in museums.

If that suits the plans of Providence, even now, it might also have suited those plans to have animal life, as a whole, come up through the same process.

THE DISTINGUISHED baby, probably, will have its little tail cut off.

Barnum would have added to the length of it and commercialized it, giving its father and mother each a false tail, advertising:

"See the happy tailed family. Darwin vindicated."

Science tells you, and thinks it proves, that your os coccyx is only one of many diminished "vestigial" remainders in your body.

The vermiform appendix, no longer than your little finger, is yards long in some of the herbivorous animals. The ear that now hears was once the gill of a fish. Children have been born with "gill slits;" open, on the neck.

And, what is more, we are still changing. The little toe is expected to disappear soon, as time counts in evolution, perhaps in fifty thousand years.

All of which helps to make man an animal interesting to himself and to science. What we shall be in, say, 50,000,000 years, no scientist dares predict.

THE PRESIDENT, shocked by deaths among Army mail pilots, ordered all air mail service discontinued pending reorganization on a commercial basis, later ordering the Army's service resumed in part.

The loss in the experiment of suddenly trying to make air mail fliers of Army fliers, while deeply regrettable, will not have been entirely wasted. The country has learned, and the government doubtless has learned, that improvements are called for in the arrangement of our air forces for national defense.

Fliers of the Army and Navy have proved their skill in many ways and their courage in every possible way. But recent experience proves that there are some things they do not know about flying that they would need to know in case of war.

IN WAR it would be necessary to fly long distances over routes not familiar, through rain, snow and wind.

The President, in his investigation, may reach the conclusion reached long since by the other important, civilized nations of the world, that the country's air force should be under the direction of one head, not split up as a plaything for the Army and a plaything for the Navy, a mere "adjunct" to both.

There will be two important weapons in the next war, submarine and airplane. The foot soldier will lose his importance, except when hidden in a steel tank, and floating battleships will be targets, easily hit, by poison gas and explosive bombs, from airplanes.

IT IS inconceivable that even a country as slow as this, when it comes to making important changes, will fail to realize after recent experiments, and unpleasant deaths, that war flying, the air defense of the nation, should be, under the President, in a separate department with a separate head.

BECAUSE IT is news' the fact is mentioned that when Elmer Gilless milked his cow near Denver, Col., the cow fainted, fell on Gilless and held him down with a fractured right shoulder and leg until someone came to pull the cow off.

Cows appear rarely in news columns. They must break a milk, cream or butter record to attract any attention. Like other law-abiding, useful creatures, they rarely have their name in print.

THE BRITISH, negotiating for Timor Island in the Malay Archipelago, will pay up to fifty million dollars for the little property, more than six times

SCHWARTZ AIDED BY WIDOW OF GARAVINI

Iggy's Ex-Wife Held By Park After She Upsets State's Case

BULLETIN.

The defense rested at 2:35 p. m. today in the trial of Iggy Schwartz, gambler, for the slaying of Andy Garavini, William Penn way hacker. It was indicated there would not be a great deal of rebuttal testimony offered.

The red-haired Widow Garavini did her best today for the ex-boy friend, and her best was too good.

Mrs. Margaret Garavini, young and attractive, took the stand in Criminal Court and leaned over the fence in her efforts to help her ex-husband, Iggy Schwartz, beat the rap for the slaying of her second husband, Andy Garavini, the well-heeled hacker.

In fact, the little woman went so far that District Attorney Andrew T. Park ordered her detained in the County Detective Bureau until he learns the whys and wherefores of her latest version of her husband's passing. Seated in the teletype operator's cage in the bureau for hours, she seemed to be losing some of the composure she exhibited on the stand.

Dressed in a mourning outfit of smart black crepe, under a tiny shallow-brim hat, she admitted she had lied in her testimony at the coroner's inquest.

And the story she told from the stand today indicated that her late spouse was the aggressor in the gun duel he staged with Iggy, the gambler, outside the William Penn Hotel one midnight last November.

CLUNK SURPRISED

But this disturbed the eye-filling widow not one whit. Undisturbed, unembarrassed, she made her admissions, looked around for a few more questions to answer and walked back to her seat in the first row.

Clunk then rested the state's case and Schwartz took the stand in his own defense to tell of threats made against his life by the William Penn way hacker.

Florence Brunner, convicted ex-city policeman, took the stand for Schwartz this afternoon. Brunner, serving time for arson, was brought here from the Rockview branch of Western Penitentiary to tell of the murder plot he testified was conceived by the bootlegger-hacker.

TELLS OF PLOT

But Brunner, who may be recalled later, told only vaguely of the murder plans, told few of the details he supplied in a lengthy

INSULL SNUBS GREEK CHIEFS

International News Service.

ATHENS, March 13.—Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities magnate, turned a cold shoulder today on officials of the Greek government and refused to see them.

When Gen. John Metaxas, minister of the interior, and an official of the foreign office went to Insull's apartment to deliver a laissez-passer issued by the United States government to replace Insull's Greek travel permit, the former Chicagoan refused to admit them.

Insull is under orders to leave Greece by midnight Thursday. He contends he is unable to travel because of his health.

Any inclination toward clemency that the Greek authorities might have had has been stifled by Insull's affront to the officials, it was declared, and the matter will be taken up with Premier Panyoti Tsaldaris tomorrow.

Ex-Prince, Bride Scorned by King

BERLIN, March 13.—(AP.)—Sigvard Bernadotte, who was a Swedish prince before his marriage last week to a German actress deprived him of royal rights, and his bride plan to go to the Riviera in a few days for their honeymoon.

Reports from Stockholm said they planned to meet King Gustaf, of Sweden, in an attempt to effect a reconciliation, but the young couple face disappointment. The Swedish court issued a statement to the effect that the King flatly refuses to receive the newlyweds.

LINDY TO PROBE MAIL FLYING WITH ARMY READY TO RESUME

OHIO FEARS DILLINGER JAIL RAID

Outlaw Set to Free Pal Facing Chair, Police Hear

LIMA, O., March 13.—(AP.)—A growing apprehension that John Dillinger, whittling jail breaker, may dare to lead a raid to free an imprisoned pal made trigger-fingers nervous in Ohio today.

Several signs pointed to the possibility that Dillinger may be bent on liberating Harry Pierpont, doomed murderer, from the county jail here. Pierpont helped free Dillinger from the same jail last October 12, slaying Sheriff Jess Sarber in the act, and Dillinger undoubtedly would like to return the favor.

Besides that, there were these indications:

1—The disappearance of a Leipsic (O.) woman. Police said she is known to have communicated with one of three Dillinger henchmen held here.

2—The brief announcement of Judge E. E. Everett: "We have received direct word that Dillinger is on his way here with armed men."

The trial of Charles Makley, held here with Pierpont and Russell Clark for the slaying of Sheriff Sarber, proceeded today with the selection of a jury. Pierpont has already been convicted and Clark's case comes up later.

Mrs. Mildred Makley Bartholomew and Mrs. Florence Makley Moss, both of El Dorado, Kan., sisters of the imprisoned Dillinger marauder, arrived here today to attend the trial.

The person most earnestly sought was the Leipsic woman, at whose home six members of the Dillinger mob visited shortly before the Sarber slaying. Officials were unable to trace her.

RE-ENACT ESCAPE

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 13.—(AP.)—All the cast but the principal was assembled here yesterday for the opening of the case of the people against John Dillinger, killer, so the opening was postponed.

But meanwhile the cast planned a rehearsal today before a grand jury audience to determine how Dillinger became the modern "vanishing American."

Edward Barce, assistant Attorney General of Indiana, said witnesses in the county jail presided over by Sheriff Lillian Holley would re-enact before a grand jury of six the wooden-pistol escape of the notorious desperado on March 3.

Indiana grand juries have six members, but only five passed the required tests this morning. The prosecutors said they would attempt to complete the jury this afternoon.

PENNA. ON GUARD

HARRISBURG, March 13.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania state police are on the lookout for John Dillinger, notorious outlaw who escaped from jail at Crown Point, Ind., several weeks ago.

While there was no indication that Dillinger is headed for this state, the officers were told he might try to get a job as a machinist or automobile mechanic.

Power of Dictator Given Doumergue

PARIS, March 13.—(INS.)—Premier Gaston Doumergue, through a decree signed today by President Lebrun, became in effect a constitutional dictator, with broad powers similar to the authority granted President Roosevelt by the Congress of the United States.

The decree, approved by the Council of Ministers, invests Doumergue with authority to reduce the budget, alter or impose import tariff quotas and otherwise exercise far-reaching administrative powers.

JAIL 4 WOMEN AFTER FIGHT

Four women were arrested when police raided an alleged drinking party in a rooming house at 823 North Lincoln avenue. Two men suffered severe skull injuries in a fight over one of the women, according to a police report.

In Allegheny General Hospital are Howard Craig, 27, of 720 Chateau street, and Harry Dombrosky, 23, of 1443 West North avenue.

In a police station were Mrs. Sarah Palmer, 32, proprietor of the rooming house; Florence Kramm, 21; Mary Hrin, 19, and Mary Crescent, 21, all of the rooming house, according to police. They were turned over to homicide detectives for questioning.

Fayette Lotteries Link Men, Women

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 13.—(AP.)—Twenty men and two women, captured in a series of "numbers" raids, posted bonds today to await grand jury action on charges of operating lotteries.

The arrests were made last night by state police who appeared simultaneously in Uniontown, Connellsville and Johnstown. They reported seizure of $1,000 in money.

NEW BATTLE IMPENDS ON VET CUTS

Defeated on Bonus, House Chiefs Turn to Economy Act Bill

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—After suuffering a crushing defeat in passage of the soldiers' bonus bill, administration leaders in the House today decided to risk another blow by forcing the issue on modification of the veterans' economy act and restoration of the federal pay cut.

The Appropriations Committee decided to seek a "gag" rule, if necessary, to send the independent offices supply bill to conference with the Senate in the hope of effecting a compromise on the veterans' issue.

SEEK UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Under the program, unanimous consent will be asked to send the independent offices bill, which contains the veterans' and pay cut provisions, to conference. Failing, a special rule to accomplish this will be asked, and a vote sought in the House tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the bitterly contested bonus issue was laid on the doorstep of the Senate today after the House, in its first rebellion against President Roosevelt, had passed the measure by a vote of 259 to 125.

The bill, administration spokesmen predicted, will not become law during the present session. They foresaw either defeat in the Senate or upholding of a promised presidential veto.

SENATE RELUCTANT

Leaders of the "veterans' bloc" in the Senate appeared reluctant to make a fight for the bill pending settlement of the battle over the Veterans' Economy Act. The Senate only recently voted 64 to 24 against the bonus.

First Bonus Check In Mail Thursday

HARRISBURG, March 13.—(AP.)—A check for $29,627,791 has been deposited with the Philadelphia National Bank by the City Company of New York, purchasers of $30,000,000 in bonds for bonus payments to Pennsylvania's war veterans.

The first bonus check is expected to be mailed Thursday.

Fire Damages School At Turtle Creek

Fire broke out in the Turtle Creek Public School, Penn avenue, during noon recess today and slightly damaged a fan motor and ventilator shaft, according to W. A. Rodgers, principal. Turtle Creek firemen were summoned by one of the teachers. Firemen said the cause was due to an overheated fan motor.

Air Corps Checks on Safety as Pilots Await Orders

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Secretary Dern today named a special committee of aeronautical authorities, including Orville Wright, Charles A. Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin to investigate the Army carrying of the air mail.

He asked it especially to consider "such flying instruments as are deemed necessary for efficient navigation and night, beacon, and radio-controlled flights and landings," and in consideration of personnel to weigh "their training and experience in cross country flying, in night flying, blind flying and in instrument flying, and their understanding and employment of the instruments referred to above."

DRUM TO HEAD BOARD

Other members are: Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of Air Corps; Major General George S. Simonds, commandant of the Army War College; Baj. Gen. John W. Gulick, chief of Coast Artillery, and Brig. Gen. C. E. Kilbourne, assistant chief of staff in charge of war plans.

All army members belonged to the "Drum board" which surveyed Air Corps activities at the time last summer that the Air Corps came under the jurisdiction of the army general staff.

The commission will be authorized to call all witnesses and take any testimony it may deem necessary.

Dern began organizing the group last week, having a three-hour discussion with Lindbergh Satur-

TOUHY GUNMAN FOUND SLAIN

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP.)—Charles (Ice Wagon) Connors, 54, one of the Touhy gangsters long hunted for the kidnaping of John Factor, was found shot to death in a remote section of the South West Side today.

This was the first killing among his fellows since the gang round-up began last summer at Elkhorn, Wis., when Roger Touhy and several confederates were captured.

Four of them were tried and acquitted in St. Paul of the William Hamm, Jr., kidnaping, and after the acquittal Willie Sharkey hanged himself rather than face trial at Chicago for kidnaping John Factor.

Three, Roger Touhy, Albert Kator and Gus Schaefer, were convicted recently and sent to Joliet prison for 99 years to pay for their $70,000 "snatch" of Factor. Edward (Father Tom) McFadden, the elderly member of the mob, was acquitted.

Another of the gang was on trial today for the same crime, Basil Hugh Banghart. And chief among the witnesses against him were Isaac Costner and "Buck" Henrichsen, two of the Touhy aides who turned against their gang.

Policeman Hurt By Falling Ladder

A truck ladder which Bell Telephone Company repairmen were elevating today at Seventh avenue and Grant street snapped and struck Traffic Patrolman Michael Conway, on duty at that corner. He was taken to the office of Dr. Daniel E. Sable, police and fire surgeon, who reported Conway's shoulder dislocated.

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP.)—Four detectives guarded Alvin Factor, 8-year-old son of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, today to forestall an attempt by gangsters to abduct him.

Policemen to Lose Jobs If Linked in Iggy Trial

Any testimony in the Iggy Schwartz trial which implicates policemen now on the city force with the underworld will result in swift action against the offending officer, according to Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall.

A statement by Nell Callahan, alleged former operator of a North Side disorderly house, accusing a former officer of being a partner in a North Side house of ill repute, and another officer and plain-clothesman of conspiring to murder Schwartz was known to Supt. Marshall. He said:

"There is no one in the Police Department now who is implicated. If the names of any officers are brought out in the testimony they will be on dangerous ground. We are not protecting any criminals."

Mayor McNair, after reading the disclosures by the Sun-Telegraph in the Schwartz case, said:

"If any of these men are in the service, they won't be there very long, I can tell you that."

'Economy' Doomed Army Mail Flying

Elliott Roosevelt Asserts Congress Starved Service

By ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT
Aviation Editor of Hearst Newspapers.

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—It has taken us just 21 days, 10 lives and property losses that will mount into millions, to discover that the Army Air Corps as now constituted and equipped, is not equal to the task of carrying the nation's air mail.

Clearly, sadly and unmistakably—with that grim finality which only death can bring—the country at large now knows what aviation experts knew all the time, and the United States at last has realized that whatever else our Army fliers as a whole may be able to do, they cannot cope with the hazardous requirements of scheduled operations in all kinds of weather from coast to coast.

This, in brief, is America's lesson in the latest chapter of aviation's history—but it is not the whole story, nor, let us hope, the final version.

Within the ghastly summary of the Army's failure to fill the emergency brought about by the cancellation of air mail contracts must be included an account of personal heroism and unflinching courage of the Army Air Service—the readiness of Army pilots to tackle odds against which they knew they had no chance to survive and of carrying out orders without a word of protest.

But courage, alone, will not get a slow, lumbering, ice-covered Army bomber through a blizzard-swept mountain pass or save a tiny pursuit plane from certain destruction in a thick, shroud-like fog when it runs out of gas and plunges crazily to earth.

Nor will it win wars in the hour of national emergency—unless with that courage and loyalty we place in the hands of our defenders modern, efficient planes and instruments and back of them the necessary training.

Only a short time ago, in these columns, it was pointed out that this country was entitled to know whether its Army air force is an efficient and much-maligned branch of the national defense, or an undertrained, handicapped and poorly-equipped organization.

The inside story of how and why the Army failed in this emergency job must include some plain and painful facts upon which those charged with

TELEPHONE KING, SENATOR CLASH OVER RADIO CONTROL

DILL CHARGES MONOPOLY TO GIFFORD

Utility Head Assails Communications Bill As Bureaucratic

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Federal sponsorship of radio development today provoked a clash between Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, at a Senate Interstate Commerce Committee hearing on the Dill "communications bill."

Gifford, who heads a utility controlling 85 per cent of the nation's telephone facilities, objected vigorously to the bills' authorization of radio development. Dill retorted:

"You mean you want a monopoly, don't you? Every other nation in the world is studying additional uses for radio. Why shouldn't we?"

BATTLE OF WORDS

Gifford replied that the A. T. & T. itself was spending one to one and one-half million dollars a year for radio research. Dill asked:

"Isn't there difficulty because state commissions cannot inquire into telephone holding company costs?"

Gifford replied:

"I believe not."

Dill said:

"Well, there is in my state. The whole trouble is that regulation has been nil."

Gifford declared the bill goes far beyond recommendations of President Roosevelt. He asserted a communications commission to control telephone, telegraph and radio would result in "public management of private property" and "rigid, centralized bureaucratic operation."

The President, he said, merely proposed transfer of present authority from the Radio Commission and the I. C. C. to the Communications Commission and recommended an inquiry by that body and a report to the next session of Congress.

OPPOSES CONTROL

A section allowing the President to control and operate telephone systems "upon proclamation by him of the existence of a national emergency" was opposed by Gifford, who asserted that the President had not asked for this power.

Cheaper telephone rates through "write-offs" of capital during prosperous times were advocated by Senator Kean (Rep.), of New Jersey, who charged that the Interstate Commerce Commission had failed to compel proper reduction of capital.

Gifford said that the NRA code had had 2 to 2½ per cent a year to the A. T. & T.'s gross revenue. Seven thousand men have been added to payrolls, he said, but old employes make less money because of a "spread work" policy.

WORKONPENNSY RAILS BEGINS

Rolling of 42,000 tons of steel rails for the Pennsylvania Railroad has been started in the Edgar Thomson works of the Carnegie Steel Company in Braddock, officials announced today. The order, which will require four months to fill, will mean 1,372,880 man hours of work, it was said. At the same plant an order for 3,460 tons of track fittings, or splice bars, also is being turned out.

An order for materials for 7,000 cars for the railroad is being turned out in the plants at Homestead and Clairton and the Schoen Steel Wheel Works at McKees Rocks.

STRIKERS FREED AFTER FIGHT

Twenty-five persons, nine of them women, described by police as striking hotel employes, arrested in a demonstration in front of the William Penn Hotel last night, were discharged at a hearing today in Morals Court on disorderly conduct charges.

The demonstration ended when police squads headed by Lieuts. Bert Keller and Louis Battis arrived. Because they had no permit, the paraders were asked to move on. Disorder followed, and the arrests resulted. The prisoners offered no resistance.

Later an anonymous tip was received at the police station that it would be stormed by strikers and sympathizers. A score of detectives and police armed with riot clubs and tear-gas bombs waited vainly at the station's doors.

COAL INDUSTRY ASKS FAIR PLAY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Asserting the bituminous coal industry was "more chiseled against than chiseling," C. B. Huntress, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, today demanded "fair play" for his industry.

He suggested the following reforms: Imposition of an excise tax on natural gas, end alleged discrimination against coal in government contracts for heat and power, and to set up at once the co-ordinating board the NRA proposed to establish to study the competitive energy services.

Huntress also protested against the government's development of hydro-electric plants in the Tennessee Valley and elsewhere, charging it was "inimical to the coal industry."

Woman Quits Job To Serve Committee

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(INS.)—Given her choice of resigning from the Democratic National Committee or from her government position, Mrs. Catherine Connor, committeewoman from Kentucky, chose today to stick by the committee.

Mrs. Connor has had a position with the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, of which Harry L. Hopkins is Director.

ECONOMY HIT BY CONGRESS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—A total of $17,448,993, to meet the expense of Congress, the Capitol and allied institutions in the next fiscal year, was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee, in reporting the annual legislative supply bill.

The bill is $390,927 less than last year, but even with this reduction some of the rigid economy restrictions affecting Congress were modified.

The committee recommended an increase in the stationery allowance of Representatives and Senators from $90 to $125 a year, explaining an increase in the mail of members justifies the boost.

The number of Representatives who may attend funerals of members at government expense was increased from two to four. The allotment for folding speeches was raised from $8,000 to $12,000—customary boost during each campaign year.

Moore Beneficiary Guardian Named

The Fidelity Trust Company was named guardian for Carl A. Livermore, a minor of New York, beneficiary under the will of Alexander P. Moore, former publisher and ambassador to Spain. The beneficiary is a son of Jesse Livermore, New York stock broker. He received $10,000.

NRA TO DEMAND CUT IN HOURS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Pleas to industry, made by President Roosevelt and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, to shorten hours and increase wages were shaping into demands today as the first of two groups gathered to meet with the administrator.

Before closing last week's conference of code authorities, Johnson divided the industrialists into two groups — the manufacturers of capital goods and the producers of consumer goods. The first of these groups is scheduled to visit Johnson today and present an alternative to the "ten and ten" plan outlined by Mr. Roosevelt and clarified by the General.

The program is to reduce working hours by 10 per cent and to increase wages in like manner.

Railway Labor Head Hits Pay Cut Move

CLEVELAND, March 13.—(AP.)—A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, yesterday asserted "it is difficult to understand" why rail carriers of the country are asking another reduction in employes' wages in view of President Roosevelt's appeal to all industry for shorter work hours and higher wages.

He referred to the scheduled meeting in Washington Thursday at which organized labor and the railroad managements will discuss the question of wage reductions.

Note Writer Shielded, Editor Faces Jail

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 13.—(AP.)—The case of Vance Armentrout, editor charged with contempt because he declined to tell the name of a person who wrote a letter to his paper, will go before the Kentucky House of Representatives tonight or tomorrow.

A special committee heard testimony and arguments at a hearing that ended early today. The House, if it finds Armentrout guilty, may impose, under the law, maximum penalties of six months or $1,000 fine or both.

Armentrout, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has said he promised to keep confidential the name of the person who wrote the letter which was signed "A Member of the General Assembly."

Armentrout's attorney, Cary Tabb, contended the main issue is "freedom of the press." He said an investigating committee, which had sought to punish Armentrout with a jail term, should respect the "honor of a Kentucky gentleman and not require him to break a confidence."

Hugh K. Bullitt, chairman of the investigating committee, said that body had the right to require the name. He said:

"We wanted to find out whether any officers of the House were being controlled. If the charges were true, then the Speaker should be in jail. If they were true, the floor leader and a majority of the House had committed high crimes."

JOHNSON ASKS LOAN BAN ON DEFAULTERS

Bill Would Prohibit Flotation of Bonds In Markets Here

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), of California, today disclosed he is planning additional legislation as a result of default on billions of dollars of foreign securities floated in this country.

He told the House Foriegn Affairs Committee that his bill prohibited foreign nations and subdivisions in default to the United States from floating future loans here. Johnson said:

"This is only the beginning. I have other things in mind."

Denying that this bill contained any threat, he said it was intended primarily to protect American investors by prohibiting defaulting nations from floating new securities here. He added:

"It is also an answer to those who say, 'What are you going to do about the default of foreign governments?'"

Johnson told the committee that if war breaks out in Europe, "these countries which are thumbing their noses at us will be over here, begging for loans."

MRS. M'COOK DIES IN SOUTH

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Janetta Alexander McCook, 80, widow of Col. John J. McCook, lawyer and Civil War veteran, died yesterday of heart disease in Palm Beach, Fla., according to word received here.

Mrs. McCook died at the winter home of her brother, the Rev. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburgh. Burial will be in Princeton, N. J., where Mrs. McCook lived for many years.

Col. McCook died in 1911. He once declined the post of Attorney General in the cabinet of President McKinley.

In addition to her brother, four daughters survive Mrs. McCook. They are Mrs. Peter A. Jay, of Washington, widow of the former American Ambassador to Argentina; Mrs. McCook Morgan, former wife of John Junius Morgan, member of the banking family, and Mrs. Jackson Boyd, both of Southern Pines, N. C., and Mrs. Eliot Cross, of Old Westbury, L. I.

COUNTY FIGHTS PENSION ORDER

An order by Judge Ambrose B. Reid was served on the County Commissioners today instructing them to issue a warrant for $75,000 to be paid to the county pension fund. Commissioner C. M. Barr said the case would be appealed.

Pensioned county employes total 277, none of whom have received payments since last July. A number are said to have had to apply for welfare relief. No pension appropriation has been made this year, with $125,000 estimated as the amount necessary.

Judges Reid, Samuel H. Gardner and William H. McNaugher ordered payment last Tuesday in a mandamus action brought by the Pension Fund Board. Commissioners Barr and C. C. McGovern opposed it on the ground that the fund was insolvent.

LIQUOR STORES FALL SHORT IN SALES

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 13.—Ten weeks after a rather ragged opening, Pennsylvania's 240-chain-store liquor business today is clicking along at roughly 60 per cent of the minimum sales volume needed to squeeze out profits to meet already voted appropriations.

Based on February's total intake at the stores of $3,455,116 the aggregate of business for the remainder of the biennium to June 1, 1935, would reach $63,000,000 plus.

Of this, no more than $15,000,000 could be sifted out as net profit, an International News Service survey revealed, to meet the $20,000,000 relief and $4,000,000 old age pensions allocations already earmarked against the liquor profits.

SALES ON INCREASE

Sales are increasing each week, however, sufficiently to cause Judge Robert S. Gawthrop, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, to predict confidently that the stores will net enough to meet appropriations.

Overhead for the operation of the stores system, the survey showed, will total slightly more than $5,000,000 for the remainder of the biennium. This is about 8 per cent of the present volume of business.

Retail prices in the stores average a 50 per cent markup from wholesale costs, so that the present volume of sales would mean a gross profit of $21,000,000 to the end of the biennium.

CAUSES OF 'SLUMP'

Wholesale trade to licensed retail establishments at 15 per cent discount will nick $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 from this total. Gawthrop said:

"Several factors must be considered in realizing that the stores have by no means reached even normal volume of trade yet."

He listed these as among the factors:

Lack of many varieties of liquor due to quota restrictions; lack of sufficient "outlets of trade" in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and several other communities; individual stocks purchased before the stores opened which have not been exhausted; Lent, and the fact that January and February in pre-prohibition days were poor for liquor business.

SEAWAY URGED ON U. S. ROUTE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Assailing the St. Lawrence waterway treaty as a "menace" to the Mississippi Valley, Senator Bennett Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, today suggested the American government build its own seaway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

Clark declared such a seaway should link the Mississippi and Ohio rivers with the Great Lakes.

He condemned the St. Lawrence waterway as forever "barring the Mississippi Valley from the sea" and as turning over to Canada hundreds of millions of dollars to relieve economic stress in the Dominion.

Clark predicted rejection of the treaty. His forecast was supported by private polls, indicating a "bitter end" opposition of at least 41 votes, eight more than necessary to defeat ratification.

And if the British get Timor Island you will not find them imitating the United States and its so-called "statesmen," who pledged themselves not to fortify our Asiatic frontier possessions of Guam.

The British will build a great air and sea base and wireless station on Timor Island, establishing another useful British military front door in Asia.

UNITED STATES' population last year increased about 797,000, making the total approximately 126,144,000. This increase should not worry you, for it is the lowest, with two exceptions, in the past sixty years.

Also, any one of the several states in this Union could feed all the people in the United States. Giant Texas, intensively cultivated, could feed all human beings now on earth, about 1,800,000,000 of them.

When men live as they should, on the tops of mountains and high hills, in the pure air, flying to and from their work on the lowlands, this country will take care easily of two thousand million human beings. When that population comes there should be less talk of overproduction.

Weather Conditions.

A trough of low pressure extends from the upper lakes southwestward to Western Texas, with the principal center over Wisconsin (Green Bay, 29.70), while highs appear over the South Atlantic and Gulf states (Raleigh, N. C., 30.52), and over the Northern Rocky Mountains and the Canadian Northwest (Havre, Mont., 30.72). Precipitation has been mostly light and restricted to the lake region and St. Lawrence Valley, the Dakotas, Northern Wyoming, Montana and the Canadian Northwest. It is warmer over the central valleys and eastward to the Atlantic coast and colder over North Dakota, Montana and the Canadian Northwest where the large high is following closely in the rear of the upper lakes' disturbance with northerly winds and snow flurries.

TWO FACE JAIL PLOT PENALTY

Two of three prisoners who on Saturday attempted to escape from the Allegheny County Jail were to be taken to Criminal Court today to enter pleas and receive sentence.

They are John Marge, 26, and Joe Hanecak, 32, who pleaded guilty when arraigned before Alderman Thomas M. Geary in the jail yesterday. The third, Bill Mangan, 25, who denied all knowledge of the jail-break plot and refused to plead, is to be listed for trial.

Immediately following the hearing yesterday—the first ever to be held in the county jail—indictments charging attempted escape and conspiracy to escape were returned against the three by the grand jury.

Prior to arraignment, Marge and Hanecak admitted that they planned to steal an automobile, speed to Weirton and stage a payroll holdup; County Detective Peter A. Connors said, but this was not brought out at the hearing, held in the office of Warden John McNeil.

POLITICAL GRAB STORY BARED

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP.)—How Moe Rosenberg gathered riches with his right hand through profitable contracts with public utilities and dealt it out to politicians with his left hand was narrated today in a copyrighted story by the Chicago Evening American.

The story became public after the examination of the West Side Democratic boss by Internal Revenue Bureau investigators at Washington, whither Rosenberg went last December in the hope of settling his income tax matters without prosecution.

His entire junk business, Rosenberg said, was built on the purchase of waste metals from Illinois utility companies at low prices. He died before he could tell the story from the witness stand at his scheduled trial for alleged tax evasion.

Rosenberg was asked by the government men to estimate what he spent politically in 1929, when legislation for a traction agreement in Chicago was put through the Legislature and City Council, and former Mayor Anton J. Cermak was a candidate for head of the County Board. His attorney gave the total as $187,000.

PLOT TO BLAST OHIO PRISON REVEALED

Cryptogram Found on Visitor Deciphered By Warden

COLUMBUS, O., March 13.—(AP.)—A bizarre plot to dynamite a wall of the State Penitentiary here to liberate two life-termers was described in a lengthy cryptogram which Warden Preston E. Thomas said yesterday he found on a prison visitor.

Neal Bowman, member of a gang which terrorized Southern Ohio and Northern West Virginia for many months until their capture three years ago, was to have been the recipient of the letter, he related. Bowman escaped from the Lima State Hospital for the Insane last Christmas Day.

SILENT ON PENALTY

Identified as author of the letter was a brother, Howard, a lifetermer, who, with Joe Filkowski, another life-termer, were to be delivered from the prison by separate dynamite blasts which would rend the wall in three places. Filkowski was known as Cleveland's Public Enemy No. 1 until his capture more than two years ago in New York.

Warden Thomas did not identify the visitor on whom, he said, the note was found. He declined to disclose whether disciplinary action would be taken against Howard Bowman or Filkowski or whether the unnamed visitor had been detained.

The plot proposed a raid on a National Guard Armory and the commandeering of automobiles to make a getaway. Seven or eight other convicts were to be "in" on the plot only at the time the break occurred, Bowman and Filkowski engineering it from the inside.

Three Doomed to Hang Foiled in Escape Plot

JACKSON, Miss., March 13.—(AP.)—Escape plans, apparently inspired by John Dillinger's break from an Indiana jail, were thwarted yesterday when officers removed miscellaneous weapons, including a dummy pistol, from the cells of three Negroes under sentence to hang Friday at Hernando, Miss., for criminally attacking a young white girl.

An improvised "revolver" fashioned out of a tobacco tin, two sharp-edged dirks and a rough-edged piece of metal resembling a saw, were discovered by Jailor Porter Wells and Sheriff Warren Ferguson, secreted in the bedding of Isaac Howard, Ernest McGehee and Johnnie Jones.

A tip given the authorities inspired the search of the cells of the three condemned Negroes. They are scheduled to be removed to Hernando Thursday night under military guard, where they will be hanged.

San Quentin Break Thwarted; One Slain

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., March 13.—(INS.)—Freedom at any cost.

That's the code of Ethan A. McNabb, 36, notorious "yacht bandit," who sits today in the dungeon with his "bighouse" mobsters after their sensational but unsuccessful attempt to escape yesterday.

And because McNabb so keenly desired liberty, fellow convicts died from "homemade" bullets made secretly for his skilfully manufactured-in-prison guns.

Innocent victim of McNabb's latest wild scheme, John Hubert Arbuckle, 29, a bigamist, is dead, a "homemade" bullet from the "yacht bandit's" gun accidentally having ended his life. Last year Martin Colsom, a co-conspirator, killed himself with one of McNabb's bullets when their escape from Folsom was blocked.

8 SOUGHT ALIVE ON JAP WARSHIP

SASEBO, Japan, March 13.—(AP.)—With three men rescued out of the 113 trapped in the hull of the capsized torpedoboat Tomozuru, rescue workers cut doggedly at a steel wall late tonight in the hope that eight more men might be found alive.

Officers, 40 hours after the heavily-armed little ship turned over during maneuvers, were spurred on in their work by a story from the rescued men that eight of their companions were still alive in the engine room when they escaped through a hatch under water. They said their comrades were too weak to follow them.

The floating coffin, still bottom up as it was when a cruiser found it off the coast, was shoved into the Sasebo drydock, its masts and funnel in the cutaway were keels ordinarily go.

Drys Plan Campaign For Fewer Courts

HARRISBURG, March 13.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's re-organized drys are discussing a campaign to reduce the number of County Courts and claim the plan they have in mind would save the taxpayers of the commonwealth "something like $5,000,000 a year."

Members of the drys' executive committee met in the state capital yesterday, talked over policies and the coming political campaign, and legislative matters were taken up informally.

Some leaders insisted that District Courts should supplant the court-for-each-county system. One judge could handle three or four counties, it was asserted.

Some advocates went so far as to say that while courthouses could be maintained in every county, one sheriff could handle the affairs of three or four counties.

DOCTOR'S WIFE INDICTED AS 'BRAINS' OF KIDNAPING GANG

SOCIAL LEADER IN ST. LOUIS DENIES GUILT

Ex-Convict, Four Other Men Also Linked In Plot

ST. LOUIS, March 13.—(AP.)—The talented, comely wife of St. Louis physician, Mrs. Nellie Muench, today was indicted with five men for the 1931 kidnaping of Dr. I. D. Kelley, also a physician.

Mrs. Muench, named by an alleged confidant of the abduction gang as the "brains" of the kidnaping, is free on bond and at the time of her arrest a few weeks ago vehemently protested her innocence.

Her reputed aides, indicted at suburban Clayton, are Felix McDonald, former convict; Bart Davit, acquitted in connection with another kidnaping which sent McDonald to prison; Angelo Rosegrant, a salesman; John C. Johnson, Negro tenant on a farm where Dr. Kelley reputedly was held captive; and Tommy Wilders, a gangster.

FREE ON BOND

All defendants but Wilders also are free on bond. Wilders is a fugitive.

Dr. Kelley, lured from his home April 20, 1931, on a fake sick call, was released to John Rogers, Post-Dispatch reporter. Principals in the case assert no ransom was paid.

Mrs. Muench, about 45, is the daughter of a Baptist clergyman, is an exhibitor of prize chow dogs, a talented pianist, and her musical evenings "at home" have been notable among her friends.

In 1928 her exclusive dress shop went bankrupt with a loss of $77,000 to creditors.

'BRAINS' OF PLOT

The indictment followed an alleged expose of the kidnaping by Adolph Fiedler, a 300-pound former justice of the peace in Maplewood, a suburb. In a detailed story Fiedler implicated a woman and eight men, three of whom have been killed in gang feuds.

Fiedler's story was that a woman was the real brains behind the kidnaping of Dr. Kelley, who was wealthy and prominent in St. Louis social circles. The former justice of the peace said he conceived the plot and selected Kelley as the victim.

'ULYSSES' GOING ON TRIAL AGAIN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 13.—James Joyce's "Ulysses," the Gargantuan work described by literary critics as the "wanderings of an uncharted mind," is about to wander into no less exalted a place than the United States Supreme Court, according to information made public today.

The government, according to United States Attorney Martin Conboy, is dissatisfied with the recent decision of Federal Judge John M. Woolsey permitting importation of the work, and plans to appeal the ruling to the highest tribunal. Appeal papers will be filed before Saturday, Conboy said.

"Ulysses" was subjected to prosecution by federal authorities last year after it had been sold illegally in this country since 1922. Importation was prohibited on the grounds that it was "immoral and obscene."

In legalizing the sale of the book, Judge Woolsey declared it was not obscene or immoral, but "a serious experiment in a new, if not wholly novel, literary genre."

ELSIE FERGUSON TO WED AGAIN

International News Service.

LONDON, March 13.—Elsie Ferguson, American stage, screen and radio star, tomorrow will marry Victor Egan, former British army officer, at Caxton Hall.

Their names were inscribed on the registry today as "Mrs. Elsie Ferguson Worlock, 49," and "Victor Augustus Seymour Egan, 59."

It will be Miss Ferguson's fourth marriage. Her former husbands were Frederick C. Hoey, heir of the president of the Adams Express Company; Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., vice president of the Harriman National Bank, and Frederick Worlock, an English actor.

Chile-Argentina Fete Peace Symbol

BUENOS AIRES, March 13.—(AP.)—The thirtieth anniversary of the dedication of the world famous statue of the Christ of the Andes—a symbol of eternal Chile-Argentina peace on the mountain-hemmed boundry two miles above sea level—was observed today.

The occasion was marked here by prayers for continental and world peace offered by the dwindling band of survivors of the Argentine women who contributed the bronze statue, including Senora Angela de Costa, who suggested the site.

DELAY BALLOT SENTENCES

None of the 37 men and women convicted in the seven vote fraud trials at the special February session of Federal Court will be sentenced until Judge F. P. Schoonmaker rules on their motions for new trials. Hearing dates are expected to be set within a few days.

The sentencing yesterday of Mike Wendell, judge; Carman Bosco and Charles P. Betters, inspectors of the election board of the ninth district, Third Ward, each to serve one year and one day in a government penitentiary and pay fines of $1, disposed of all the 17 convicted in five trials at the regular November term of court. With few exceptions all have filed appeals with the United States Circuit Court and are at liberty on bonds.

Unless there is another special session of court, which is not anticipated, the others under indictment for alleged conspiracies to falsify ballots cast at the general election in November, 1932, will be brought to trial at the regular May term of court. Among the indictments pending are two in which a large number of political leaders are defendants.

Those convicted are mostly members of election boards in the Third, Fourth and Fifteenth Wards.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Miss Laura Barkley, daughter of the Senator from Kentucky, declined to comment on the display in the Kentucky Assembly of a newspaper picture portraying her as a member of a group of Washington society folk sampling cocktails in a hotel here shortly after sale of liquor was legalized in the District of Columbia.

Informed that State Senator S. C. Ray had displayed the picture during debate on a resolution to submit the Kentucky prohibition amendment to the voters, Miss Barkley replied that she did not care to notice this action publicly.

Her father, Senator Alben W. Barkley, could not be reached for his views.

Train Kills 2 Boys Trapped on Bridge

MIDLAND, Pa., March 13.—Trapped on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Bridge at Smiths Ferry, two East Liverpool, O., youths were run down and killed by a fast westbound passenger train late yesterday.

They were identified as Edmund De Long, 20, and John Patrick Quigg, 18. The youths were en route to Smiths Ferry to sell magazines.

THRONGS HAIL 'FIRST LADY'

SAN GERMAN, Porto Rico, March 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt set a breathless pace for her companions again today in a tour of the Porto Rico needlework district.

An 8 a. m. start from San German, where she spent the night; a picnic lunch by a roadside; a considerable pause at Ponce; a 5 o'clock reception at San Juan—these were mere highspots on the day's full program.

The First Lady of the United States, heralded by Spanish criers, headed what had the appearance of a triumphal procession through Arecibo and other points yesterday. Enthusiastic throngs hailed her everywhere. A group of ruralites barred a mountain pass until they could reach Mrs. Roosevelt's automobile and present wild lilies.

Ohio Judge Dies In Courtroom

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 13.—Judge John Pollock, presiding judge of the Seventh Ohio Appellate Court, fell dead today as he was about to step up to the bench in the Mahoning County Courthouse. An alumnus of Washington and Jefferson College, Judge Pollock had been a jurist in Ohio for the past 22 years.. He was about 70 years of age.

JEAN NASH AIDS SON ARRESTED IN SLAYING

Europe's 'Best Dressed' Woman Hurrying to U. S. for Trial

International News Service.

PARIS, March 13.—Mme. Paul DuBonnet, the former Jean Nash, known as "the best dressed woman in Europe," will sail tomorrow on the Ide de France for New York to testify in defense of her son, Andred D. Kirwan, facing trial for murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of William Sessoms, of Seattle.

Mme. DuBonnet will swear that young Kirwan is nervously deranged, she said today.

Mme. DuBonnet was lying, weeping, on a couch in her luxurious apartment at the Ritz Hotel, Paris, when interviewed.

She declared:

"He is not a forgotten son. I only heard that he had been indicted for murder last night when I arrived in Paris from Cannes.

"I had learned at Cannes that Andrew had stabbed someone aboard the liner President Garfield, but thought it was not a serious affair and was horrified when I was later informed that the man had died.

"My son is suffering from a nervous malady resembling St. Vitus dance. He cannot touch a drop of alcohol without an attack. When my secretary put him aboard the ship for America he instructed the purser not to allow him any alcohol and to keep the closest watch on him. I would like to have him confined in some sort of a home."

Mme. Dubonnet's present husband is a member of a famous French wine manufacturing family. Besides the father of young Kirwan, whom she married when she was 15 years old, her former husbands include Capt. Winfield Sifton, a wealthy Canadian; Capt. John V. Nash, of the British Army, and Prince Mohammen Sabet.

PAL OF MEANS READY TO TELL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Norman Whitaker, imprisoned lawyer companion of Gaston B. Means, convicted of swindling Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $104,000 on pretense of recovering the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, is expected to bargain for his freedom by telling where the money is hidden.

Roger Robb, District Attorney who helped to prosecute "The Fox" and Means on charges of attempting to swindle Mrs. McLean out of an additional $40,000, said Whitaker had written him of a "final split" with Means and that he was ready to tell where the money was cached.

Whitaker wrote:

"I did not receive any of the money. Means kept it all. He also knows the inside story of the Lindbergh kidnaping."

Her Plans Indefinite

LADY ASHLEY . . DOUG NAMED CO-RESPONDENT BY HER LORD

Lady Ashley, whose husband's divorce suit named Douglas Fairbanks, the visiting U. S. screen actor, as co-respondent. Apprised of an apparent reconciliation between Actor Fairbanks and estranged Miss Pickford, Lady Ashley said, "My plans . . . indefinite."

RACERS JAILED IN KIDNAPING

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—Charged with the kidnaping of James Lee, Los Angeles Examiner reporter, Albert A. (Babe) Stapp and Al Reinke, automobile race drivers, were lodged in the county jail last night by District Attorney's investigators.

Stapp and Reinke posted bail of $2,500 each and were later released. They will appear in court today for arraignment of the abduction charges.

The jailing of Stapp and Reinke followed another day of investigation by District Attorney Buron Fitts into the kidnaping of Lee and the beating and kidnaping of John Bennus, Examiner photographer. The reporter and photograpgher were set upon March 7, last, at the funeral of Ernie Triplett, race driver, and one of three men killed at the recent El Centro automobile race.

Bennus was brutally beaten and he and Lee were taken into custody by a mob of men and brought to the Examiner office where delegates of the gang informed editorial executives that further violence would result any time photographs of drivers' funerals or wreckage of racing cars were made.

DOUG FOR MARY, PEERESS HEARS

LONDON, March 13.—Lady Ashley, whose husband named Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., as co-respondent in a recent divorce action, when told last night a reconcilliation between the actor and Mary Pickford was virtually assured, said she knew he was going to return to the United States, but said:

"I do not expect that will be for some time."

Told by the Associated Press as she reached her Mayfair flat that Hollywood's erstwhile "ideal couple" was about to make peace, she said:

"I know he is going back for the opening of his picture, which he is just starting to make. As for my plans, they are rather indefinite for the moment."

Lady Ashley, the former Sylvia Hawkes, a London actress, refused to discuss reports that she and Doug, in whose company she was seen frequently in recent months, were ever considering marriage.

HOSTILE TRIBES BLOCK SHEBA EXPLORATION

Fliers Abandon Plan To Land at Queen's 'Lost' Capital

CAIRO, Egypt, March 13.—(AP.)—Hostile tribesmen fired vainly at the airplane in which two French explorers are returning to Paris after having discovered what they believe is the long lost capital of the exotic Queen of Sheba, they reported here today.

The plane, piloted by Capt. Corniglion Molinier, who is accompanied by the French author and archaeologist, Andre Malraux, was fired on while over the desert near Sana, capital of Yemen Province, Arabia.

Malraux is believed to be returning to Paris with a story and pictures of their discovery.

The two reported last Thursday they had flown over a city about 1,000 miles southeast of Jerusalem, on the north boundary of the Ruba-el-Khali Desert, which they think to be Sheba's capital.

Arrangements probably will be made in Paris for an extensive exploration.

Before they left the desert the Frenchmen said the region where they found the lost city was so desolate and unsuitable for landing and nomadic tribesmen were so wild, that it would be "certain death" to land there.

The two had advised the French Air Ministry they planned to return to the city, but apparently changed their plans and decided to return to France first.

ACTORS SCORE 'NUDE' SHOWS

A drive against employment of children and immoral shows, launched by the members, has been approved by the executive board of the Pittsburgh Actors and Entertainers' Association, the board announced today.

The board reported child entertainers and the "nude" type of show has caused wholesale unemployment of legitimate Pittsburgh actors and entertainers.

A committee has been appointed to co-operate with A. P. Huckstein, supervising inspector of the Department of Labor in Pittsburgh. The public is urged to report child labor violations and improper shows to the association's headquarters in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

MAY INDENTIFY CAPTIVE BANDIT

Pittsburgh detectives today were awaiting fingerprints and photographs of a man reported captured yesterday in an attempt to hold up a bank in Vicksburg, Miss.

The man, who said he was Leland Robert, 41, of Pittsburgh, was captured when the cashier sounded an alarm. The intruder was said to have handed the official a note describing himself as "Pretty Boy" Floyd, and demanding money under threat of death.

Third Man Admits Adler Kidnap Plot

CHICAGO, March 13.—(INS.)—George Wolf, arrested in Racine, Wis., as the third man in a plot to kidnap E. P. Adler, wealthy Davenport, Ia., banker and publisher, today made a complete confession, it was reported at the office of State's Attorney Thomas Courtney.

Adler frustrated the plot to kidnap him for ransom when he fought off two assailants in a downtown hotel here. Both were captured, but one of them, Charles W. Mayo, committed suicide in his cell. The second man, James Lacy, is awaiting trial.

Mr. Pecora Might Give Some Tips On Good Stocks

Mr. Pecora is telling us all about the bad stocks, and keeping the list of good ones to himself.

LINDY TO PROBE MAIL FLYING BY ARMY

day. The flier at that time gave the secretary his opinion of the Air Corps' organization, planes and personnel, and was asked to serve on a committee. Acceptance from him, Wright and Chamberlin have yet to be received.

At almost the same minute that Dern and Lindbergh were discussing the survey, President Roosevelt's letter curtailing Army air mail flying, criticizing the Air Corps for its failure to meet the emergency, and suggesting that some plan be adopted by which the efficiency of the Air Corps would be improved, was made public at the White House.

ARMY READY TO RESUME

Meanwhile, the Army's high command double-checked all safety factors today before giving the word "go" to its mail fliers.

The order to resume flying the mails was withheld temporarily, not only to insure against more fatal crashes, but to await word of personnel shifts.

Zone commanders had instructions for flying over nine major routes. Air corps chiefs ordered fliers to report when "ready" but told all to stay on the ground until "released" by the War Department.

At the Capitol there was conflict over the administration's plans for the permanent return of air mail to private concerns.

Members of the House Postoffice Committee, which resumed hearings today on such permanent legislation, said it appeared that a majority now stands against the administration proposal to pay private operators on a "space" basis.

The committee, at the end of an air mail investigation that extended over two years, decided that the best solution is to pay on a poundage basis.

Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, author of a previous bill providing payment by the pound, contended the provisions to pay so much per foot of space occupied by the mail was the "proposition that caused all our trouble."

PLAN 2 NEW ROUTES

Addition of two new air mail routes to those operated before the general contract cancellation is contemplated by the Postoffice Department.

Harllee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General, told the House Postoffice Committee today that lines from Chicago to Spokane and from Billings to El paso were planned under the $12,000,000 appropriation asked for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Although the Senate Postoffice Committee also resumed hearings on the permanent air mail legislation today, the emergency air mail bill now before the Senate was shoved temporarily into the background.

The emergency bill provides funds for Army air mail operations. Efforts to add to it a provision authorizing temporary private contracts are sure to draw considerable fire.

Eager to Aid, Chamberlin Set for Capital Trip

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Clarence Chamberlin, named by Secretary Dern to a special committee to investigate Army carrying of the air mails, expected to leave for Washington today.

The noted transatlantic flier was represented by an associate as "anxious" to assist the administration in an advisory capacity.

The associate, Elmer H. Holmes, said Chamberlin had been in sympathy with the administration's policies concerning air mail flying and had conferred several times with authorities at Washington.

He said Chamberlin was to depart for Washington today, ostensibly for conferences relative to his appointment to the committee.

TRADING BANS MAY BE EASED

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Two proposals to soften the stock market control bill were studied today. Both relate to margin trading and they emerged from conflict among technical experts working on the measure.

One plan would exclude from the operation of the law all existing marginal accounts. The other would postpone the effective date of the new restrictions until some future time, such as January 1935, or January, 1936.

The first of the two was being given serious study of Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee. All existing margin accounts would be extended so long as no change was made in them.

Under the law as now drafted, the bill would go into effect October 1, and would cover all marginal transactions. Modification of this feature, however, has been virtually decided upon.

Army Air Mail Failure Laid to False Economy

STARVED BY CONGRESS

1—The Army failed to "deliver the goods" as a commercial aviation organization because the Army air serv was undertrained, poorly equipped and hamstrung with obsolete regulations and ancient red-tape.

2—It failed because for years CONGRESS HAS BEEN STARVING IT in appropriations for gasoline and other necessary expenses to keep Army pilots flying after they were trained.

3—It failed because those in charge of these matters allowed OBSOLETE AND CUMBERSOME PLANES to be sold to the Army WHEN BETTER, MORE MODERN AND SAFER SHIPS were available to private enterprises.

4—And it failed because it was plunged into commercial flying operations without the necessary safety devices essential to bad-weather flying but heretofore NOT INCLUDED IN MILITARY SHIPS.

FLYING TIME SHORT

Consider these additional facts:

Under present appropriations average flying time for regular Army pilots is about 150 hours a year. About 24 minutes a day—not enough for a private pilot, who never ventures much beyond his home airport.

They started carrying the mail with officers whose total flying time in many instances did not exceed 400 hours. The day the first two Army pilots were killed near Salt Lake City, FIVE COMMERCIAL PLANES CAME THROUGH THE SAME TERRITORY SAFELY—and the average flying time of the five pilots in those ships was 6,500 hours each.

LACKED SAFETY DEVICES

Only a few Army planes had directional gyro or artificial horizons, so necessary for blind flying. Not a single plane in the Army service had outside temperature equipment and none had visual radio beam recorders.

The Army pilots plunged into snow-filled skies without a single de-icing mechanism on its planes—a magnificent example of courage, but a sheer and needless defiance of fate.

Army planes had no radios suitable for long-distance airline operation. A few "command sets" here and there, but nothing like the $5,000-per-plane installations on modern commercial airliners with which commercial pilots keep in constant communication with beautifully-equipped land stations of their lines.

And here, if further proof is needed, is the Army's own statement on its training for night and blind flying:

"Army training courses include 10 hours blind flying minimum and 20 hours minimum night flying. During the last fiscal year only seven per cent of the Army's flying was done at night."

THE INSIDE STORY

There you have it—the real inside story of the air mail tragedy.

Without equipment, training or necessary helps to navigation, the air service plunged into a strange and hazardous task.

The mere youths who calmly climbed into cumbersome open crates and disappeared in raging blizzards, or the chap who walked five miles through the snow with a sack of mail on his shoulder after a forced landing in a cow-patch, more than justify the air service traditions and need no apologists.

Nor do the captains and majors, in charge of divisions, who climbed into frail Army ships and flew between points in bad weather to set an example. And no doubt, the "gold-braids" will speak for themselves.

Let us hope it won't be long before the voice of the nation is heard and recorded—and that it will mince no words and leave nothing undone to restore the country's confidence in its aviation—CIVIL AND MILITARY.

ARMY BUYING DEFENDED BY WOODRING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—A statement in defense of his actions in ordering a change in the methods by which Army supplies have been purchased in recent years was issued today by Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

Asserting that "special, selfish interests" have been conducting a campaign of "insinuation and innuendo" against him, Woodring declared he was confident of complete vindication. He said:

"Scurrilous statements and insinuations have been made to the effect that serious conflicts existed between the Secretary of War and myself, and between the chief of staff and the general staff and myself. There is no foundation whatever for such inferences.

"I have performed all the manifold duties of my office with a scrupulous regard for the public interest and in conformity with the statutes of Congress, and the expressed will of the President of the United States and the Secretary of War. In spite of complaints, insinuations and sniping by special, selfish interests, I will not swerve from this course."

Meanwhile a House military affairs subcommittee today continued its inquiry into War Department aeronautical purchases, demanding evidence presented before the District of Columbia grand jury during the latter's investigation into award of contracts by the department. The grand jury failed to return any indictments.

Chairman Rogers (Dem.), of New Hampshire, said he would ask the District Attorney for the evidence immediately.

The House body quizzed Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant chief of the Army Air Corps, on his department's policy of awarding aircraft contracts.

Asked by Representative James, (Rep.), of Michigan, whether he had studied a decision by the Judge Advocate-General by the effect that negotiated contracts were illegal, Westover said he had seen such a ruling. He maintained, however, that the Judge Advocate-General merely acted in an advisory capacity, and not as an executive officer.

Pottsville Miners Return to Work

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 13.—(AP.)—Upwards of 7,000 anthracite miners of the Panther Creek Valley, on strike for a week, returned to their jobs yesterday, pending adjustment of their differences with operators.

MITCHELL VIEW ON MAIL ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—President Roosevelt today had as a luncheon guest Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, former chief of the Army Air Corps, who for years has demanded improved equipment and added personnel for the nation's air force.

The President presumably invited Mitchell in for a conference regarding air mail operations and to get his views regarding improvement of the military air service. The President when he issued orders on Saturday curtailing air corps operation of the air mail pointed out that there was need for training and improved equipment in the service.

Added interest was given Mitchell's invitation to the White House by the vigorous views which the General has been expressing about the Army's conduct of the air service.

Gen. Mitchell believes the Army general staff has been pursuing a "ruinous policy" with regard to military aircraft.

He ascribed the recent fatalities to the fact that the air corps equipment is "15 years behind the rest of the world in organization" and "six or seven years behind in technical development."

Sixty per cent of the Army Air Corps' engine, he said, need overhauling, and "it will take us two to four years to get out of this mess."

'SAME OLD STORY'

Regarding the commercial air lines, Mitchell admitted that they had gone ahead of the government service, but he said it was at a cost of $46,000,000 in government subsidy, adding:

"It's the same old story that we had during the war. We spent more than a billion dollars on planes, but only a hundred of them ever got to the front. And they were rotten.

"The government, through the Army, pioneered in the air mail after the war, and as soon as we had it on a paying basis the financiers and the manufacturers, through their political agents, took things over. From the testimony of recent months, you can see what they did after that.

"They cheated the Government, took millions in subsidies, and used them to pay enormous salaries. They paid bribes and they played the stock market."

GOOD ARMY TRAINING

Mitchell expressed the view the Army ought to continue to fly the mail. He asked:

"Why not?" "It would be good training. Military pilots have got to know how to fly all sorts of weather, to fly at night and for long distances.

"Under existing appropriations and policy, all the Army pilots can do now is to fly around the field.

Mitchell was court-martialed during the Coolidge administration for criticism of his superiors in their conduct of Army air policy. He was found "guilty" and retired from the Army.

SMOOT LOBBY PROBE PUSHED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Further investigation into the lobbying activities of Ernest W. Smoot, son of former Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, was begun here today by District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett. Smoot recently testified before the Senate Air Mail Committee.

In instigating, Garnett said if Smoot accepted compensation for representing commercial aviation interests before government departments here while he himself was in federal employ he is liable for prosecution under the criminal code.

Section 203 of the code prescribes a fine of $10,000 or two years' imprisonment for this offense.

Garnett said the investigation would probably be carried on by the Department of Justice.

Roosevelt to Miss Democratic Dinner

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt will be unable to attend the Democratic "harmony dinner" here on March 31 because he expects to be in Florida, it is learned.

Among those invited are three former presidential nominees, James M. Cox, John W. Davis and Alfred E. Smith. The latter two have been critical of the New Deal.

U.S. INCOME NOW HALF OF OUTLAY

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—The government's income for the fiscal year—it ends July 1—today passed the $2,000,000,000 mark while expenditures stood at $4,444,687,000.

Receipts from last July 1 through March 10, the latest day available, vere $2,001,959,165 as compared with $1,293,522,909 in the same period last year.

The biggest items in the increase were miscellaneous taxes—swollen by new levies and distilled spirits revenue — which jumped from $548,908,000 last year to $1,035,581,000 this year.

Treasury officials expect a big pickup in the spending rate as the weather gets warmer. In reply to questions, Secretary Morgenthau has taken the position that if estimated expenditures are not reached this fiscal year, the money will be spent in the next fiscal year, thereby leaving unchanged Mr. Roosevelt's estimate that on June 30, 1935, the public debt will reach $31,834,000,000.

DUNLAP SPEECH TO BACK WAR ON LEAGUE

Scores of petitions bearing the names of hundreds of persons in the Pittsburgh district protesting against participation by the United States in the League of Nations and the World Court poured into the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today as preparations were completed to extend the movement throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

Conducted in co-operation with associated Hearst newspapers, the movement is being enthusiastically received throughout the nation.

A radio appeal to loyal citizens to enlist in the fight against propagandists, seeking to entangle the country in foreign alliances, will be made from Station WCAE tomorrow evening at 5:20 o'clock by Col. William R. Dunlap, director of supplies of the City of Pittsburgh.

ACTIVE IN GUARD

Col. Dunlap is commander of the 176th Field Artillery, senior regimental commander in the Pennsylvania National Guard and is the only regimental commander in the Pennsylvania National Guard who was a full-fledged colonel in France as commander of the 109th Infantry of the 28th Division.

The campaign in the tri-state territory will be conducted in co-operation with state commanders of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, civic and patriotic organizations.

Already on record as vigorously opposing the United States entry into the League of Nations and World Court, State Adjutant of the American Legion Stanley C. Hamric, of Charleston, W. Va., said he was certain the movement would be spontaneously received by the more than one hundred Legion posts in West Virginia. He said:

"We are on record as being unalterably opposed to this country's entry in the League of Nations and the World Court. We stand one hundred per cent for keeping free from foreign entanglements and keeping foreign entanglements from the United States."

LEADERS JOIN

In Ohio both Thomas McCaw, of Dennison, O., state commander of the American Legion, and Guy M. Norton, of Cleveland, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, promising full co-operation made similar statements.

Throughout Pennsylvania the same response has been received.

A copy of the petition which may be signed by readers who oppose this country's entrance into the League of Nations is published in an adjoining column. The time to register your protest is short. A hearing on the participation of the United States in the League of Nations and the World Court is scheduled for March 23.

If you want to keep your country out of foreign wars sign today.

LEGION BACKING LEAGUE FOES

By A. L. SLOAN

CHICAGO, March 13.—Full co-operation of the American Legion with the Hearst newspapers to thwart plans of internationalist groups to lure America into the League of Nations and the League Court was pledged today by National Commander Edward A. Hayes.

In an interview while en route east, Commander Hayes assailed propagandists who have been surreptitiously conducting a campaign to influence the United States Senate in favor of involving the United States in the league ramifications. He said:

"Every loyal American should sign the petitions that are being circulated by the Hearst newspapers addressed to Congress protesting against any such foreign entanglements. It is too bad that after all the years of complete repudiation of the League of Nations and its auxiliary organizations by the American government and its people these insidious forces should be at it again.

"They will not catch the American people napping, however, thanks to the alertness of the influential newspapers of William Randolph Hearst.

"Veterans of the World War have every reason to welcome the campaign instituted by the Hearst newspapers as a safeguard against the design of advocates of unpreparedness and propagandists who would have the United States enter the League through its World Court, which would unquestionably lead to cancellation of war debts."

Estonians Block Fascist Attack

RIGA, Latvia, March 13.—(AP.)—The Estonian government has successfully put down a Fascist attempt aimed at its overthrow, said dispatches from Tallinn, the capital, today.

The attempt to overthrow the government was made last night by an organization of ex-soldiers known as the "Liberty Warriors," the dispatches said. Martial law was proclaimed, and 100 leaders of the Fascist group were arrested.

Reopen Fraternity Where Nine Died

HANOVER, N. H., March 13.—(AP.)—The Theta Chi fraternity house at Dartmouth, where two weeks ago nine students were killed by carbon monoxide fumes, was reopened yesterday.

Seven former residents of the house, with eight other members of the chapter, moved into the three-story, white, wooden structure after a new type of heating plant had been installed to replace the furnace which generated the lethal fumes.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

FASCIST THREAT SEEN FOR U. S.

If efforts of President Roosevelt and succeeding administrations fail to bring order out of chaos there is a strong possibility that the United States will "go Fascist," Prof. J. B. Matthews, formerly of Vanderbilt College, told members of the Hungry Club. At present, he said, there are no indications that the country is headed toward the form of government now in vogue in several sections of Europe. He said in part:

"Fascism aims to restore old national relationships, stepping backward rather than moving forward. Extreme nationalism is the ultimate aim of this form of government. Even the word 'recovery' is a backward step, since President Roosevelt hopes to restore conditions to the 1926 price level."

Of the tension in Washington regarding international problems, he said:

"It is an open secret that the world is ready for another war. The government's attitude is that the nation with the biggest fighting force is best prepared for peace."

PARIS POLICE IN SHAKEUP

International News Service.

PARIS, March 13.—A complete shakeup of the Paris Police Department as the result of disclosures growing out of the $40,000,000 Stavisky financial scandal was decided upon today at a meeting of the Council of Ministers, presided over by President Lebrun.

Xavier Guichard, head of the judicial police, one of the highest posts in the department, has been dismissed.

Dutheillet de la Mothe, a promising young lawyer, went mad from brooding over what he knew of the case last night, became violent and had to be put in a strait-jacket.

He burst into a courtroom hearing one inquiry of the Stavisky scandal, hurled chairs through windows, defied authorities, and launched into a long and incoherent harangue. Later he attacked army officers.

Realty Man Named Clerk to Williams

George P. Jordan, retiring Democratic chairman of the Twenty-sixth Ward, has been appointed chief clerk to Chief City Assessor Percy R. Williams, it was announced today. Jordan, a real estate broker, replaces Dr. F. H. Frederick, retired on pension.

Pittsburgh May Get Safety Trophy

The National Safety Council's safest city award might go to Pittsburgh again this year, George E. Clarkson told the board of directors of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

He pointed out traffic fatalities have decreased here, and added that both Milwaukee and Boston have reported sizable reductions.

TROOP MASSING STIRS UNREST IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, March 13.—(AP.)—The pace of events in Austria quickened suddenly today as Chancellor Dollfuss sped toward Rome to confer with Premiers Mussolini, of Italy, and Goemboes, of Hungary.

Just before he departed, the little Chancellor—who also is minister of defense and minister of foreign affairs—handed the portfolio of defense to Prince Schoenberg-Hartenstein, who until then had been only under secretary for defense.

This move strengthened the prince's position in respect to Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, who otherwise would far outrank the under secretary.

TROOP MOVEMENTS

Simultaneously with the significant promotion—significant because Fey is a leading figure in the Fascist Heimwehr and there are all manner of rumors regarding what the Heimwehr may do in Dollfuss' absence—unverified reports circulated in Vienna concerning new troop movements.

In general, the reports were to the effect that large contingents of the regular army were massing between Vienna and the Czechoslovakian border, where Fey lately has been concentrating Heimwehr troops (home guardsmen).

This rumor in turn gave birth to two conflicting reports—one of developments on the Czechoslovakian side of the border, which caused anxiety here, and the other that Prince Schoenberg-Hartenstein was safeguarding Vienna against a possible Heimwehr march on the capital.

BELGRADE WARNING

An outspoken warning from Belgrade, Jugoslavia, against "any attempt to undertake anything serious in the direction of a Hapsburg restoration" fell ominously in the midst of the ever-widening pool of rumors and discussions of the Hapsburg question—a question which was discussed by the Austrian cabinet before Dollfuss departed.

IL DUCE TO MEET TWO PREMIERS

ROME, March 13.—(AP.)—Talks expected to have a vital bearing on the future of Central Europe began today. Tomorrow they will develop into a Danubian conference in which the leaders of Austria and Hungary will sit down with Premier Mussolini to discuss their problems.

Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria sped toward Rome by train. Hungary's Premier, Julius Goemboes, already here, filled his brief case with Magyar trade statistics in preparation for a meeting with Il Duce.

Seeking ways and means of replenishing the economic larders of Austria and Hungary, the three-premier conferences will begin tomorrow.

A meeting between Gen. Goemboes and Il Duce was arranged, however, for today at the Palazzo Venezia, while Mussolini planned to greet Dollfuss as soon as he arrived.

KAISER RETURN 'MOONSHINE'

BERLIN, March 13.—(AP.)—"Pure moonshine!"

This was the comment today of the Hohenzollern representatives here on reports from Amsterdam that the former royal family would meet there this week to discuss restoration of the monarchy in Germany.

Baron von Sell, chief Hohenzollern agent, not only told the Associated Press no reunion was planned, but dismissed the reports as pure fabrications.

World Propaganda Charged to Nazis

PARIS, March 13.—(AP.)—A systematic, world-wide campaign of Nazi propaganda was attributed to Germany today by the newspaper Petit Parisien.

It said it had uncovered new evidence to support the charge, which it had made before. The evidence, printed by the paper, was described as the text of confidential instructions which Dr. Paul Goebbels, German Minister of Propaganda, gave his "agents."

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(Look! He brags about it, yet!)

That Benjamin Franklin started out as a newspaperman—and he retired from business at the age of 40! (I hope I never do. Wondering what to do with myself would drive me crazier!)

That up to 1932 there have been 36 national elections (for President), the Repubs winning 20 and the Demos 16.

That three Presidents died of natural causes while in office. (All of them being Republicans.)

That three were assassinated. All Republicans.

That orchid seeds are so small 30,000 of them weigh as much as a grain of wheat! It takes 7 to 10 years for the first bloom to appear.

That women do not have one more rib than men.

That one foreign whisky has a slogan: "As Scotch as the tam." Well, the tam was first worn in India. (Bagpipes, too!)

That the average life of a dollar bill is seven months. (Except, of course, if hoarded. Look how close this item is to the Scotch above.)

That a $10 gold piece can be drawn into a wire 24 miles long. (Items like this about money are to remind people who owe me!)

That a black rose is being produced in this country.

That a fly has five eyes.

That if all parts of the world were heated equally by the sun there would be no wind. (Except on Broadway, of course.)

That you travel south to get from Detroit to Canada.

That the official language of Canada is French and you can't print any gov't paper in English only. (Not even a postage stamp.)

That the cobra, India's famed assassin—can knock down an elephant—but is a pushover for a mongoose.

That all police stations in Shanghai have bars at the back (for elbow bending, not for a cage) where the cops and the press can hoist a few. Average price for a highball is a nickel.

That North Carolina was originally known as Win-gin-da-coa. Because it was the first thing said by an Indian to Raleigh's query: "What is the name of this country?" And Win-gin-da-coa means: "Those are very fine clothes you have on," and if it doesn't I've been duped.

That when the newspapers report that an inch of rain fell, it means that it fell at the rate of 100 tons to the acre.

That in Japan a baby is named in this manner: When it is two weeks young it is taken to the Temple. The father writes three name suggestions on as many slips of paper. He then tosses them over his shoulder. The paper that lands on the floor last contains the name.

Things I'd Like to Find Out

Where Judge Crater is. And why barbers always show you the back of your haircut with a mirror—when it is too late to do anything about it.

What became of one secretary to Herbert Hoover (Everett Saunders) who was hired by Paramount as political advisor a year ago.

Exactly WHAT chance Cleopatra, Mme. Pompadour, Helen of Troy or Du Barry would have of getting a screen test today.

Who first thought of the idea to put parsley on dishes and why.

How Mexico could produce two temperaments as different as Lupe Velez and Dolores Del Rio . . . And how James Farley would look with a toupee and Conrad Nagel without.

Why Frank Moran, the ex-heavyweight, and a funny comedian, isn't seen more often in pictures, and why Harry Brundage, expert newsman and literary prize winner—never got a chance to write in Hollywood, except publicity for the movie stars. And why all wives are never on time.

What the tune was that Nero fiddled while Rome burned and whether the town would have burned faster if Rubinoff fiddled.

Why is it that clocks are never fast when you are late; repair bills are always higher than the estimates, and houses you'd like to live in have always been rented five minutes before you arrive.

How it is that great stage, screen and radio lovers like Vallee, Valentino and Columbo are not happy in their domestic lives.

Alcott Tale

Dorothy Major has a prominent role in "An Old-Fashioned Girl," by Louisa May Alcott, to be given by the New York Children's Theater in the Nixon Saturday morning.

Attraction in Variety
'Running Wild'

"Running Wild," in two acts and 38 scenes is the burlesque attraction in the Variety. Georgia Sothorn, and Reggie White, the "tassel twisting girl," held over from last week, are featured dancers. "Diana," European music hall dancer, Buster Marcho, Wilma Horner and Georgia St. George, shared equal honors. Comedy has not been ignored in this week's offerings.

Joe De Rita, Happy Hyatt, Abe Sher, Frank Penny and Al Golden, the latter a straightman, are the comics appearing in "The House of David," "The French Frolic," "Deaf and Dumb Actors" and "Meet My Friend." "The Parade of the Planets" and "Manhattan Serenade," are featured production numbers.

Picture Bids Refused by Laughton

By CINEMA

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Chubby Charles Laughton has turned his broad back on the many pleading cables sent him in England by Warners' offering the important role of Louis the Fourteenth in "Du Barry," to star the glamorous Delores Del Rio. And so Reginald Owen, a clever English actor, will act the historical vamp's "Louie."

Funny thing, too, Reggie had no less than NINE roles at other studios offered him, but Hal Wallis, the Warner production boss, used his most persuasive manner and beat his rivals to the punch, in other words.

"Little Fan, What Now?"

* * *

Barbara Fritchie (no cracks now about "Touch not a hair on yon gray head") who made good with the femme lead in Paramount's, "The Last Roundup" (The flicker, not the song, you silly), is rewarded with a role opposite W. C. Fields in "Grease Paint," a little thing Bill dished up himself in spare moments, which Al Werker is to megaphone.

Incidentally, Barbara is the cute person who, in the company of two other adventuresome misses, rented the ex-King of Spain's home along the Mediterranean coast for $40 per month a couple of years ago.

Wanderings Around Hollywood . . . SURPRISE on Greta Garbo! Glancing through some ancient copies of a London newspaper, I found an item in which the almost ever-silent Greta admits having a CRUSH on Carl Brisson, now here as a Paramount leading man . . . If you see Jean Muir with a BLACK-EYE it all came about when she hit a tree limb when horse-backing it for a scene in "Dr. Monica" . . . A law suit will probably be filed by an agent charging a certain foreign star with failure to pay commissions. The tenpercenter framed up a studio deal which was turned down by the star, who, after dismissing the manager, went after the job and got it, hoping to SNEAK out of paying the commissions . . . The advance ticket sale for "Wonder Bar" exceeds EVERY RECORD since 1929 . . . One of our MISBEHAVING stars made such LOUD LOVE to his sweetie on Sunset Blvd. the other morning that officers were finally forced to calm him down at the police station! . . . Garrett Fort has been dinner dining Nancy Lyon at the Brown Derby . . . The Harry Joe Browns (Sally Eiler) are baby buggy shopping.

Sounds funny to you, but Benny Thau, M-G-M exec, has the strangest hobby—collecting toothbrushes. He has over 200! . . . Universal has borrowed Patricia Ellis from Warner's to go romantic with Joel McCrea in "Alias the Deacon" . . . Harry Barris will pound the piano, sing a song, make faces and pass off jokes for a scene in "The Hollywood Party" at M-G-M . . . Edwin Maxwell's been assigned an important role in "Cleopatra."

* * *

One of Hollywood's well-known romances TOOK IT ON THE CHIN when the in-love-feller saw the automobile of his girl friend's husband parked in front of her house. It's a TRIFLE involved, but you figure it out! . . . George Burns says he has invented a dish with onions which he calls "a la Mae West"—"they come up some time!" . . . Warren Hymer, the screen's tough guy, can speak Latin with a "Thoid Avenue" accent. He's now busy appearing in Buster Keaton's giggle-getter for Education . . . Jack Gordon and Marjorie Wellman are geting to the furniture-hunting stage.

Louise Dresser Cast As Baroness

Louise Dresser has been signed for the role of Baroness Von Gerhardt in the Fox film production, "The World Moves On." Her last film was "David Harum" with Will Rogers. The cast now includes Madeleine Carroll and Franchot Tone. Reginald Barkeley wrote the story and John Ford will direct.

Eddie Cantor, stage, screen and radio star, with Pittsburgh's own Dave Rubinoff, and his violin, will be the stage attraction Friday in the Stanley. The screen feature is to be May Oliver and Edward Everett Horton in "Poor Rich," a comedy.

Greta Garbo and John Gilbert have the leading roles in "Queen Christina," photoplay coming to the Penn screen Friday. The drama takes place in the seventeenth century. Miss Garbo plays the queen, who falls in love with Gilbert, a Spanish ambassador to her court.

* * *

"No More Women," featuring Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglan and Sally Blane, will come to the Warner screen Friday. Lowe and McLaglan are deep sea divers who are rivals in love affairs.

Community Fair Set By Boys' Club

The annual community fair of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh will be held in the Club, 4412 Butler street, April 6 and 7. The fair will feature exhibits of handcrafts, arts collections and pets. Boys under the age of 18 will not be permitted to enter exhibits.

Echoes From the Cabarets

By THE ROUNDER

As far as we know, Steve Mathews' 18-month run at Freda Pope's Longview Farms, Thompson Run road, is the longest in any club in Pittsburgh. Mathews and his boys will continue at Longview, which is preparing for a grand spring opening shortly after March 21.

Tommy Flynn, the personable band leader at the other Pope rendezvous, the Showboat, came to Pittsburgh New Year's Eve for a four-week engagement, cancelled a Syracuse engagement to stay eight, and is now on indefinitely.

The significence of the mystic "Iitwybad," the Showboat's new wine list, strikes us as clever. Several special drinks are named after Showboat personalities and combined with boats, such as "Freda's Tug Boat," "Betty's Float," and "Florine's Barge." What we can't understand is why anyone with a contour like that of Florine, the checkroom lass, should rate a "barge."

That harmonica-playing m. c. at the Tent Club, Bud Halloway, has had varied experiences crammed into his 28 years. He's done everything from being lost as a child and rescued by Indians, to selling ladies' lingerie. During the intervals he has been copy boy, sports cub and accounting department flunky on the Vancouver Daily Province, lumberjack and head mop-pusher in a local restaurant. His ambition—so he says—is to become a high-pressure salesman. Stranded in Pittsburgh a few years ago, he won a harmonica contest that netted him a prize and a week's theater engagement.

The "Victor" half of the Marge and Victor team, also in the Tent Club, played in Lew Leslie's "Clowns in Clover" in Chicago during the summer.

Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy soubret, will feature the new show opening Friday night in the Plaza Cafe, Fifth and Sixth avenues. Miss Arnst, who will come to the Plaza from a Chicago night club engagement, is the former wife of Johnny (Tarzan) Weismuller. Joe Cappo, Plaza master of ceremonies, and Frances Knight, comedienne, have been held over to appear in the new show.

The Hi Hat Club, Aspinwall, will make next Saturday night, St. Patrick's day, an Irish night, with decorations and novelties in the Irish vein. Corned beef and cabbage will be served.

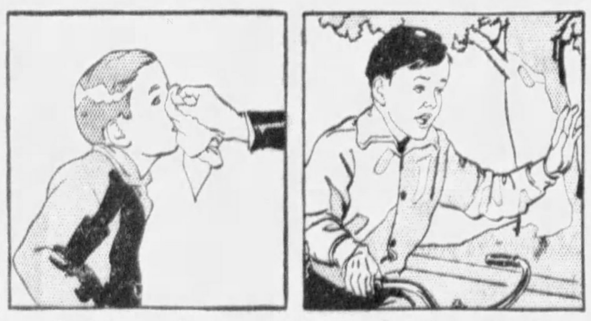
Whose Fault?



Children who are Always Catching Cold

A boy or girl may be warmly clad, dry shod, and ever so careful, yet catch one cold after another. Do you know what's to blame? Low vitality. A sluggish system makes any child an easy victim for colds. The youngster whose bowels haven't moved for two days will contract a cold quicker than the one who has forgotten his rubbers. A powerful cathartic that opens the child's very pores is just as bad. The proper treatment is described on the right:

Here's the plan many mothers use to protect their children from a cold all through the cold season. Instead of waiting for biliousness to strike, they ward it off in this way: Every few days, they give the child a spoonful of plain California Syrup of Figs. No violent purge! No laxative of adult strength! Just this natural, fruity syrup containing senna. Use the genuine California Syrup of Figs, sold everywhere; bottle should say California.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

A Letter in the Mail.

THIS LETTER comes to me from "Cojito," the pen name of a man who is serving a life term in an Eastern penitentiary. He is, of course, the central character in the story he relates.

Here is his story-letter, exactly as received:

"Until the time Billy won first prize for his graduation essay, at high school, he had wanted to be an airplane pilot.

"After graduation, Billy took a story writing course. The sponsors were very encouraging: 'This is nicely written, and the plot is good. Try to get more force, more life into your work. The man did not just walk into the barroom, he swaggered. You understand?'

"Billy tried. He went over to the airdrome, where his dad worked, and in the shadow of the big hangar, he carved chunks of thought from his brain and spread them on reams of paper.

"The last letter from his instructor foretold a sensational future, particularly if he took the course in novel writing. Billy decided that he would first have a fling at short stories.

"But they came back, as they would. Time and again, the editors passed up this potential O. Henry. The kid, though, refused to become discouraged.

"As editors search for gems in the shale heap that comes in daily, the names of persistent novices begin to stick. Billy had one editor refuse 14 stories, but there finally came a personal note: 'Perhaps you lack the experience necessary to give life to your characters.'

"Billy went to Squint, the reformatory graduate.

"'Say, Squint, give me an idea how to pull a real burglary, will you? I want experience for a story, and I'll send the stuff back. I just want to feel the tenseness, the daring of doing a job.'

"'Nix, Billy. You'll get sent up if they catch you.'

"You know he would get caught, Mr. Hellinger. So do I. Because Squint didn't tell him to take a gun with him—nor did he tell him that if someone came in and Billy pointed the gun at him and the man failed to put his hands up, Billy would become so thoroughly frightened that when the gun exploded he would almost faint.

"That's what happened. And as the man's eyes opened wide in horror and amazement and his knees swayed under him, Billy gasped, 'What's the matter?'

"Then instinct told him to flee from the terrible presence of Death. He crashed into a large glass door; he sprawled out onto the sidewalk; someone kicked him; and finally a couple of men yanked him to his feet.

"The rest of that act is still a nightmare to Billy. Police patrol. Station house. Magistrate's court. Murder in the first degree. His anguished parents. The trial. The verdict. Guilty! The death house.

"For days, as if in a semi-stupor, Billy sat in his cell and stared at the walls. He heard the voices of other condemned men; voices that told of their lives, their loves, their plots, failures.

"Then came a day that Billy will never forget. They were going to kill a man. They were going to kill him coolly deliberately, somewhat like the time Billy had taken the kittens out to drown them.

"Early that morning, he heard the priest murmuring to the fellow. He heard the answering: "Mea culpa, mea culpa,' in a voice that was weary and hollow. All day the priest sat with the man—and then, as night added its blackness to the scene and tiny lights lent eerie shadows to the deathly-still room, Billy saw the pale-faced guards come through the narrow, iron doorway. A key grated in the lock of the condemned man's cell door.

"A short gasp that sprayed paralyzing horror all over Billy came from the lad. Slowly, so slowly that eternities passed feet shuffled along that awful via dolorosa. The man paused at Billy's cell, and he offered a feeble hand.

"Later, Billy's mother came. Her hair had become snow white. Billy sat staring as she fought back the tears.

"'Don't worry, my boy. I saw the Governor. Your sentence is to be changed to life—and in a few years you'll be out.' . . .

"Billy did get life and, in the course of events, he was classified by the psychologists for work in the prison machine shop.

"He buried himself in his work and, in his cell, he wrote stories and built miniature airplanes. The years passed, and his thoughts drifted to his dad and the old airdrome. He nursed one vivid memory; that forced landing when Joe, his favorite pilot, had been killed.

"He had an idea. If only . . . if only . . . well, why not? It might work. He fooled with the notion. And then he put it on paper, and sent it to a famous aviation expert. The return address he used had no suggestion of a prison.

"One week later, he had his answer:

"'Your idea seems sound to me,' it read. 'Develop it more completely, and patent it before you divulge further details even to me. For your tests, I'll put a plane and pilot at your disposal. Let me know when to expect you.'" . . .

Judas Drama Simple and Sincere

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A little Biblical drama of the Passion was put on by the Newman Players last evening at the school auditorium in Craig street—and held the audience by the simple sincerity of the writing and the fine restraint of the acting. For the writing Madeleine Skelly Foust merits all praise; for acting with convincing naturalness, Martin B. Fallon and Michael Healy, Jr., must be pointed out in a cast that had been directed with intelligent discretion by the author.

Mr. Seibel

This author, Madeleine Skelly Foust, is not unknown to Pittsburghers, and her play, "The Other Kingdom," should make her known to other cities. For it is a really human and psychologically valid version of the Judas problem, explaining how the disciple who betrayed Jesus came to commit that tragic treason. In the first act, when Judas is 12 years old—well played by Robert McQuade—the family's poverty and the cruelty of the Romans make him eager to win wealth and wage war against the oppressors of Israel. Twenty years later his thirst for silver and his disappointment at the Master's pacifist doctrine lead him to his ruin and death.

The entire action takes place on a housetop in Jerusalem, a beautifully designed and effectively lighted stage setting. Here the sister of Judas sells herself in marriage to Sem, a wealthy merchant, to save the family from starvation. Twenty years later this Sem gives the silver of the Sanhedrin to his brother-in-law to betray the Master. Sem, acted by Michael Healy, did this scene with Martin Fallon as Judas finely and the last exit of Judas, with a too convenient rope, was another effective moment.

But the real power of the tragedy is in its minor chords, in the subdued emphasis of the dialogue and the unstrained simplicity of the whole story. There is no striving after stage effect, no thunders or darkness, which might heighten a climax.

The characters are painted as real human beings and what they do is the working out of their human nature. It affords one of the best explanations of the Judas problem that could be offered. Here are the why of his treason and the how of it, presented plausibly, and he is not a villain, but a deluded zealot.

Besides the players already mentioned, good work was done by Viola Broskey, Madeleine S. Foust, Robert Freker, John McQuade, Jerome Jackson, Roy Henry, Donald Sanker and Mary Clancy. The well-written little drama received a dignified and moving presentation, with make-up and costumes especially impressive. The performance will be repeated every night this week in the same auditorium.

Trade Board Will See Travel Film

The March meeting of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade will be held next Monday night in the assembly room of the Peoples Pittsburgh Trust Company, 5810 Forbes street. Motion pictures in the form of a travelogue on Northern England, Scotland and Ireland will be shown.

Lupe Madcap Child

Hollywood accepts Lupe Velez but never tries to explain her. She is the movies' madcap child, with whims and temperamental vagaries that know few inhibitions.

She thinks practical jokes are grand fun. She sticks her tongue out at whom she pleases. She yells herself hoarse at the prize-fights. Lunch time finds her in the studio kitchen poking around in various kettles of food, sampling this and that before ordering.

Sometimes, when she looks as if she were pouting like a sullen, bothered child, she is really figuring a way to pull a chair from under some unsuspecting friend.

She has myriad enthusiasms—furs, jewels, dogs. Once she had eight or nine dogs in the house at the same time, until she got angry at them for digging up the lawn and sent them away. Two Chihuahuas, gifts from Johnny Weissmuller, remain along with Weissmuller's police dog.

She and Johnny lately were collecting automobile horns, many kinds, to rival each other in blatant cacophonies from their respective cars.

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use.

EX-WIFE AIDS SCHWARTZ IN TRIAL

signed statement made last month. Here was his story:

"Garavini wanted Schwartz beaten up and wanted me to get some one to do it. He said later on he wanted him knocked off. And there was a money transaction . . . He gave me money to have him whipped. I in turn gave the money to someone else . . . But I told Mr. Schwartz not to go to certain places."

On cross examination Clunk bristled:

"And you as a policeman did nothing about this?"

Brunner replied:

"That's why I'm serving time. They told me, 'You s————, if you tell Schwartz, we'll frame you. And they framed me. They were trying to frame my son-in-law, too, so I pleaded guilty to arson in Mercer County."

SMILES AT JURY

The widow seemed entirely at ease in her 20 minutes on the stand. Twice she turned and smiled at the jury as she answered questions. When Clunk appeared somewhat indignant with the deal she was giving him the Widow Garavini ignored the Prosecutor's mad-on.

She lent strength to the defense contention that Schwartz shot in self defense by testifying that her husband apparently had a gun on him that night. En route to Mercy hospital in a cab, she said this dialogue took place:

"Mr. Garavini, said, 'Where's my gun?' And I said, 'I don't know.' And he said, 'Well, say I didn't have one'."

GARAVINI STATEMENT

The Widow Garavini was barely off the stand before Clunk had introduced a death-bed statement taken from Garavini which contradicted his wife's testimony. In the statement he was quoted as saying:

"He did all the shooting . . . I had no gun . . . My wife knows all about it . . ."

But Mrs. Garavini's story sounded otherwise. She said she and the hacker were leaving the hotel after playing bridge there, when at the curb she saw Schwartz talking to some friends in a car. She continued:

"He saw us and started walking towards the hotel Then Mr. Garavini let go of my arm and grabbed him. They tussled and turned over. Mr. Garavini reached in his overcoat pocket and hit Mr. Schwartz over the head."

'I WAS HYSTERICAL'

"Then there was smoke and Mr. Schwartz reached for something. Mr. Garavini said, 'Peg, I'm shot.' Mr. Schwartz was running across Grant street and I picked up the gun he dropped and pulled the trigger into the pavement to see if there were any bullets. Then I threw it at Mr. Schwartz. I was hysterical."

Clunk queried:

"In the scuffle did you see Mr. Garavini do any shooting?"

"I really couldn't tell. Mr. Garavini was so much taller than Mr. Schwartz. All I could see was smoke (from the bullet fire)."

PROSECUTION QUERY

Clunk then pleaded surprise:

"Don't you remember last Friday I asked you whether or not Mr. Garavini's hand was upraised in this position and you said no? And I asked you whether you saw any indication of Mr. Garavini firing any shots?"

"Yes, but it all happened so quickly. After he struck Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Schwartz tried to get hold of his gun and pull his arm down."

"Was that Schwartz' gun or Garavini's gun?"

"I couldn't say."

For a second time Clunk pleaded surprise over Mrs. Garavini's testimony that her late husband had made the first move in the fight. He asked:

"Do you remember testifying before the Coroner, 'He rushed by us like a lion going for meat?' Now did he rush or did he, as you say today, walk?"

"Yes" (he rushed).

"Do you remember testifying, 'Mr. Schwartz reached in his overcoat pocket and I could see a pearl-handled gun, then Mr. Garavini reached in his pocket and grabbed a blackjack.' Is that true?"

"No, it is not."

"Why did you testify to that before the Coroner?"

"Well, I didn't realize. I was in a terrible mental state and hysterical."

"Do you remember testifying before the Coroner that Mr. Schwartz grabbed him and Mr. Garavini grabbed Schwartz to protect himself?"

BLAMES SLAIN MATE

"No. It was Mr. Garavini who grabbed Mr. Schwartz."

"Then you testified to a lie. What you stated to the Coroner was not true?"

"Yes."

Judge J. Frank Graff then observed aloud that Mrs. Garavini's other testimony before the Coroner, some three weeks after the slaying, did not indicate a terrible mental strain. He asked:

"Who have you been talking to since?"

The comely widow replied:

"I haven't talked to anybody."

On cross examination Attorney A. M. Oliver, counsel for Schwartz, asked just two questions merely to show that after the red-haired young woman had divorced Schwartz and married Garavini the two men became enemies.

Clunk rested the state's case after Mrs. Garavini had testified and Oliver early trotted out Schwartz himself as a witness.

SCHWARTZ ON STAND

As much at ease as though lounging one of the chairs in the William Penn lobby, Schwartz told the jury how he shot Garavini. When Clunk cross-examined him Iggy maintained the same composure.

Attorney Oliver questioned:

"Had you had trouble previously with Garavini?"

"Yes, the preceding week. Garavini took a punch at me when I walked out of the William Penn. He got me against the wall and started to gouge out my eyes. A policeman broke it up.

"The following Sunday at a restaurant in Fifth avenue a man told me to look out for Garavini—he was out to get me."

Then Schwartz told of an incident in April, 1932, when he said Garavini pulled a gun on him as he came out of an elavator in the hotel. Again in the Grant street lobby he said Garavini started to punch him.

Oliver asked:

"Did you have a conversation with a man named Florence Brunner?"

"That was in February, 1933. He told me all about it."

Schwartz said he put a revolver in the pocket of his car the day before the shooting, and went to the superintendent of police to get a permit for carrying it, but the superintendent was out. The morning of the shooting he said he loaned his automobile to some ladies to make a trip to Warren, O., and took the gun out of the car pocket and put it in his coat pocket. When they returned about midnight he said he went to the curb in front of the hotel, where his car was standing, and bid them goodby.

TELLS OF SHOOTING

"I did not know Garavini was about. The first I knew he was there, he grabbed me by the necktie with his left hand and pulled me towards him. I don't know whether he had a gun in his hand, or took it out of his pocket, but I heard one shot. I grabbed his arm. He fired twice again. While struggling with him I reached in my pocket and got my gun. I tried to shoot his arm to shoot the gun out of his hand.

"As we struggled, Garavini's grip got me and I dropped my gun. He started to pound me, and in our struggle we worked clear down in front of the next entrance. Then I fell, and I heard a voice say, 'Andy, turn him around and I will shoot him.'

"I recognized the voice. I broke loose and ran around a machien and down Sixth avenue.

"I didn't know Garavini had been shot until I stopped in a restaurant and heard in on the radio."

CROSS-EXAMINED

Cross-examined by Clunk, Schwartz said he had known Garavini since 1914. He said they had never been in business together, but had frequented cabarets together. He said the gun had been given to him by a constable two years ago. It was loaded when given to him, he said, and he never took the shells out.

"Where was Mrs. Garavini during the shooting?"

"I don't know."

"Did you see her?"

"I did not."

Schwartz was followed to the stand by A. Albert, maitre d'hotel of the William Penn Hotel, and D. W. Evans, clerk in the superintendent of police's office.

Albert said that he and Mrs. Albert and Mrs. Ruth Bowman, good friend of the defendant's, were in a car about to drive away from theh otel when Iggy bade them good night. The shooting followed.

Evans testified that Garavini had had permits to carry two pistols, but that both had expired two weeks before the shooting.

CORONER PICKS WRECK JURY

Coroner W. J. McGregor today announced the six experts who will compose the jury for the inquest tomorrow into the death of 11 persons in the North Side wreck, February 26.

They are George Shull, safety equipment manufacturer; C. E. Clarkson, of the National Safety Council; Frank Findlay, retired banker; J. W. Benner, safety engineer, Carnegie Steel Company; Jack Campbell, safety engineer, Union Switch and Signal Company and G. W. Hugo, retired foreman, Westinghouse Airbrake Company. The inquest is expected to continue for three days.

BEER GARDEN FEUD ENDS

The hatchet was buried today in the squabble between James Courtney, proprietor of the beer garden which formerly was the Monaca Club, and Patrolman John Novak, of the Oakland Police Station.

Courtney withdrew charges of assault and battery against Novak before Alderman Len Dyer. He had preferred the charge following a disturbance in Courtney's place last week when Novak and Patrolman James McInerney invaded the place and upset the tables, according to Courtney.

$25,000 TO AID ATOM STUDY AT TECH

Carnegie Institute of Technology is going to spend $25,000 to find out more about the atom.

That is the significance of a $25,000 grant made to the institute by the Buhl Foundation to establish a laboratory for Prof. Otto Stern, noted German physicist to carry on his studies of the atomic structure, it was announced today.

Before leaving Germany to join the Tech faculty last fall, Dr. Stern won world-wide recognition for his work at the Universities of Frankfort and Hamburg in developing the molecular beam method of studying the atom.

With the Buhl grant, he and his assistant, Prof. I. Esterman, will continue this atomic investigation at Tech. They hope the results will throw additional light on recent experiments on the "splitting up" of the atom.

Announcing the $25,000 grant, Charles F. Lewis, director of Buhl Foundation, said:

"Establishment of a laboratory for pure research in physics under Prof. Stern at Carnegie Institute of Technology should make an important contribution to the educational stature of the institution."

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the institute, said:

"We recognize the fact that there can be no important advances in engineering unless the engineer is helped by the research scientist. Prof. Stern, with his new laboratory for experimental physics, will not only aid indirectly our other research projects, but he will also stimulate the work in engineering."

Held Under Bail In Theft of Dog

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Charged with stealing a chow dog belonging to Mrs. Vira Stone Cook, Minneapolis (Minn.) textile designer, John Weiking, 30, also of Minneapolis, was held in $500 bail today for trial.

The arrest followed Mrs. Cook's complaint that Weiking failed to deliver her dog, which she said she had entrusted to him at Terre Haute, Ind., February 8, when Weiking's car broke down en route from Minneapolis to New York.

Schooley, Gordon Indictments Void

Judge W. Heber Dithrich today quashed 21 indictments against the late Roy D. Schooley, former City Treasurer and one against Nettie Gordon, underworld queen who died two weeks ago. Schooley was charged with embezzlement of city funds, Nettie with keeping a disorderly house.

First Assistant District Attorney G. F. P. Langfitt made the motion to quash because both defendants are dead.

JUNIOR PATROL

Now, fellows, you are about halfway through the second semester of this school year.

Doesn't seem possible time could go so fast this year. But that's the way it is when you are busy. It's only two or three months now until the summer vacation begins. We are hoping every Junior Patrol member will do his best to make good marks the rest of this semester!

A new captain today is Catharine Helen Moore, of 443 Chess street, Bridgeville, Pa. She sends in 10 pledges and reports that she has been elected captain. And she says she likes the Junior Patrol radio program and Mail Box a whole lot.

Heard from today—John Lowry, of Rea, Pa., who has a dog that will go get a ball when he throws it. We have printed the Morse code in the comic strip, John.

Naomi Ginser, of 710 Grant avenue, Duquesne, Pa., has started a Junior Patrol, but she doesn't have 10 members yet.

And now Joe Pizzi's Junior Patrol Club has 10 members. He sends in two pledges today. Not long ago his club held a surprise party for one of his members and she said she sure did get the surprise of her life when all the members came to the party.

Guess it must be hard to hold a meeting when one of the members is quarantined and ill! Esther Wiener, of 113 N. Second street Duquesne, Pa., writes that one of her members has scarlet fever.

Six pledges came in today from J. Comiskey, of 1433 West Crawford avenue, Connellsville, Pa. He says that he and his friends are organizing a Junior Patrol in their neighborhood.

BABY WITH TAIL NO MIRACLE

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—The British scientist, Julian Huxley, commented today on the recent birth of a boy with a two-inch tail as "an unusual but not unknown phenomenon."

The child was born in a London hospital. His tail is described as curled and tapering to a point. Otherwise the child is perfectly formed and healthy.

Surgeons said it would be perfectly possible to remove it without affecting the boy's health in the slightest.

Said Huxley:

"Different parts of the body develop at different rate during the embryotic state. Usually the tail does not develop at all. In the rare instances in which such phenomena have appeared, they have seldom reached a length of two inches."

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

1 HERE I AM... A BIG DINNER PARTY ON HAND... AND ANOTHER OF MY BAD HEADACHES. WHAT CAN I DO?
EVER TRY BAYER ASPIRIN? TAKE 2 TABLETS AND YOUR HEADACHE WILL BE GONE IN A JIFFY!
2 BEFORE THE DINNER
THAT BAYER ASPIRIN YOU SUGGESTED IS SIMPLY WONDERFUL! MY HEADACHE WAS ENTIRELY GONE IN A FEW MINUTES—
I KNEW IT WOULD BE... BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST!

A Discovery that's Bringing Fast Relief to Millions

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

RUUD HOT WATER

. . A PERSONAL MAID FOR VISITORS

IS HOT water important? Ask the man who has just hacked his whiskers in a chilling stream. Ask the girl who found the faucet freezing when she started to dress for a party. Ask any woman who has just finished a stack of cold-washed dishes or has found herself with no hot water and laundry day but half over.

You know the answers! There's another answer at our store,—the RUUD that never fails to answer every faucet's call.

AFTER all, one must consider the guests. If the food is a little better when they arrive,—if the best towels are on parade,—if your finest china graces the table, why not give a thought to RUUD Automatic Hot Water, most important of all gestures of welcome.

Its hospitality is warm and cheerful. Travel-worn visitors will bless you when its instant hot water supply floods forth; they'll remember this good samaritan long after they've forgotten if the guest towels are pink or blue.

And if for visitors, why not RUUD Hot Water on a 24-hour schedule for you? For baths ready at your convenience; for shaves, shampoos and massages as you like them; for taking the hard work out of dishwashing and laundering.

Come to our store as our guest. We'll not only show you a modern, care-killing RUUD Automatic Water Heater in full demonstration, but there's pleasant, money-saving news here for you about low prices and long terms.

END OF WASTE ADVOCATED BY CANDIDATES

(The importance of governmental economy in the coming political campaign is reviewed in today's article, one of a series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing in its campaign to reduce taxes through elimination of duplication and waste in government.)

The tremendous tax burden, brought about by the multiple governments of Allegheny County and throughout the state, has become a real issue and today it is apparent that this question will play an important part in the election of new representatives to the state Senate and Legislature.

The importance of this question in the minds of the people is seen in the fact that a good portion of the many candidates seeking office, have included in their campaign pledges, the promise to foster and support legislation for the consolidation of governmental agencies as a means of reducing governmental costs.

Allegheny County is a fertile field for this economy program. Here more than anywhere else in the entire state is an example of too much government. Approximately 250 separate and distinct governments levy taxes and collect from the property owners of this county, tax money for operating boroughs, townships, school districts and the one poor district.

VAST OUTLAY

Approximately forty-two and one-half million dollars is spent annually in Alegheny County for salaries of public officials, appointive payrollers and school officials and this is but a portion of the entire cost of government. The entire tax bill in Allegheny County for local governments alone is nearly $70,000,000 each 12 months. There are between twenty-five and thirty thousands persons on governmental and school payrolls in Allegheny County.

In Allegheny County alone there are 66 boroughs, 53 townships, four cities and one county government, all levying taxes and spending tax money. Then there are 120 school districts levying additional taxes for school purposes. And each of these taxing units, no matter how small, must have its own paid secretary, treasurer, tax collector, solicitor and controller or auditors.

With Pennsylvania residents more tax conscious than ever before, many candidates for office have taken cognizance of the situation and have pledged themselves to cut down government costs.

CANDIDATES' VEIWS

Among those mentioned for the office of Governor, there are several who feel that the most important issue faving the people today is the reduction of cost of local governments. It has been stated by public officials, civic leaders and economists that the only way governmnetal costs can be reduced is by having more efficiency and less duplication in governmental services.

Many candidates, realizing that it is impossible, under present laws, to reduce governmental units, have pledged themselves to work for a constitutional convention. By revising and modernizing the 60-year-old state constitution, the Legislature would be free to make the necessary changes so that counties might have the kind of government that best suits its needs.

In Ohio and Texas home rule has been granted the counties and it is now up to the residents of the counties in those states to decide whether they shall have 120 units of government or one unit. There is at present before the New Jersey Legislature a bill which would grant similar power to the counties of that state.

Police Drag River For Drowned Boy

McKeesport police were ordered today to drag the Monongahela River in the vicinity of Duquesne in a search for the body of Stanley Ceskovich, 12, of 1013 Soles street, McKeesport, who fell through the ice more than a month ago. A $25 reward for recovery of the body has been offered.

LINCOLN, R. I., March 13.—(AP.)—Valentine Cairo, 46, owner of the Rhode Island Fireworks Company, was killed and several buildings wrecked in an explosion at the plant today, while Cairo was mixing explosives.

McNair's Brother's Town Doesn't Need Taxes

MIDDLETOWN, March 13.—(AP.)—Residents of this Central Pennsylvania borough will not pay any borough taxes for the second successive year because the income from the municipal light plant pays the bills.

The 1934 budget was fixed at $56,700 last night by the councilmen, who estimate that the borough's power plant not only will earn that much but enough more to pay $5,000 for a building purchased recently for a borough hall. The structure formerly was a hosiery mill.

3D CANAL ROUTE HEARING ON

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 13.—(AP.)—Advocates of a Pittsburgh-to-Lake Erie canal by way of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers came to Youngstown today for the third of a series of hearings on possible routes from the industrial sections of Ohio and Pennsylvania to the lakes.

Government engineers have approved a $30,000,000 project for canalization of the Beaver and Mahoning to Struthers, near Youngstown, but the proposal of the through canal is separate from that project. Witnesses, however, are expected to point out that because of the canalization project already approved that the Beaver-Mahoning route for the through canal should be used.

The northern terminus of the proposed canal would be at Kingsville on Lake Erie, reaching there through the Beaver and Mahoning, Eagle Creek and Mosquito Creek.

Cities and towns represented are Pittsburgh, Beaver, Rochester, Sharon, Farrell, New Castle, Ellwood City, Beaver Falls, Girard, Niles, Warren and Ashtabula.

Next Tuesday advocates of a waterway from Pittsburgh to the lake by way of the Allegheny River will be heard at Oil City, Pa.

Escort to Hoovers Dies of Injuries

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(AP.)—Injuries received while escorting President and Mrs. Hoover from a world series baseball game in 1929, are declared by physicians to have been an indirect cause of Police Capt. Charles W. Buchler's death.

Buchler, 73, formerly headed the mounted traffic squad. His horse fell while he was escorting the Hoovers.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

WILKINSBURG TAX BOOST HIT

Rex Newton, spokesman of the group, said that during their campaign the most of the newly-elected councilmen had pledged a reduction in taxes. He urged them to carry out their pledges.

He also stated that some of the members of Council could not afford to pay taxes on their own property at the present rate of 9½ mills.

SLOVAKS PICK CHAIRMAN

Dr. Peter P. Hletka, of Chicago, today was elected chairman for the third special convention of the National Slovak Society now in progress at the headquarters of the association, 516 Court place. The rest of today's session will be taken up with the consideration of special reports.

When the week's conference opened yesterday, Mayor William N. McNair officially welcomed the 320 delegates to the city.

Although the regular convention, held every four years, was scheduled for this fall, the special session was called upon the order of Judge Thomas Marshall, of the Common Pleas Court, because of an alleged infringement of the by-laws by the officers.

If the delegates pass on a vote of confidence to the officers, the latter will retain their offices until the regular election. George Tomascik, of Wilkes-Barre, is president of the organization. His chief assistants are Adam Poliak, of Chicago, vice president; J. A. Gallo, 323 East Agnew avenue, secretary, and A. S. Rodak, 3605 Pary street, treasurer.

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Girls Should Not Spend All Of Their Time at Home

I HAVE BECOME DISILLUSIONED OF LATE.

So writes a girl.

Not that she has had experiences to cause disillusionment. This disappointment in things in general has been brought about through apathy rather than activity.

No one is to blame. Unless it is the girl herself.

MANY OF OUR TROUBLES originate right within ourselves. But we don't like to admit it. Pride of a peculiar sort, always censures the other fellow.

She feeds herself on porridge of her own EGO. And wonders why it tastes FLAT. She doesn't know that food to be palatable has to be salted and peppered.

The average cookbook is made up of a combination of people's efforts. No one person contributes all the recipes. It is the same way with life. We cannot live entirely alone, and be contented human beings.

And there is no time to make friendships like the days of our youth. It is then we are having our heydey. And if we don't learn to co-operate with the outside world then, when we grow old, we will be left high and dry.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I live in a part of Pittsburgh which is very respectable. But where girls of my age are few and far between. I can honestly say I do not have a girl friend. Because of this, instead of spending my time at a club or a show, I am SITTING BY THE FIRE. And since I don't get anywhere, I don't meet anybody.

Perhaps you wonder who, and what, I am. I am 17 years of age, and graduated last year from high school. I am not a homely girl. I have rather good-looking clothes and consequently make a good appearance. But where and how is one to show herself off if she does nothing but SIT BY THE FIRE?

DISILLUSIONED.

WANTED BY OTHERS

Isn't that a peck of nonsense? Seventeen. Having good clothes. Being passably good to look at. Yet sitting by the fire. Many a girl is dying, Disillusioned, to have exactly what you have. A fire at which to toast marshmellows in the long winter evenings. Clothes in which to make a good appearance. Having enough looks to get by. And a high school diploma to wave in the face of depression.

Sizzling mackerel! What's the matter with you?

When I was 17, the railing of my home porch broke under the weight of Sunday afternoon callers. I pestered the life out of my next door neighbors answering telephone calls for me which came in on their wire because I did not have one of my own. I was always wondering how to get money enough to pay for the cleaning of my dresses. Not that I didn't have enough clothes. But then I was always wearing them.

This running about maybe didn't get me much concrete result. I was criticized enough for it, Lord knows. But at least I learned how to get along with people. I discovered how to lend an ear to other people's opinions. I found out the boy with the best clothes didn't always have the kindest heart.

I can't give it, cut and dry. Nothing I said then was immortal. None of the boys were wise men from the East even though they were breaking down railings.

SHOULD BE ACTIVE

But I was open-minded. That I know. I hadn't enough sense to be critical. I was too full of life to doubt that life was anything but good.

And that got me by.

I wasn't a beauty. I didn't have beautiful clothes. I didn't entertain the boys at dinner. Occasionally I gave them a doughnut and a glass of water.

But one thing, I will say, I was wasting no time loving myself.

The home fire had no appeal to me. Nor was there any chair in my mother's sitting room that could have held me night after night.

There was a longing inside of me that only activity with people of my own age could sate.

And that is what you haven't experienced, Disillusioned. You are spending too much time in introspection. You even go so far as to be wondering what I am thinking of you. I'M NOT THINKING AT ALL. Other than that you are too fine a girl to be wasting your charm on the living room fire. You haven't enough initiative to go out and tell the world how attractive you are.

And the next time you write me, I hope you have another story to tell.

Learn to Be "A Little Independent"—Fay King Tells Why

LEARN TO ACT AND THINK INDEPENDENTLY IF NEED BE.
YOU MUST COME WITH ME I CAN'T THINK OF GOING ALONE
SO DEPENDENT UPON OTHERS SHE CAN'T STAND TO SPEND THE LEAST TIME ALONE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Everyone should learn to be a little independent. To think and act for oneself at times.

There is nothing sadder than to see some persons who are utterly dependent upon others. They cannot make the least decision, or take a little walk by themselves. They are terrified to spend an evening alone, and cannot interest themselves or accomplish anything while alone.

We sometimes see an inseparable companionship between a husband and wife, or between a parent and child that is apt to mean tragic helplessness for the one left behind.

One can be fond of friends, and devoted to dear ones, without being slavishly dependent upon them.

No one should wish to be a hermit, but personally I would rather be a hermit than be too dependent on others.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

If Your Child Suffers From a Heart Ailment

Few ailments cause greater unhappiness and apprehension than heart trouble. I sympathize with the young mother who is told her beloved child has heart trouble. But in most cases there is no need for anxiety. With proper care and wise instruction the child will undoubtedly grow up to be a strong, happy and useful citizen.

Dr. Copeland

Of course, I do not wish to imply that heart disease is never a serious disorder. The fact is there are many forms of heart disease. Some are really serious and require the greatest care and careful nursing. Others are quickly benefited by proper care and the following of simple instructions.

"Heart murmur" is a common affliction of childhood. Heart murmur due to a "leak," as it is frequently called, produces an abnormal sound of the heart. It may be temporary, disappearing gradually as the child grows older. It may come and go during the active life of early childhood.

A permanent heart murmur is the result of an infection involving the valves of the heart. It follows ailments like acute rheumatic fever, tonsilitis and other infectious diseases. There may result permanent damage to the valves of the heart, a condition demanding careful medical supervision.

This type of heart murmur is much more common in children than we could wish. It is spoken of as an "organic murmur." Unfortunately, it may be a serious complication of such childhood diseases as pneumonia, scarlet fever and diphtheria. The prevention of these diseases will lead to a decrease in the number of heart murmur cases.

Since the prevention of these ailments is not always possible, of course, the important thing is to give the child immediate and proper treatment for all his physical ills. This is the duty of every parent. The importance of the rule cannot be over-stressed.

Bear in mind that every disease of childhood is more or less serious in the possible effects upon the future health. The danger is increased when the disease is neglected.

If a child complains of frequent sore throats, recurrent joint or muscle pains, do not ignore these signs but consult with your doctor. Nervousness, irritability, slight twitching and an unusual tendency to cry easily, are other danger signs that must not be neglected.

I cannot say enough about the danger of infection as an enemy of the heart of the child. Diseased and infected tonsils and adenoids, particularly, are possible sources of infection that should never be overlooked. Neglect of the temporary and permanent teeth may lead to heart defects.

Consult with your physician regularly. Protect your child against infections and thus against heart disease. We are living in an age of preventive medicine and should avail ourselves of all the benefits of modern science.

Lee Chow's 'Important' Conversation Turns to Grantland

There was a certain hint of complacence in Lee Chow's manner as he stepped aside for me to lead the way back into my study, which convinced me that at last he believed himself to be secure from intrusion while he talked to me.

Evidently he had not "swallowed whole" my story of my father's meticulous care of me, and had wished to secure himself against a possible "listening in." But patently he believed that his bolting of the library door would effectually keep my father from a possible visit to that room, and was congratulating himself accordingly.

Here I permitted myself a little private jubilation. Lee Chow did not know, as my father and I did, of a catch lock upon one of the balcony window screens, apparently tightly nailed down, enabling anyone familiar with it to enter the room from the porch outside. The young people fixed it up one summer for use in one of their trailing games, and we have never bothered to change it. By this means my father could enter the library, slip back the bolt and have the entire run of the room and hall, quite unsuspected.

It was this knowledge which enabled me to walk with a steady step ahead of Lee Chow, and to seat myself with apparent nonchalance in the chair he pulled out for me, opposite the one he took himself a second later. It helped me also to compose my face into a mask as the Chinese, whom for years I had liked and respected, began the conversation he had requested of me with the pertinent query:

"Why did you not go with Hugh—to the beach tonight?"

PARRIES QUESTION

Instinctively I parried.

"He did not ask me to go, for one thing," I said.

He made a little guttural sound of disgust.

"That is because you gave him no encouragement," he said, "and that yellow-haired devil gave him no chance to do anything but accept her offer, after the first opportunity to ask you had vanished. I was waiting to give him the signal to speak to you, when you told me you would not go."

"I am so sorry," I said. "I should not like to offend Hugh. He has been so good to all of us—such a staunch friend. But you see, don't you, that if I did not go with my husband I could not go with anyone else?"

MADGE OBJECTS

He stared at me with unwinking eyes for a long half minute.

"Yet your husband took another woman to the beach," he said slowly at last.

"Yes, he did," I answered slowly, "but really it was a situation forced upon him, a situation which—may I speak plainly?—would only be made infinitely worse by my accepting a similar invitation from Maj. Grantland."

"That," said Lee Chow sententiously, "is because you are not jealous of Miss Fairfax, while your husband is intensely jealous of my friend."

"I am sure," I said coldly, "that you do not realize how distasteful this conversation is to me, or how impossible it is that I continue it. I thought you had something important to discuss with me. If so, I am willing to hear it. But I tell you now that I will not discuss my husband's emotions—or Maj. Grantland's—or mine—any further."

"That is a very pretty sentiment," he said, "and most creditable to you. Yet I believe I can show you reasons why it would be to your interest—and what is more, to your husband's—for you to continue this discussion with me."

MACHINE KNITTED MODELS VS. HAND KNITS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

GIRLS WHO SIMPLY can't spend their new leisure on knitting, because they are more eager to wear clothes some place than sit at home and make them, will find a deceitful ally in the many machine-knitted models which look as if many hours of patient hand-work had gone into them. In every stitch known to needles, from Fair Isle to the lying-in hospital loops and clouds, these machine-made fabrics ape those made by the flying fingers of women.

Every color in the vast rainbow of skeins behind any yarn counter is utilized—if it's popular just now—by the machine-made models, so what? the more reckless girl may very well ask. Half an hour with a good saleswoman and a modest exchange of dollars will get her a swell-looking knitted costume ready for town or country just as fast as that!

* * *

NOW THAT THERE are lastex tricks let into knitted models where it seems important, the problem of cleaning such a frock dwindles to nothing. They simply don't go to the cleaner dresses that fit, and come out broken down hammocks; neither do they squinch up to muchoir size.

And another cunning trick of the new knitted frocks makes them stay in shape successfully while they are being worn. They don't bulge and cling awkwardly the way many hand-knit models do, for their stitches have a firmness equal to any other loomed fabric, which prevents these annoying habits.

There are a great many sports models to be had, costumes which combine a jumper with a coat and skirt, or those that are merely a snappy coat and skirt with which one wears a cloth shirt. Colors are grand, giddy, fairly daring.

* * *

THERE ARE SPECTATOR models that will take a woman into the country very successfully for a spring week-end, and be useful for resort wear later on. But for most women at this time of year, the light, pretty frocks and suits in knitted silk boucle are the most useful. They look so fresh and hopeful beneath a fur coat, and they come in such appealing flower tones. A felt or straw fabric hat that harmonizes with the coat, and matches gloves, shoes and bags, is all one needs to be quickly in step with a useful spring outfit while winter's back is being broken.

Gold, various greens, shrimp pink combined with blue or black, beige, rose red, sapphire blue, and all the other blues and gray, are some of the favored shades.

The perennially welcome Norfolk design is the theme of this knitted rose red golf suit. It has the four useful pockets, the skillful freedom pleats tucked under the shoulders, and a neat waistline. The skirt is gored to a nice flare. The knitted scarf is red, white and black, and detachable.

The suit to the right is formal enough for city wear. It is knitted with a diagonal stripe from gold and brown angora, and it has a white angora jumper with a draw string neck.

A fresh version of the cardigan suit is on this golfer. It combines royal blue and cherry red in its three pieces, and it is patriotically fastened with white buttons. The skirt is provided with kick pleats for walking freedom. Note the becoming pointed pattern at waist and wrist. It's stunning.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Spoon and Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

With shortcakes of all kinds we have the perfect opportunity of using the double silver service . . . the dessert spoon in the right hand, and the dessert fork in the left hand. The fork is an aid to the spoon, and with the spoon we can eat the delicious juice of the berries. Observe carefully and you will see that this is the service given you in a well-appointed home, and it is a comfort, too, to see that this is the service that nowadays is increasingly given us in restaurants and in hotels.

Autographing Photograph

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me as to a suitable line or so to write on my picture? I am graduating and would like to give my picture to a few intimate friends. C.

The message that you write on your photographs depends so much, naturally, on the degree of friendship that you have with the person to whom you are giving the photograph that it is difficult to suggest the exact wording. But there are certain words and phrases that you might keep in mind. For instance, the word "greetings"—there is a charming and warm-hearted word that is appropriate for many kinds of messages. "Friendly" too is another warm-hearted happy word. And combined they carry pleasant connotations . . . "Friendly greetings." This can be made more special by "raising" the "friendly" to "friendliest."

To closer friends you might write "With dearest love," or "With devotion and deep friendship."

But I like most of all either the un-autographed photograph, which delightfully indicates that the person to whom you give the photograph will take the message for granted, or, second best, the message "To Florence from Bess" which has also a taking-for-granted, from-me-to-you quality.

Household Hints

Paint your lowest cellar step white and it will serve as a guide when entering the cellar at night.

To keep moths away try the following: Mix borax and powdered sugar and place in your clothes closets and under furniture cushions.

Handkerchiefs will have a faint scent of violets when ironed if a little orrisroot is tied in a muslin bag and placed in the water in which they are boiled.

"I Feel Full of Pep!"

Why Suffer?

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets enough for the way they have helped me," says Mrs. M. Grill, 1001 E. Clay Street, Shamokin, Pa. "I always suffered a great deal of pain each month. I felt tired and sick all the time. In the morning I was dizzy and faint. Usually I had to stay in bed a day, sometimes only half a day. A friend of mine told me about these Tablets and they helped me very much. I suffer very little now and I feel full of pep."

Secret Agent X-9 Clue Contest

The Case of the Three Letters

Clue No. 2 The House in the Suburbs

Following the instructions of Secret Agent X-9, Angus McKay, the well-known financier, had placed in the columns of the morning paper an answer to the mysterious letter he received threatening to kidnap his only son, Malcolm.

In the meantime, X-9 had enlisted the postoffice department in the search for the mysterious author of the threats, keeping the whole investigation strictly secret. Finally his efforts were rewarded. The threatening missive was discovered to have been mailed by one of four tenants in a certain small apartment house on the outskirts of the city.

This apartment house contained only four bachelor flats. All four flats were occupied, but X-9 felt completely checkmated when he had investigated the affairs of the four men living in the house. Apartment A was occupied by Joel Hardy, an elderly man retired from the Navy, with a blameless record, and apartment B belonged to William Mead, the repair man of the local radio shop, whom neighbors had known for 10 or 12 years. In C lived Archibald Hallett, for many years instructor of English at the Junior High School, and in D, Louis Steinfeld, a well-known piano player and song plugger in the large music store on Main street.

A second letter was received in reply to the millionaire's advertisement and was immediately turned over to the redoubtable secret agent. "McKay," it ran, "Drive to Phillip's Wharf on Lake Winnebang at exactly 10:00 p. m. tomorrow. The yacht Porpoise is moored at this wharf. Go on board and place fifty thousand dollars in unmarked twenty-dollar bills in the lifeboat on the left-hand side of the yacht. If you warn the police or bring anyone it is all off.—Ruthless."

X-9 looked triumphantly at McKay, when he had finished reading the letter. "We will play along with him," he said quietly, "we hold some cards too."

(To Be Concluded Tomorrow.)

$25 in Cash Prizes for The Best Solutions of 'The Case of the 3 Letters'

The purpose of the "Secret Agent X-9" three-chapter serial stories is for the boy or girl reader to find the hidden clues and solve the mystery in a letter of not more than 100 words. The most nearly correct solution will be awarded a cash prize of $5 and the 20 next best solutions submitted will be awarded $1 each.

This contest is open to all boys and girls living in the reading area of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Your solution must be in the office of the "Secret Agent X-9" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, March 16. The prize winners will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph Saturday, March 24.

"The Case of the Three Letters" is the second of a series of contest mystery stories, each to run three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The prize awards for each week will total $25 in cash—$5 for the first best solution and $1 each for the 20 next best. Open to boys and girls up to 17 years of age. Watch for the first chapter of the next "Secret Agent X-9" contest story in the Sun-Telegraph next Monday.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

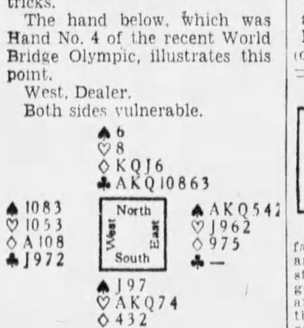
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Protecting Partner's Hand by an Early Shift

In defending hands against opposing game or Slam contracts the astute player does not merely look ahead to the next trick but tries to visualize the hand as a complete unit. The one underlying idea in the mind of an expert defensive player should be, particularly in rubber Bridge, to try to visualize from the bidding and a view of the Dummy just where the setting trick or tricks are coming from and then plan his line of defense in an effort to win these tricks.

The hand below, which was Hand No. 4 of the recent World Bridge Olympic, illustrates this point.

West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	Pass
Pass

The above bidding needs no comment.

In the play East opens the spade King, and now should immediately shift to a heart. Careful reasoning will show the logic of this play. It is practically impossible from the bidding that North should hold another spade, and this conclusion is confirmed when West plays the three-spot to Trick 1, failing to start an echo.

East, looking at his own void in the trump suit, has considerable hope of finding a well-guarded honor in that suit in his partner's hand. Naturally, if the Declarer is able to play a high trump from his own hand while there are still entries left to Dummy, he will subsequently be able to take a finesse against West's honor; and a second spade lead will put the Declarer in his own hand and enable him to lay down a high trump honor first. The heart lead puts Declarer in Dummy immediately, and since the Declarer has a singleton heart he is in the Dummy for the first and last time. Since it would take a phenomenal bit of card reading by North to enable him to know that he should finesse against the Knave of clubs on the first round, practically all players will immediately take one diamond discard and then lead a club to the Ace, eventually being forced to lose one diamond and one club trick.

East's shift to hearts at Trick 2 is his best play even if North has two hearts. The heart lead at this point removes a later entry from Dummy in case North has need both to finesse against a trump honor in the West hand and also to discard a loser on one of Dummy's high hearts.

DANDRUFF
Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get some plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). This simple remedy never fails.

MAN, 82, HURT; BLAST PROBED

Robert McMillan, 82, burned in a fire that followed a gas explosion in his one-story frame home at 607 Vinemont street, Westwood, last night, was reported in serious condition in South Side Hospital today.

Carried out by neighbors, the aged man was taken to the hospital by police. The gas in the house had been shut off at the meter and an investigation was begun into the cause of the blast, police said. The house was wrecked. The flames were extinguished by firemen, who estimated the damage at $1,000.

YOUNG RINGLING TO RUN CIRCUS

SARASOTA, Fla., March 13.—(AP.)—Robert E. Ringling, familiar to Chicago Civic Opera audiences as a baritone, has given up the aria for the arena—the opera for the circus.

A son of one of the original seven Ringling brothers, he will replace his Uncle John—last of the seven brothers—when the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey combined circus opens its annual season in New York soon.

Ill health has forced John Ringling's retirement from active participation in the circus business this year.

Buyers to Hear NRA Code Expert

George A. Renard, executive secretary of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, will address Pittsburgh purchasing agents on "NRA Code Activities" at a dinner in the Roosevelt Hotel tonight.

Renard is recognized as an expert on the NRA code situation. In past months he spent considerable time in Washington co-operating with committees under Gen. Johnson in formulating many of the codes.

RUSHMORE PLAN SUPPORTED BY WOMEN

Supporting the action taken by their national organization, two Pittsburgh group leaders today added their voice to the ever-increasing praise for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition that seeks to find the nation's epic written in 600 words.

The support was extended by Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. V. C. Schaaf, president of the Allegheny County Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Inspired by the purpose of the competition being sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, Mrs. Charles L. Yost, president of the Allegheny County Auxiliary of the American Legion, did not wait for national participation of her group but announced that she will urge the local executive committee to conduct an "internal" quest with the organization's committee conducting the preliminary judging of members' entries to find the best text copy for submission to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee.

NATIONAL UNIT

Mrs. Cochrane's organization is affiliated with the National Council of Women, which under the leadership of Lena Madesin Phillips, will urge every unit of the national group to conduct a competition within its own local group. The same is true of the V. F. W. Auxiliary which has Capt. Walter Irving Joyce leading the movement.

The National Council of Women includes, besides the Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the Service Star Legion.

The memorial, planned on the peaks of the Black Hills in South Dakota, should be a symbol of the greatness of a people who aspire to eternal things, Mrs. Cochrane said. Enthusiastic for the active participation by her organization, she added:

"It is altogether fitting and proper that our nation should perpetuate its ideals. The memorial will comprise a graven tradition for the inspiration of future generations."

Mrs. Schaaf, informed on the National V. F. W. Auxiliary action, said:

"It is a splendid opportunity for our members to share in the work of preparing a historical message that will live through ages. We certainly should give 100 per cent support in Allegheny County to this movement that has received the recognition of our national headquarters."

AUXILIARY TO ACT

Consideration of local participation by the Legion Auxiliary will be discussed tomorrow, Mrs. Yost announced.

Educators likewise are daily being added to the long list of enthused workers who will lead students, patriotic and civic group members in active participation. Throughout the Tri-State district, school heads are preparing plans for handling entries from the students. New details are being published every day in the Sun-Telegraph. From time to time, the complete set of rules, awards for adult and student prizes are announced, and many special articles will be prepared to aid the entrant in his study of the nine points of American history upon which the inscription will be based.

Every patriotic and civic organization, every school and college is invited to take an active part. An inquiry to the Mount Rushmore committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph will bring complete information on the competition.

Stop that laxative habit

Medicine-laxatives often churn about in the stomach for hours—just because they can't get by that pylorus valve.

Not only that, most medicine laxatives work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract—lose their force when taken regularly—compel you to keep increasing the dose.

That' why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve—permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—get results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces), 25c—large bottles (3 times the quantity), 50c. At all druggists.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The "Signs of Spring Department" has taken on a new lease on life since the recent snow fall.

Lawrence Fraibbert makes a bid for the chosen circle of spring reporting globe trotters with the information that he saw an owl sitting on the crossties of a telegraph pole in front of his house on Stanton avenue.

That bird can't be so wise.

Mrs. Howard Harvey enters via the butterfly route. She found in the back yard of her home in Swissvale a beautiful brown flutterer with yellow-dotted wings edged in yellow.

It took J. Howard Barnes, of Cecil, a long time to think of this one.

Shortly after the first of the year, there was an item here that the numerals, referring to the date, could not be written in sequence again for over a hundred years, to wit, 1-2-34, in the year 2034.

It has just crystallized in his mind that it could be done again in about 11 years, for instance, January 23, 1945, can be donated as 1-23-45.

Better late than never, Howard, and many thanks.

Mrs. T. Muirhead reports that she has about 25 jigsaw puzzles for the hospitals. The Sun-Telegraph truck will call. You'll never know how much they are appreciated.

Thank you very much.

Mrs. W. Rowley has a true story that parallels the story told by Ripley of the pencil point that worked its way through a man's body.

Her husband, in 1904 was accidentally jabbed in the left side by a pencil. The point broke off and Mr. Rowley searched for it.

Gene & Glenn Get Big Break

By AIRCASTER

They are known in their Cleveland neighborhoods as Messrs. Carroll and Rowell, and the fact that both gents are going on the NBC air five nights a week, much like Amos 'n' Andy, beginning about mid-April, wouldn't mean much to the habitual radio eavesdropper, unless you added that Messrs. Carroll and Rowell, are those two Mid-West idols, Gene and Glenn.

Not only will they go coast-to-coast, in behalf of a razor blade, but will be audible over virtually all the NBC short-wave plants, so as to entertain audiences in Honolulu, Melbourne, New Zealand, and points north and west, far removed from these United States.

Hitherto, Gene and Glenn's nocturnal performances have been pretty well limited to Cleveland, and their network chores to a. m. hours.

This new program comes as their biggest break. It means world popularization of the famous "Lena" and most of the other characters known to fans in the Mid-West as well as the King-fish and Brother Crawford are to the Amos 'n' Andy legions.

B. A. ROLFE OUT

The Troubadours and Fred Allen's show, which happen to be financed by the same patron, probably will be merged into a single hour, with the set-ups practically intact.

The present notion is to continue them on Wednesday nights, with only a station announcement separating the two productions.

B. A. Rolfe leaves his Saturday program with the March 24 broadcast. Thereafter, at WCAE on Saturdays, the music will be supplied by Don Voorhees, who will also conjure a half hour variety show with Al Trahan as comedian.

The other half of this program will be a 30-minute period at WJZ, beginning April 3, at 8:30, featuring Harry Salter's orchestra, his campus choir, Conrad Thibault, Lois Bennett and Marrie Dressing.

Ted Kaye, m. c. on the KQV Revue at 9 these mornings, is Louie Kaufman's younger brother, and he's "jake."

If there was anything funny in Cantor's gag about taxes and dependants, Sunday night, I'd like someone to explain the joke.

"I have no income tax to pay this year," the conceited Cantor said, in effect, "because Wallington and Rubinoff are dependent on me."

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish tang which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Read How Amazing Mineral Concentrate Richest in Newer Form of "FOOD IODINE" Is Building Up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Folks Where All Else Fails.

Just read a few of these reports taken from thousands from all over the country concerning Kelp-a-Malt, the amazing new mineral concentrate.

"It will be a week this noon since I began using Kelp-a-Malt and I have gained 5 pounds and feel much better."—T. W. H. . . . "Gained 5 pounds the first package. I'm very much pleased."—D. E. G. . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelp-a-Malt I have a hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelp-a-Malt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life."—W. D. C. . . . "Gained 8 pounds with one package of Kelp-a-Malt and feel 100% better."—Mrs. W. J. S.

These are just a few excerpts from thousands of letters telling us how this newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood—nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain.

Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods, have recently been discovered to be often lacking not only in food iodine but in many of the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

Kelp-a-Malt, only recently discovered, contains practically every mineral essential to normal well being. But most important of all, it is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine—natural iodine not made from iodides or other chemicals which oftentimes prove toxic, but the same iodine that is present in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost national health problem. Kelp-a-Malt is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant-to-take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1600 pounds of beef, 1387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper for rich blood, vitality and strength than a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots sulphur, sodium, potassium and other essential minerals.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. 200 jumbo size tablets, which are 4 to 5 times larger than ordinary size tablets, cost but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

CHURCH SURVEY BEING PLANNED FOR CITY

A survey of costs of character-building activities of Pittsburgh churches, performed without expense to the taxpayers, is contemplated by Dr. R. H. Martin, president of the National Reform Association.

Dr. Martin has just completed such a survey of 21 churches of Beaver Falls, the object being to prove the services rendered by the churches entitle them to a Sabbath day, free of competition by commercial pursuits.

In Beaver Falls Dr. Martin found that the estimated value of buildings and grounds was $1,425,143. The expenditures of these churches last year totaled $117,657. In addition he placed interest on the money invested and depreciation at $260,171. Voluntary services of teachers, choirs and others were valued at $50,000, making a total estimated expenditure of $300,000, all borne by private contribution.

He explained:

"When the church, a non-profit institution, renders this service to the entire community, without public expense, should not the church be given the right of way on Sunday?

"Is it not inconsiderate and unfair for commercial amusement, sports and other business interests whose objective is to make money rather than to build character, and which have six other days of the week to come into the Lord's day and compete with the church for the patronage of the people and thus make it more difficult for the church to render its character-building service?

"We ask for the church and other character-building agencies a square deal on the Lord's day."

AUDIENCE BOOS STOKOWSKI

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—(AP.)—Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, sought to place Ravel's "Bolero" on a request program—and his audience howled him down.

He still has hope of succeeding.

Stokowski told last night's symphony audience that its vote favored Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, which will be played on another program. He inquired how many wished to drop it from the request program and hear the "runner-up."

Someone insisted that he name the proposed successor and howls greeted the identification. So Stokowski says he will put the matter up to his audience later in the week.

POLITICS

Martin Tries to Stem Flood of Candidates.

By MARK SHIELDS

Still bewildered by the sharp differences existing over who shall be its candidate for Governor, the regular Republican organization expects no announcement this week from any aspirant whom it now is in the humor to support.

Mr. Shields

Reports that Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon might tonight in Philadelphia toss his hat in the ring are not credited by Pittsburghers extremely close to Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State Chairman, and himself mentioned as a possible compromise among the contending elements. If Gen. Shannon makes a positive gesture within the next three or four days it will come as a distinct surprise.

Pittsburgh political circles buzzed today because of the arrival here together of Speaker Grover C. Talbot and Charles Carroll, former head of the Young Republicans. Carroll for some time has been boosting the candidacy of former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, for Governor, and Congressman Louis McFadden, of the Fifteenth District, for the United States Senate. McFadden spiked part of the story yesterday by saying he was not a candidate for the Senate, but would seek re-election to the House.

Eastern stories put another link in the tentative ticket with the report that Talbot, a member of the State Legislature from Delaware County, might join it as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Some Pittsburghers affected to disdain the rumor—and it may never eventuate—but the fact remains that Carroll and Talbot are traveling together.

* * *

Talbot Has Friends, Record for Fairness

Talbot has some powerful friends among business interests in the East, and he was regarded by the legislators as fair in his rulings despite a strict firmness. Councilman John J. Kane, Democrat, when resigning from the Legislature to take his place in the Pittsburgh city government, said from the floor that Mr. Talbot had been impartial and was one of the strongest and most capable men in the Republican party.

This statement was made despite differences in governmental policy between Kane and Talbot which were fundamental.

Gen. Martin before leaving Pittsburgh today for a renewal of conferences with Eastern leaders in Harrisburg and Philadelphia, said there was plenty of time for gubernatorial candidates to announce. Indeed, the state chairman said he felt announcements now would be a bit precipitate, though only two weeks remain before the deadline.

What Gen. Martin wishes to avert is an influx of candidates before something as near harmony as is possible this year can be achieved. That will be easier, from a professional political standpoint, if it is done before candidates announce, and does not necessitate applying the hook to too many patriots.

The public view and the practical political view may differ.

Attorney Rejects Democratic Slate Job

Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, has written Meredith Meyers, chairman of the committee handling the campaign of the Copeland-Morris slate in the Democratic primary, declining to serve as a member of the executive committee. Jones' name was made public by Meyers, though the Pittsburgher asserts he had expressly said in a letter nearly a month ago that he would decline any such assignment.

In plain language Jones said he was against all slates in the primary, asserting that there was little difference in the way Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, for Governor, and Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, for the Senate, had been picked, from the manner in which the regular organization first selected George Earle, of Philadelphia, and Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, for the same offices.

Jones said that the system followed was not conducive to harmony or the furtherance of party victory next November. His position was that Guffey should not attempt to be the whole show in party affairs, through his Washington connections while on the other hand the anti-organization crowd was not justified in trying to toss him out, lock, stock and barrel.

In past political activities Jones has been associated with Sedgwick Kistler, national committeeman, and bitter foe of Guffey, which may have made Meyers feel use of his name was warranted. As the thing turns, the Lewistown publisher has pulled a political boner.

Copeland Starts Fence-Fixing Tour

Judge Copeland, following conferences in Pittsburgh yesterday with some of his lieutenants, today began a swing through the southeastern counties trying to fix up his fences. He intends to cover the whole state quietly between now and the first of April, when the campaign should start through the orthodox political meetings for the public.

Earle, now serving as minister to Austria, is expected to return to Philadelphia April 5, resigning his place with the federal government. By that time the situation will be settled, the last day for withdrawal of nominating petitions will have passed, and Mr. Earle can begin to acquaint the Democrats of the state with himself.

COUNTY BOARD PAYS COSTS OF BAR PROBE

Committee Secretary Given $4,988.85 To Settle Bills

Retreating from their former decision to let their own accountants settle the bills of the Allegheny County Bar Association Committee investigating professional conduct of members of the bar, the County Commissioners have paid in full the $4,988.85 due the committee. The Commissioners changed their mind at a "back room" conference February 7, with President Judge Ambrose B. Reid of Common Pleas Court and Gifford K. Wright, chairman of the committee.

In paying off the bills contracted by the committee, the County Commissioners authorized payment of the $4,988.85 and this was turned over to Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the committee, only after he had drawn 32 checks for this amount to various individuals to whom the money was due. He presented the checks to Murray Snyder, Commissioners' Clerk, who mailed them to the 32 persons.

Of the total amount paid the committee, $2,783 was for salary for Anderson.

The County Commissioners a year ago held up payment of the bills of the committee, after their chief investigator, Leo A. Riordan, had reported that bills submitted by Anderson had been duplicated and "padded." Auditors for the Commissioners checked the bills and warrants and reported that while there were errors and duplications in the accounts, there was nothing to indicate an attempt to defraud the county of money.

As the result of the Commissioners paying the bills, Anderson today issued the following statement:

"The County Commissioners have today paid all the disputed accounts of the Bar Association's Investigation Committee. Their action is a final and conclusive answer to the criticism leveled at the committee and at me as its secretary."

MORE PETITIONS REQUESTED

A new spurt in requests for petitions struck the County Elections Bureau today, and the field of politics was enlarged by many securing signatures to run in the primary.

Franklin McSorley, of the Fourth Ward, entered the race for Legislature, while James R. George, who lost last year in a close North Side race has again secured petitions for the Legislature.

CONGRESS

STATE SENATE

Thirty-eighth District—James W. Welsh (Rep.-Dem.), Nineteenth Ward; Daniel J. Sweeney (Dem.), Second Ward.

STATE COMMITTEE

LEGISLATURE

Sixth District—Robert J. Lyon (Rep.-Ind.), Eighteenth Ward.

Seventh District—Roy E. Noel (Rep.-Dem.-Ind.), Twenty-fifth Ward; H. E. Reynolds (Dem.-Ind.), Twenty-second Ward; Samuel McIntyre (Rep.-Dem.), Twenty-fifth Ward; E. W. Bauer (Rep.), Twenty-fourth Ward; John Hosek, Jr. (Rep.), Twenty-fourth Ward; A. J. Stock (Rep.-Dem.), Twenty-fifth Ward; James R. George (Rep.-Dem.-Ind.), Twenty-fifth Ward.

Tenth District—George H. Crompton (Rep.), Forward Township; Edward F. Cassidy (Rep.-Dem.-Ind.), North Braddock.

Thirteenth District—Ben Strauch (Rep.), Etna.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 13.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, just as the air mail stopped, that famous new streamlined train pulled into our village.

Will Rogers.

It looks like more than an ad. It looks like a fact. Railroads are waking up now they are speeding up and giving great service, and getting their rates down, finally competing with the bus and truck now instead of just cussing 'em.

Trouble with American transportation is that you can get somewhere quicker than you can think of a reason for going there. What we need now is a new excuse to go somewhere.

Yours,
WILL.

CITY PAYROLL NOTED BY COUNCIL

Slash of $100,000 Provided, Magee Lone Opponent

The much-debated 1934 salary bill was passed by Council today, calling for a net cut in the city payroll of $100,000.

Six Councilmen voted in favor of the measure. Councilman W. A. Magee, whose demands for a drastic downward revision went unheeded, cast the lone vote against it. President Robert Garland was out of the city and Councilman W. J. Soost was absent.

Mayor McNail is expected to approve the bill.

As a last-minute stroke of ecomomy, Council amended the bill yesterday to eliminate the Bureau of Fire Prevention, cutting the fire prevention chief, four inspectors and a clerk out of the ordinance.

MAGEE SCORES BILL

Magee made a speech in which he flayed the salary bill as being powerless to meet the situation now faced by the city. He pointed out that for the first two months of this year, in spite of vigorous efforts to collect delinquent taxes, the net result has been a decerase of $200,000 in current and delinquent tax collections.

As to reducing the payroll, Magee said:

"After six weeks of consideration, the Finance Committee produced a bill with about 30 eliminated officers and about 440 staggered positions. All this amounts to about $300,000 in the $9,000,000 payroll. As the Finance Committee went on with its deliberations it forgot its purpose of balancing the budget and shifted its discussion to salary and wage equities among various classes of city employes."

The 10 per cent increase to the employes making $1,500 or less and the failure of Council to agree to take a voluntary cut in its own salaries reduced the $300,000 saving to $100,000, Magee stated. The salary increases, he said, were made at the top and at the bottom at the expense of the middle-class positions. He added:

"It is little more than a salary and wage equalization bill and even in that respect is a misapprehension of fact."

DEFENDS PAY RAISES

Councilman Walter R. Demmler defended the salary increase for the low-salaried employes, but added that his vote for the salary ordinance does not mean he approves every position set up in it. He said:

"If we are to have efficiency and economy in city government, it must be got through the directors of departments. I have it on good authority that in one department alone the Director could save a quarter of a million dollars a year. It is here we must look for savings."

Garland spoke against the elimination of the Fire Prevention Bureau on the ground that it might bring about an increase in insurance rates. The object of the bureau has been to check buildings for unsafe conditions.

Councilman John M. Huston moved that it go out of the budget, and stated that Fire Chief John Heinz had said the Prevention Bureau is not needed.

ALLIGATOR GIFT TO GARLAND

A live alligator, more than six feet long, has been added to the circus at City Hall.

Council President Robert Garland received the reptile while Council was in session yesterday. It was brought into the room in a crate, and appeared to be asleep during the greater part of the budget meeting.

It was sent to Garland by Roy C. Huntsman, an engineer, who brought it recently from a Florida swamp. It was shipped from St. Petersburg, and delivered in Council chamber by an express company.

President Garland turned it over to the superintendent of parks, and its destination is the Highland Park Zoo.

ASK JOB O. K. FOR JACKSON

Nearly 4,000 Negroes have petitioned Council to confirm Mayor McNair's appointment of Charles E Jackson, Negro, as police magistrate.

Most of the petitioners names were signed under the heading of the City-County Democratic Colored Organization. They asked that immediate action be taken on Jackson, stating if he were not suitable they were ready to submit another name.

The Jackson appointment has been tabled in Finance Committee.

McNair Cabinet Hears Housing, Car Problems

Plea Made to Build Bungalows on City Land

Streetcar transfers, model housing plans, police protection, jobs for Polish-American citizens, sinking funds and forcing of tax liens are a few of the things Mayor McNair's cabinet members have to think about today.

All these and a number of other matters, came before the cabinet meeting yesterday.

Attorney Kivie Wolfe made a plea for housing needy families in bungalow houses on city property. He characterized the houses as "efficiency apartments under a roof," presenting several plans by which they could be financed.

BEECHVIEW DELEGATION

A delegation from Beechview, headed by Susan Scheif, chairman of the Nineteenth Ward Women's Democratic Club, wanted the street car transfer system extended into their district. The Mayor promised co-operation.

Safety Director Ralph E. Smith said additional fire trucks were to be placed on the South Side, and that the question of more police was being considered.

Copies of a letter stating that Polish-American citizens had been ignored in the matter of jobs were ordered made for directors.

CLAIMS CWA DAMAGE

The Mayor said he thought it would be a good idea to force the city's tax lien on delinquent properties about which there had been complaints. He was informed the departments of Safety, Health and Works were busy on the subject of slum demolition.

A report was asked on the advisability of buying city bonds with a sinking fund surplus.

An aged woman was promised relief on what she claimed was CWA damage to her property.

$50 in Prizes Weekly for News Tips

Are you alert? Do you wish to make your alertness pay? The Sun-Telegraph is presenting the opportunity. Every week it is offering a total of $50 in prizes for NEWS TIPS telephoned to the News Tip Editor, Grant 6500.

If you know of any accident, of a business merger, of a big building project—that is NEWS. Watch especially for unusual stories about children and animals and for stories that lend themselves to interesting pictures.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

M'NAIR PLANS MORE LAYOFFS

Department heads may release city workers for 30 days without permission from the Civil Service Commission.

McNair announced his furlough plan after City Treasurer James P. Kirk reported that tax collections for January and February of this year are running less than those for the same period in 1933.

Taxes collected during the first two months of last year totaled $8,078,674, as compared with $7,776,990 in 1934.

Delinquent taxes collected this year up to March 1 amounted to $643,591, an increase of $93,282 over the same period last year. A higher revenue from miscellaneous sources resulted from liquor license fees, which came to $186,000.

Rules for Prize Spelling Bee Outlined

1—Participants will be anyone not now in school or college as a student or teacher.

2—Spelling will be oral.

3—Proper names will not be used.

4—The speller will be expected to pronounce the word before he attempts to spell it.

5—Words will be repeated or defined at the request of contestants.

6—Correction of spelling will not be permitted after a word has been completed.

7—The misspelled word will not be given to the next in order.

8—The pronouncer will be the judge of the correct spelling, subject to an appeal to the judges.

9—Two captains will be chosen who will select teams from names of entrants.

10—Webster's New International Dictionary will be considered authority.

CONTESTS OPEN IN COUNTY AND CITY

High Orchestra to Play At Match in Duquesne

Men and women throughout Allegheny County are studying the dictionary today getting ready to go back to school for one night to compete in the county-wide, old-fashioned spelling bee, which is being sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Spelling matches have already been scheduled in Pittsburgh's 12 high schools, while the 118 county school districts are rapidly completing arrangements for their contests. Westinghouse High School and four county districts are holding "spell-downs" tonight.

To the county's best speller and "runner-up" will go a trip to Harrisburg Wednesday, April 4, at the expense of the Sun-Telegraph to compete for the state championship. To the next three best spellers will go these money prizes:

Fifth prize $10.

STILL TIME TO ENTER

There is still time to be a contestant providing the "spell-down" in your district has not been held. Most of the bees will be held the last of the week and Monday, so send your name to your nearest school principal and vie for one of the prizes.

Anyone not now in school or college as a student or teacher can participate. Other rules of the contest will be found elsewhere on this page. Also you will find the times for preliminary matches in the city and the outside districts.

Hundreds of persons the length and breadth of the county have entered the bee, declaring they can spell all the trick words and the "jawbreakers."

COUNTY FINALS SCHEDULED

C. W. Peters, assistant superintendent of county schools, who is directing the 118 county matches, today urged the principals in these sections to send him or the Sun-Telegraph the time for their contests and the winners as soon as possible.

The county finals will be held at Schenley High School at 8 p. m. next Tuesday.

Duquesne's bee is being held tonight under the direction of the Parent-Teacher Association at the Duquesne High School. The high school orchestra will play for the affair.

Etna, Ingram and North Versailles Township will also hold "spell-downs" tonight.

PIONEERS HELD SPELLING BEES

A spelling bee in what was America's frontier region in 1833 is recalled in this month's issue of the Educational Bulletin, published by the Pennsylvania State Educational Association.

The article states that in those early days the log schoolhouse was the scene of public meetings, elections, lectures, cyphering matches, "spell-downs" and other cultural-social events.

Then it adds:

"School affairs were matters of common knowledge. Who didn't remember the night when Deacon Jones spelled the schoolmaster down on 'phthalimide'!"

Mackrell Named Boyd Toastmaster

Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills, will be toastmaster of the testimonial dinner to be given for Detective Capt. Frank R. Boyd, Thursday night in the B. P. O. Elks Building, Seventh street and Duquesne way, Joseph P. Devlin, general chairman, announced.

Devlin said about 600 persons were expected to attend the dinner, which marks 20 years of service for Capt. Boyd with the city.

THE FOUR-ROOM MODEL BUNGALOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION NEAR THE JAIL AT THE START OF LIBERTY BRIDGE'S RAMP

The first of the frame bungalows that Mayor McNair proposes to erect here and there on vacant city property to rent at $10 a month each to care for homeless people. Each house costs about $700 to build—and this one is built on property for which the city paid $33 a square foot (a lot about 55 feet square thus would cost about $100,000!) This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BANK SHORTAGE REPAYMENT DEBATED

Question of making up the estimated $200,000 shortage in the funds of the closed Jefferson County National Bank, Brookville, is being considered by Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, it was learned today.

Rumors that a special bill calling for the government to repay trust depositors, who lost money may be introduced in Congress, persist.

Meanwhile investigation of the shortage is in the hands of United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, in Pittsburgh, and Leonard B. Shannon, former president and conservator of the bank, lies suffering from a nervous breakdown in the Miseracordia Hospital, Philadelphia.

SHANNON'S CONDITION

Shannon's condition late yesterday was described by a hospital official as "delicate, but not critical." He entered the hospital last November "a physical and mental wreck," the official said, adding:

"Since that time his condition has varied. One day he is improved; the next day his condition grows more serious."

It was in November that the governmental audit of the bank's books for the period Shannon was conservator — from March until November, 1933 — was begun. The report of that audit, now in the hands of the Comptroller, reveals the shortage, indicates violations of the national banking laws and shows that about half of the trust deposits of $94,000, made since the bank's operations were restricted, are tied up, it is understood.

NEW AUDIT PLANNED

Before prosecution in the case, now more than four months old, can be undertaken, another audit must be made for the Department of Justice through United States Attorney Dumbauld, officials said yesterday.

The case was referred to the Attorney General by the Comptroller of the Currency in November, and given to Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant in charge of the prosecution of gangsters and racketeers, files show. It was turned over to United States Attorney Dumbauld January 17.

When the bank closed at the time of the national bank holiday last March the bank had deposits of $1,413,000 and surplus of $213,000. Despite anticipation of a quick reorganization and early reopening, only 25 per cent of the money in the 800 segregated trust deposits has been paid. Nothing has been paid on deposits made before the moratorium. Another 25 per cent dividend is in view, Comptroller O'Connor said. Stockholders have been asked to pay 100 per cent of their holdings this month.

NAMED CONSERVATOR

When the moratorium was declared, Shannon was named conservator and bonded for $50,000. In November it became apparent no quick dividend would be paid to depositors and that the bank was unable to pay even trust deposits received since March.

Shannon left for the Philadelphia hospital; E. B. Howard, of Tulsa, Okla., was named receiver, and Leon J. Gell, working out of O'Connor's office started the audit which disclosed the shortage. Two weeks ago an involuntary bankruptcy action was filed against Shannon by Attorney W. N. Conrad, who claims to represent approximately half of the banker's creditors.

Shannon, 50 years old and the father of 12 children, was taken to Miseracordia Hospital quietly by his family. His wife remained with him constantly until the second week of February when she was called home by illness of two of the couple's children, one of whom required an operation. The banker's illness is described as a nervous rather than a physical condition.

West Park Thugs Beat, Rob Youth

Howard Langfitt, 24, of 922 Columbus avenue, reported to police that he was slugged and robbed of his wallet by two men as he was walking in West Park early today. The wallet contained $11. He was treated at the Allegheny General Hospital for a slight scalp wound.

'EXTENDED' MEALS EXPLAINED

Helpful Ideas for Daily Home Diet Presented

In every housewife's mind lurks the fear that some day special company will drop in around meal-time and find her short. What to do about it, when the store's are all closed and there really isn't time to prepare another main dish? Well stocked shelves will, of course, help. Then, too, many dishes will lend themselves to what is known as an extended dinner, enlarging the meal by adding perhaps vegetables or potatoes to some dish you planned to cook alone.

Most dishes can be transformed much in the same way as the shad-roe, awarded today's $5 prize. The shad-roe could be prepared in the usual simple way, but Mrs. J. M. Votaw makes it go farther by utilizing a can of mushrooms from the pantry shelf. Other recipes, be they for the main course or dessert can be treated in a similar manner.

If it's cake you plan to finish off the meal with and you have just enough to go part way around, get out a can of sliced peaches and whip some top milk. By slicing your cake very thin, you'll have plentiful dessert of peach shortcake.

Certain of your favorite recipes are sure to be as helpful as Mrs. Votaw's first prize winner. Send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, so she can place them at the disposal of the thousands of her housewife readers. If she uses your recipes you will receive either a $5 prize or one of 10 $1 prizes awarded daily. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. J. M. VOTAW,
5118 Gaylord avenue, Dormont.
CREAMED SHAD-ROE WITH MUSHROOMS

Parboil a large shad-roe for two or three minutes, and plunge it in cold water. Drain and break in small pieces and saute in butter until brown. Add while in the pan one cup cream, salt and pepper and one-half cup of mushrooms that have been stewed for 15 minutes before adding. Rub a teaspoonful of flour with a little cold milk or cream until smooth; stir this in and let it boil up, stirring carefully, without breaking the roe more than necessary. Serve very hot.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

SYLVIA ABRAMS,
403 S. Atlantic avenue.
SPICED CARAMELS

Two cups granulated sugar.
One-half cup light corn syrup.
One-half cup milk.
One cup thin cream.
One-eighth teapoon salt.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves.
One-half teaspoon allspice.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Mix all ingredients except the vanilla and cook slowly, stirring constantly, to the firm ball stage. Add the vanilla extract and turn, without beating, into a light buttered pan. When cold, turn out and cut in squares. Each square may be wrapped in wax paper if preferred.

L. C. AUGUSTINE,
1409 Chamber of Commerce.
HONEY AND GRAHAM CAKE

Two eggs.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth cup hot water.
One-half cup sugar.
One cup pastry flour, measured after sifting.
One-half cup entire wheat flour, unsifted.
One-fourth cup strained honey.
One-fourth cup cooking oil.

Beat the eggs with an egg-beater till thick. Add the hot water gradually, beating, and continue beating till the batter becomes thick again. Add the sugar, a little at a time, continuing to beat. Beat in the honey, pouring it in in a small stream. Beat in the oil, beating only enough to mix the oil with the batter. Add the vanilla. Then carefully fold in the flour, sifting a little of the flour at a time on top of the batter and folding it in with a flat wire folder. Do not use any more strokes than are necessary to blend the flour with the batter, because any unnecessary working of the batter will work out the air that has been beaten into the batter with so much pains and effort. And it is the air beaten into the batter that is depended upon to make the cake light.

Pour into a cake pan, into the bottom of which a piece of oiled paper has been fitted, bake in a moderately heated oven until a broom straw, run into it comes out clean, or until it feels firm to the touch when gently pressed on top.

MRS. ROSE McCUE,
216 First street, Brenddock.
MUTTON STEW

Cut the neck of mutton into pieces two and one-half or three inches square. Put them into a saucepan with one tablespoonful of butter and let brown, stirring frequently so they do not burn. When browned add enough water to cover well, then add two or three onions cut into pieces. Cover closely and let simmer two hours. Then add more water if necessary. Add some parboiled potatoes, cut in two, and a few slices of carrots. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover and let cook one hour more. A teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce is an improvement. The gravy must be quite thick, so too much water must not be used. Potatoes should be very soft but not broken.

MRS. W. W. AHLBORN,
Route 2, Cornapolis, Pa.
TUTTI FRUTTI BETTY.

Two cups chopped apples.
One cup stoned prunes or any kind of stewed or canned fruit.
Two cups soft bread crumbs.
One cup light brown sugar.
One-half teaspoon cloves.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Two tablespoons melted butter.
Fruit juice to moisten.

Combine the fruits, crumbs, sugar and spices, add fruit juice to moisten and bake until well blended and browned. Serve with imitation whipped cream.

MRS. W. H. GASS,
3531 Simen avenue.
LIMAS DE LUXE

Two cups cooked dried limas.
One-half cup minced pimientos.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup grated cream cheese.
One and one-half cups white sauce.
Two tablespoons tomato catsup.
Two tablespoons butter, melted.
One-half cup bread crumbs.

Mix pimientos, catsup, limas, salt, cheese and white sauce. Pour into buttered baking dish. Mix crumbs and butter and spread on top. Bake in a moderate oven (360° F.) about 30 minutes.

MRS. S. RITT,
507 N. St. Clair street.
MANDEL BREAD.

One-half pound of butter.
One and one-half to two cups sugar, according to taste.
Six eggs.
One lemon.
One cup nuts.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-quarter teaspoon baking soda.
Enough flour to make a very stiff dough.

Cream butter. Add 1 cup sugar and cream again. Beat the eggs well with the remaining sugar and add to butter. Add scraped rind of lemon and lemon juice. Flour the nuts so that they will not remain all in one place, and add to the mixture. Add enough flour to mixture to make a very stiff dough. Cut dough into six strips and roll to resemble a rolling-pin and flatten top of strips. Place in well-greased pans and bake 20 to 25 minutes in moderate oven. When still warm, cut the rolls into ½-inch slices.

MARGARET McGINN,
R. D. No. 1, Box 10, Harmony, Pa.
EASTER BUNNY CAKE.

Four eggs.
One and one-half cups sugar.
Two cups pastry flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One cup boiling water.
One teaspoon lemon extract.

Beat eggs until very light. Beat in the sugar a little at a time and then the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Add the boiling water, a little at a time, and the flavoring. Put in ungreased large size angel cake pan. Bake in slow oven for about one hour starting at 250 degrees Fahrenheit and increasing to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. When cake is cold frost as follows:

One and one-half cups confectioner's sugar.
Two tablespoons milk.
One-half teaspoon almond extract.
Two teaspoons melted butter.
Green vegetable coloring.

Moisten sugar with milk until proper consistency to spread. Add flavoring and spread on top and sides of cake, saving a small amount of the icing. Add melted butter to this and a very little green coloring to make a delicate shade. Decorate rim of cake with this green icing, allowing it to dry over edge to resemble grass. While frosting is soft, make bunnies with large fresh marshmallows, which are pinched with thumb and finger at one end for nose and at other for tail. Dip tooth-pick in melted chocolate and make dotes for eyes. Large ears are cut from white writing paper. Arrange a row of these bunnies around edge of cake.

MRS. NAOMI McDOWELL,
Rosedale, R. F. D., Verona.
DANDELION SALAD

Soak, then pick over most carefully two quarts of dandelion greens. Rinse through several waters and lay between towels to dry. When well drained, put in salad bowl. Sprinkle over it one small onion, or use two spring onions or scallions, chopping two or three inches of the green tops as well as the onions themselves. Crumble the yolks of two hard cooked eggs and add, or put these through the potato ricer. Arrange the sliced egg whites in rings around the edge of the salad, and sprinkle over a French dressing.

ETHEL Y. RITZ,
R. F. D. 1, Wilkinsburg.
TOMATOES A LA MODE

Six medium-sized tomatoes.
One cucumber.
One Spanish onion.
One cup boiled dressing.
Cream.
Six hard-cooked eggs.

Peel tomatoes and slice on individual plates. Chop cucumber and onion and add to the dressing, to which an equal quantity of whipped cream has been added. Take two slices from the center of each egg; chop the rest and add to the dressing. Put a generous amount of the dressing on each serving of tomatoes. Garnish with the egg slices and sprig of parsley if desired. Serves six.

ROSE MARIE MENY,
1101 Crucible street.
BAKED BEAN SANDWICH

Two cups canned baked beans.
Mayonnaise.
Eight stuffed olives, chopped.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Four sweet gherkins, chopped.

Put beans through sieve or mash out lumps. Add salt, gherkins, olives and enough mayonnaise to make smooth filling. Spread between buttered slices of Boston brown or whole wheat bread.

MRS. GRACE B. DAVIS,
710 Florence ave., Avalon.
PARADISE JELLY.

Three quinces.
Six sour apples.
One pound cranberries.

Cut quinces and apples (do not peel). Put in kettle with cranberries and cover with water; cook until tender. Drain and use juice cup for cup of sugar. Cook juice and sugar together until it jellies. This makes about 10 glasses.

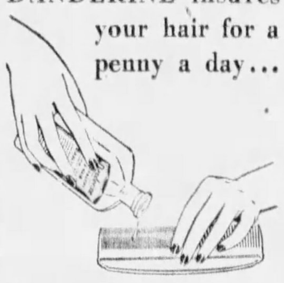
HAIR COMBED THIS WAY STAYS ARRANGED!

It isn't any trouble, and there's hardly any cost

DANDERINE insures your hair for a penny a day...



After you've spent many minutes arranging your hair, here's a way to keep it arranged all day or all evening. Without another "pat" or another thought! A few drops of Danderine on the comb—before you comb it.

A woman just can't believe the way this works until she has tried it.

Danderine isn't a sticky dressing, or even oily, yet it keeps every hair in place. It doesn't hurt the hair, or the color of the hair, and it doesn't leave any telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance is gone very soon after applying—but not that marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness!

When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going helter-skelter.

Just try this:

A dash of Danderine every day—every time you comb your hair—makes you sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to know those ugly particles of dandruff have been dissolved.

That's what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And no amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night makes a great difference in the way any hair looks all the time! It does not affect the color.

With all the care you give your hair, it's a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It's no trouble! Yet you can hardly believe anything so mild and pleasant as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of your hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy Danderine for thirty-five cents; larger sizes are 60c and $1.00.

REMEMBER:

Danderine isn't sticky.
It doesn't affect the color.
It definitely disposes of the worry over dandruff.
Its cost per day is next to nothing, it lasts so long.

"Two things I wanted—

"I found out my trouble—

"...more strength and a clear skin."

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, a clear skin, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red-coloring of the blood, may also cause a weakened condition of the body...loss of strength...poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of these precious blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. Its value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

You will find S.S.S. at all drug stores in two sizes...the larger is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

"...and it was all so simple...my physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood. It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal...and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

until she tried THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Nice girl—Doris. And positively famous for the clear beauty of her skin. Yet before Doris took up Camay her mind was disturbed because her skin was so drab. Camay didn't waste much time in fixing that! Now more than one man says flattering things about Doris and her Camay Complexion.

IT'S a downright pity to let your skin become dull or to deny it the help of gentle Camay.

For Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women, can make a definite, noticeable improvement in the beauty of your face.

Camay is beyond comparison with any other beauty soap you have ever used. Camay is unlike any soap you have ever known. It never gives you a "raw soap feeling." Its rich, delicate lather never stings your skin. Camay bubbles are beauty bubbles.

GET YOURSELF A CAMAY COMPLEXION WIN YOUR DAILY BEAUTY CONTEST

Every day you live, you're in a Beauty Contest. If your skin is dull, your chances are handicapped. If your skin is lovely, you have a big advantage and are right in line for compliments and all the nice things people do for pretty girls. If Camay can make a difference in your skin—as in the story of Doris—why not make it your beauty soap?

"People keep telling me how well my skin looks these days," said a tearoom hostess. "And I know the answer. I've changed to Camay."

"Half my trouble before I took up Camay, was my muddy-looking skin," said a student of journalism. "Now my complexion is ever so much clearer."

A few cakes of Camay can be the passport to beauty for your skin. They will clear away the dullness that hides the natural quality and texture of a good complexion. Turn to Camay—as hundreds of thousands of women have done—and Camay will not fail you!

"Yes, all life is a Beauty Contest! I compete every day with other girls for men's admiration. And my Camay Complexion has helped my beauty—helped me to win compliments and praise."

• Camay Bubbles are Beauty Bubbles

As water comes in contact with a creamy-white cake of Camay, a shower of jewel-like bubbles appears. Each drop of water mingles with the pure, white soap to form these fragrant Beauty Bubbles—freshly made each time you cleanse your skin.

Gently, swiftly they glide over your skin, then rinse away, leaving it refreshed and aglow with cleanliness. Camay bubbles are Beauty Bubbles! A beauty lotion in its finest form. Try Camay—and you'll see!

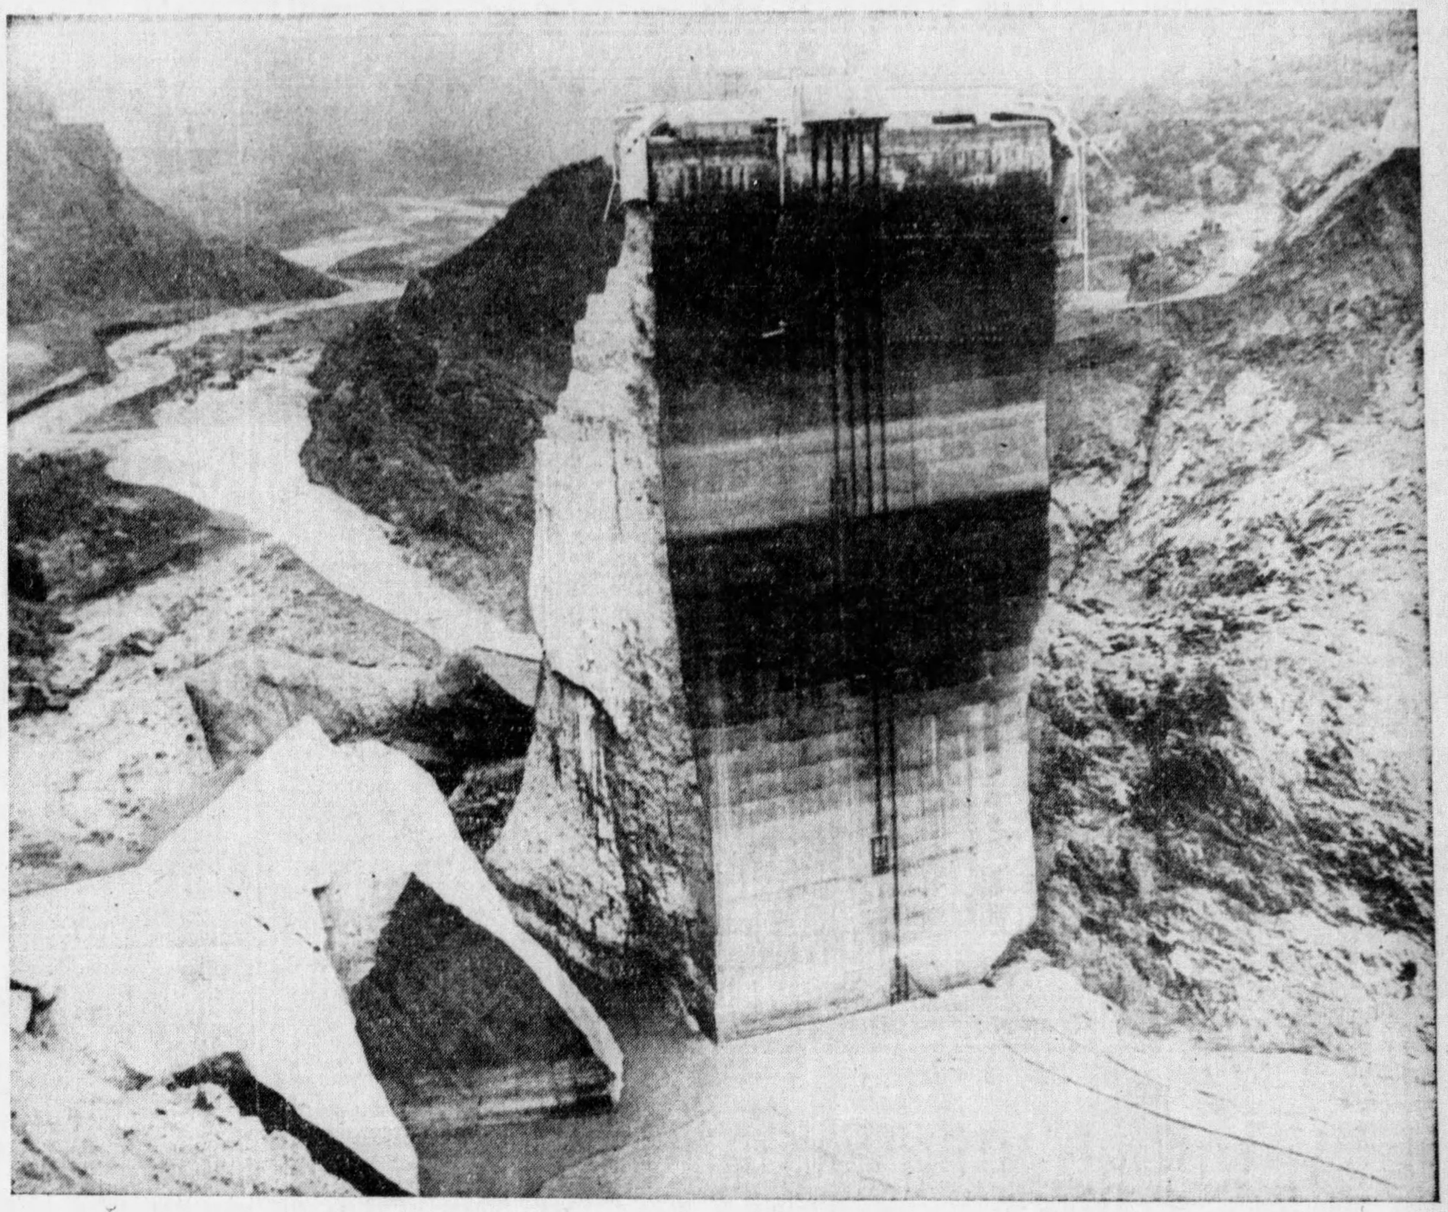
REMEMBER WHEN 250 PERISHED SIX YEARS AGO TODAY?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

Remember when King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra of England were crowned August 9, 1902? Queen Victoria, the king's mother, had died on the previous January 22.



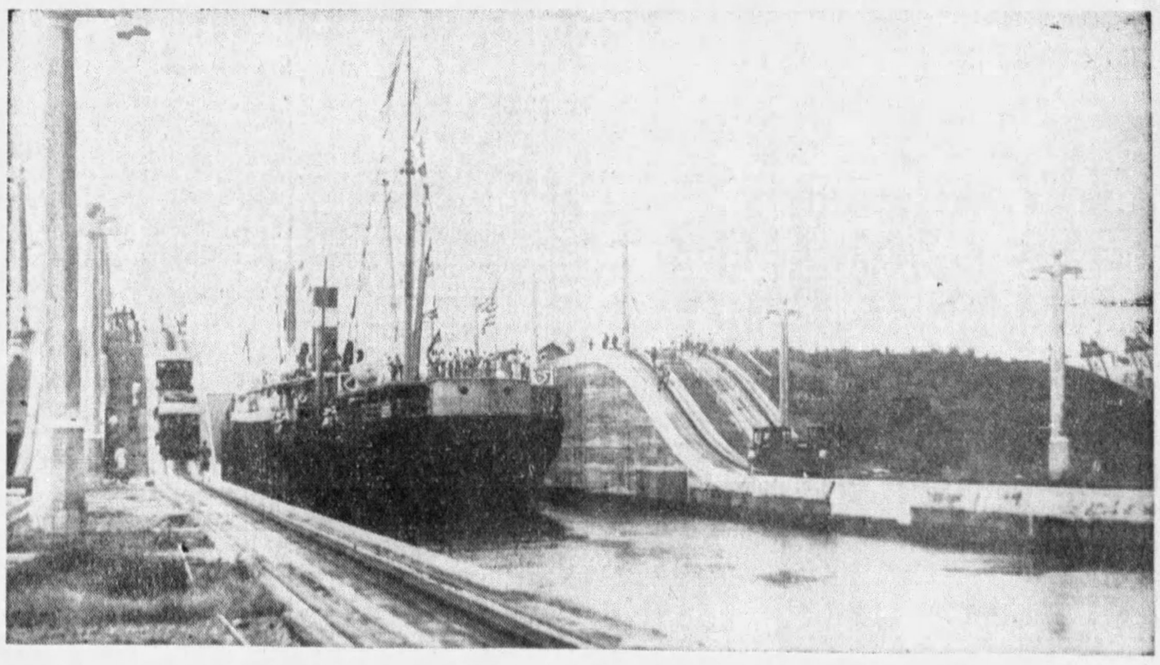
Remember when the great St. Francis Dam, part of the Los Angeles water supply system, broke and let twelve million gallons of water loose in California's Santa Clara valley—March 13, 1928, just six years ago today? Toll: 250 dead, 15,000 homeless, 700 buildings destroyed, $15,000,000 damage.

Remember when Charley Ross was kidnaped in Philadelphia on July 1, 1874? His case has never been solved.

Remember when the Submarine S-4 went down when a Coast Guard cutter rammed her off Provincetown, Mass., on December 17, 1927? Forty U. S. Navy officers and men lost their lives in this, the greatest of American submarine disasters.

Remember when Lincoln after "The War" asked Maggie Mitchell to the White House, singular honor for an actress?

Remember when the Steamer General Slocum burned in the East River, New York, on June 15, 1904, killing 1,031 of the 1,600 pleasure-seeking passengers aboard? Here is a temporary "morgue" on a lawn near the scene of the disaster.



Remember when the SS. Cristobal passed through the Panama Canal on August 15, 1914—the first ship to do so? Some 75,000 have since passed. The canal cost $40,000,000, Panama rents the space to the U. S. at $250,000 yearly.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Perhaps it's the approach of spring via an early Easter or the fact that March "came in like a lamb" (even though it didn't stay that mild) and deceived Cupid into thinking spring is here, that is causing the betrothal and wedding news to come flocking in a month or two ahead of schedule. Because it is usually in late April and May that we hear of them most.

And the most recent engagement news of note comes to us from West Newton, Mass., about a Massachusetts girl and the son of a Pittsburgh family.

The Norman Williams Binghams, of West Newton, make known the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Dr. Thomas Van Orden Urmy, of Boston, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Brainerd Urmy. Mr. Urmy is pastor of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Elizabeth is a graduate of Mt. Vernon Seminary, Washington, and Dr. Urmy is a graduate of Princeton University and the Harvard Medical School.

Madrigal Singers Will Give Concert March 22

Mrs. James Stephen Martin, director of the Pittsburgh Madrigal Singers, announces the third annual concert of the singers, to be given in the Twentieth Century Club auditorium Thursday evening, March 22, at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Lewis E. Young is in charge of box reservations, and tickets are to be obtained from any member of the organization or from Mrs. Jean McCrory Newman, secretary, Hampton street.

And the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse is plotting another production. The members will present "The Silver Wedding," by Carroll Fitzhugh, March 27 and 28, in the Arnold School Theater, South Braddock avenue. M. E. Fierst is manager.

Pittsburghers Travel During Late Winter

And now for a little news of Pittsburgh's late winter travelers. Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Anathan, of Pittsburgh, were recent guests at the Ambassador Hotel in New York. At the Waldorf-Astoria recent Pittsburgh guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Flaccus, Miss Madeline Angloch, H. E. Graham and T. M. Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Nason, of McKeesport, are at the Vinoy Park Hotel, St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. George J. Willock have registered recently at the same hotel.

Many Joining Gay Colony In South

Social life is waxing very gay indeed in St. Petersburg, Fla., winter mecca for northerners who fling the snow flakes from their heels in a mad dash for sunnier climes. And the members of the Pittsburgh colony there, growing larger every day, are being entertained a great deal.

Among the guests at a beach picnic at Pass-a-Grille Beach given by guests at the Soreno Hotel were Betty Dalby and Virginia Sherard and Albert Burchfield of Pittsburgh.

And guests from here at a bridge luncheon in the Cabana Club, at which hostesses were Mrs. John V. Ritts and Mrs. F. C. Dickson, of Butler, were Romaine Clark, Mrs. George Craig, Mrs. J. M. Dalby, Mrs. T. B. Gregory, Ruth Gregory and Mrs. R. D. Hubbell.

Guests at the Princess Martha Hotel who arrived recently include Mrs. C. L. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Davis, Henry D. Shute, H. Whiting Holt, Mrs. George W. Ratcliffe, Mrs. W. R. Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Patterson, all of Pittsburgh.

New arrivals at the Soreno include Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Townsend, and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., of Pittsburgh. Others at the resort are Mrs. Bertha Becker, Creedmore avenue; Mrs. A. H. Boyd and Miss Helen Boyd, Riverview avenue; Mrs. Emma D. Brickell, Fifth avenue; Mrs. Herbert Lemoyne Carter, Jackson street; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davis, Aspinwall; Mrs. Harry F. Domhoff, Jackson street; Mrs. C. W. Feick, Malvern road; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fiscus, Avalon; J. H. Fox, University Club; Mrs. Emma A. Holleman, West Francis avenue, and Mrs. and Mrs. J. Fred Jones, and Miss Beulah B. Jones, South Negley avenue.

Pitt Women Will Hear Dr. Buck

The Woman's Association of the University of Pittsburgh will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow at the College Club. The meeting will be addressed by Dr. Solon J. Buck, who will speak on the work of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Association, of which he is director. Dr. Buck is also a member of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh. Mrs. E. A. Holbrook and Mrs. E. R. Weidlein will pour at the tea following his address.

Card Party Arranged As Memorial by Club

As a memorial to her for whom it is named, the Miriam Schonfield Club will hold a card party Sunday evening at Moose Hall, Carnegie, for the benefit of the Jewish National Hospital at Denver. Miss Ruth Shepse is chairman of the affair and has as aides Miss Ruth Bertenthal, Miss Syl Sussman and Miss Ruth Turk.

Mrs. John O. Miller To Entertain at Tea

Mrs. John O. Miller, of Inverness street, will be hostess at an informal tea in her home Thursday, at 3 o'clock, to meet Mrs. Florence Fisher Parry. Mrs. Parry will speak on "The Advantages and Disadvantages of the Sheltered Life."

Tomorrow's Bridge Lesson

Will be on "Rebids." In our Whitney Maple Cottage, at 2:30, under Mrs. Harry T. Aufderheide. Call AT. 4400, extension 355, for your reservation.

Mt. Lebanon Club Group Meets In Garden

A flowering garden was the appropriate setting for yesterday's meeting of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club which was arranged by the club garden department, under direction of Mrs. S. A. Schreiner.

The stage was covered with a carpet of moss and bordered with potted spring flowers. Walls were screened with trailing ivy, and rows of lacy ferns outlined the steps and stage entrance. One corner was transformed into an outdoor nook, with gay striped umbrella and brightly painted iron furniture.

Dr. L. K. Darbaker was guest speaker and under the caption "Stalking Plants With a Camera" gave an illustrated lecture dealing principally with the germination and growth of plants under water.

Mrs. Adolph Batz, accompained by Mrs. A. Volmrich, sang a group of garden songs. Tea was served by Mrs. James McKelvie and her social committee, with Mrs. John McKelvie and Mrs. A. L. Schiel presiding at the charmingly decorated table.

Mt. Lebanon Club Hears Book Reviews

"The Crime of Cuba," by Carleton Beals, is the book being reviewed by Mrs. M. E. Noyes and Mrs. Margaret Cline at today's meeting of reviewers of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club. Hostesses are Mrs. Bernard H. Lawson and Mrs. C. G. Starr.

South American Growth Told 20th Century Club

According to Edward Tomlinson, journalist and traveler, who spoke before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday, the United States is blind to the inroads being made in South American trade by other countries, but especially by Japan. And he stressed the necessity of this country's becoming aware of the importance and culture of South America.

South America must no longer be regarded as a wild, remote country, but must be recognized as the setting for the next advance in western civilization, he said.

Mr. Tomlinson described in turn, the Guianas, British, Dutch and French; San Salvador, Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine. Giving some idea of the immensity of distance, the speaker said that from the mouth of the Amazon to Rio de Janeiro, the distance is as great as that from Rio to New York City. Brazil, larger in area than the entire United States, was spoken of as a world in itself with the most cosmopolitan population in the world. In Uruguay where there is but one penitentiary, the population is 2,000,000. Capital punishment is forbidden, 40 years is the longest sentence that can be meted out and parole and pardon are unknown. Also the country has a splended school system.

Argentina, said by Mr. Tomlinson to be the greatest competitor of the United States, has a culture unsurpassed by any other country in the world. Its luxury is unequalled and many things, opera for instance, are government-controlled.

That good looking new skirts abound at $2.98. Such types as silk crepes (the new treebark type) . . . . and lightweight woolens (some with a waffle-ish crinkle to them.) With ample pleats fore and aft and waistline measurements of 34 to 44. Browns, blacks, tans, and navy. And if you step up to $3.98 there are flat crepes and monotone tweeds.

Whilst as to blouses . . . page these at $2.98. Plain and printed, in three styles . . . surplice, double-bow fronts . . . side fichu. All good shades. Sizes 38 to 44.

And for but another dollar ($3.98) there are the new aquarelle shades in feminine manner . . . fagoted, with double bibs . . . tie-ends at the throat. Also some long sleeve prints in this group. Which should bring on an avalanche of 38 to 44-ers in this direction,

And as a parting shot . . . let these reverberations bring you a-running with your newly-finished knitted suit or frock.

To be blocked! Because this thing of blocking mustn't be fumbled or your two-months-knitting is ruined. And because this shop does a WONDERFUL job for less than most very average places! (Repairing and altering as well.) ..

Sarajevo Teaches Lesson That Wars Once Started Cannot Be Localized

Serbian Patriot Hope World Will Learn Lesson

Editor's Note—War cannot be "localized," writes H. R. Knickerbocker from Sarajevo, where the World War started, in the twenty-sixth article of his series "Will War Come?" That was the lesson of Sarajevo and that factor may play an important part in preventing another war.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

SARAJEVO, March 13.—A droning cry echoes down the streets of Sarajevo.

Sarajevo has forgotten what "Sarajevo" means. For twenty years ago another cry had echoed. It threw the city into panic. It threw a world into war. "The archduke is dead." "The archduke is murdered!"

Today the cry is the call of the muezzin to prayer. On the balcony of his minaret he stands outlined against the sky, his head thrown back, his hand cupped behind his mouth, and leaning backward, his white robe flowing in a light breeze, he intones the chant that warns the faithful it is time to pray.

In the basch charschia, the market place, a thousand blue pigeons, fat, impudent, waddle and lazily peck spilled grain. In the streets young women dressed in Parisian clothes, trim-waisted, silk-stockinged, with chic hats, mince along behind the heavy black veil prescribed by the prophet. Young Mohammedans, in the turkey-red fezes banned by Turkey, inspect the passing ladies and approve the modification of the ancient wrapper that really orthodox Moslem girls should wear.

Sarajevo's Views On 'Next War'

It might be difficult to find out what Sarajevo, where the "last" war started, thinks of the "next" war. But it is not difficult to find out what one citizen thinks. His thoughts are probably as valuable as most of the opinions of the rest of Sarajevo put together.

For Jovan Schuschich was one of the Serbian Bosniaks whose conspiracy against Francis Ferdinand in this city made Austria-Hungary impose intolerable demands on Serbia, whose friend Russia came to her assistance, which led Germany to mobilize, causing France to spring to arms, England to come to the defense of Belgian neutrality, America to fight "to keep the world safe for democracy," and so on down to the Hitler revolution in Germany and the present state of Europe, frightened this spring as never before that the chain or disaster may continue.

"Did you know Gavril Princip, the lad who killed the Archduke Francis Ferdinand?" I asked redundantly a black-haired, stout-bodied man in an overheated room in the City Hall where Francis Ferdinand had given his last order.

Jovan Schuschich smiled. He held his hands in the small of his back. He was dressed in the customary black suit, white shirt, stiff collar of the official.

"I knew Princip," he replied, and began to walk back and forth in front of his desk piled with official papers. "Princip and I were together every day and night from the time he arrived in Sarajevo toward the end of May, 1914, until 1 o'clock in the morning of June 28. He shot the archduke ten hours later.

"Did I know Princip!

"You see this room! This is where they brought me. Three days later. Couldn't get away. This was police headquarters.

Tells of Torture After Slaying

Now he laughed. "I'm back here. This is my office.

"I knew if I talked it was sure death for me and maybe for others. I knew if I didn't talk they might kill me with torture, but not certainly. So I didn't talk."

His eyes grew big and lines of pain came out around them. "They tortured me four days. They beat the soles of my feet until I fainted. They made me kneel naked on sharp stones until I fainted. They doubled me up and chained me into the shape of a wheel and rolled me back and forth until my back bone was crushed and I fainted. I didn't talk. They told me the others had confessed. I said 'face me with them.' They wouldn't do it. So I knew they lied."

"I spent the next four years in a dungeon. All of us did. So did Princip. Today I am here."

There was little triumph in his voice. The scars of those four years had left little room for that ultimate triumph that came to Serbia, and to himself.

"Oh yes, when that happened here in Sarajevo we were all lost. Nobody could get away. The frontiers were closed. I didn't try to get away. Knew it was impossible. Only one of us did. Got over the border into Montenegro. Here we were just prey for anybody. Anybody could kill us on the street. Any Austrian could kill any Serb.

"That's the way we were, anyway, before. Princip did it for liberty."

Hysteria of 1914 Prevails Again

"You know, I do see certain similarities. Above all in the tension, and in the fanaticism of the youth. You've no idea how hysterical we were in those days. It was pathological perhaps. We lived for nothing but the thought of the liberty of our people. Now perhaps, so I hear, there are others in Europe who today have the same ideas about their own people.

"Why when we got to be twelve years old we were already revolutionaries. Little chaps running around in the grade schools—such as we had—they all wanted to be heroes, all wanted to die for their country. So I hear, perhaps, there is something like that today in other countries.

"But we have one thing to put against the chances of another war coming. And that is that the war cannot be localized. That is the thing that Sarajevo taught. Don't you think? Isn't that the real lesson of Sarajevo?

"Remember it was Austria's idea that she would just go in and punish Serbia. She thought she could do that and nobody else would interfere. Could you ever have dreamed that because of what happened away down here so many thousands of miles from your home that your country would finally get dragged into it?

"You saw what happened. I don't know that anybody wanted the war except Austria. But then Russia came in, and then Germany, and then France, England, the whole world.

When War Starts, All Join In

"God help us if the world hasn't learned that lesson by now—that when the war starts it brings everybody in. God knows I have learned it on my own body. Four years in prison! My friends all rotted to death in prison, underground — wet, cold, and millions and millions of lice.

"Here we have got Europe today divided between the people who've got what they want and the people who want what the others have got. Some of these people may think that a little 'punitive expedition,' a bit of 'sanctions' here or an 'occupation' there could be helpful. My God, let them learn from us—from the scars on our bodies, from my own smashed backbone!

"How could we have known, in our wildest dreams, that such a thing as that war would come out of Sarajevo? Never, never could we have known. But now the world knows what to think of 'localizing' war. There is no such thing."

We walked out on the street. Around us the hills of Sarajevo rose in a series encircling the city, on each peak stood a fortress. The fortresses commanded the city. They were built by the Austrians not only for defense against the outside but to shoot, if necessary, into this one-time nest of revolutionaries.

The sound of church bells from the Orthodox churches mingled with radio music from a bazaar. I asked if the Sarajevo fortresses had come into action during the war. "Never," answered Schuschich.

No armies fought in Sarajevo, not a single shot was fired here in the whole four years of war. Yes, two were fired. That was Sarajevo's 'localized' war.

SCOTT, KEN HIGH CLASH IN W. P. I. A. L. SEMI-FINAL

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Johnson Rixey's Double
Same Build and Action
Indians Like Park Shift

Hafey's Severe Handicaps
Gameness Only Confidence
Mental Side of Records

These are the days, of annual recurrence, when the big baseball training camps report the uncovering of sensational young players who appear destined to rival famous stars of the past—new Wagners, second Mathewsons and the like. The spring tales have come to be looked on as just part of the game and no longer cause any excitement. Fandom reads them with a yawn and then waits for the youthful phenoms to explode, which they rarely fail to do under the increased pressure when the veterans round into shape and begin to turn on the heat.

Lloyd Johnson

The Pirates do not claim to have any marvels who are new editions of bygone greats on the score of ability, but they do claim to have a replica of a former luminary in a physical sense. In build, appearance and action, Lloyd Johnson, the left-hand pitcher purchased from the Missions, is said to be Eppa Rixey all over. The new Buc, standing 6 feet 4 inches and scaling well above 200 pounds, is of about the same proportions as the former southpaw ace of the Reds. The resemblance does not end there, as Johnson has the same carriage and gait as Rixey and the same pitching action and style on the mound. Nobody goes so far as to say that he can pitch like Rixey, but at least Johnson looks as promising as the average recruit in the big league camps at this stage of spring practice.

INDIAN PITCHERS DON'T FEAR SMALL PARK

A big ball park is considered a pitcher's paradise, because there is room for the fielders to go and get 'em. A small yard is viewed as a hitter's heaven, because fly balls that would be outs on a large field go for hits against or over the close fences. Naturally, you'd think, a hurler would prefer to work in a spacious park, but, strange to say, at least three of the Indian flingers have expressed themselves as having no regrets about the Cleveland club's shift from the huge Municipal Stadium back to the small grounds formerly used.

The three professing to welcome the change are Oral Hildebrand, Mel Harder and Sarge Connally. They admit they'll have to work harder and more carefully on certain enemy hitters to keep them from peppering the short right-field wall, and they know their earned-run averages will be higher, but they're glad to shoulder these disadvantages for the many additional runs they figure their own teammates will give them in 77 home games. They think the balance will be on their side in the end. There's a business angle, too. Low earned-run averages look well in the records, but the Cleveland pitchers have found in the last couple of months that they can't sell those averages for cash. The boxoffice demands victories, and the fellow who wins a dozen 10-to-9 games commands a fatter salary than the chap who loses a dozen by scores of 2 to 1.

HAFEY SHINES UNDER HEAVY HANDICAPS

In pronouncing Chick Hafey the greatest outfielder in baseball, Dan Howley, who was his manager for a year as a Red, reveals that the Cincinnati star is more severely handicaped physically than is generally known. According to Howley, the defective vision that forces Hafey to wear spectacles, even while playing, is such that the player can't see 10 feet in front of him without glasses. Dan says he learned of this in the clubhouse one day, when Hafey took off his glasses and tried to walk across the room, knocking over three chairs though walking very slowly. He couldn't see the chairs. Hafey goes to an optician once every month to have his eyes tested and his glasses adjusted. He can't play in the rain or on damp days, for if moisture gets on his glasses he can't see at all.

Chick Hafey

And further, Howley says, Chick's greatness as a hitter and thrower is all the more amazing because his right shoulder is joined by a three-inch silver plate as the result of a boyhood accident in which his shoulder was shattered and his collar bone broken. Yet Hafey never has had a sore arm in his baseball career.

LOUGHRAN TERMS GAMENESS SELF-FAITH

Lauded for the gameness he showed in sticking out the route against Primo Carnera in Miami, Tommy Loughran does not call himself game. The Philadelphia boxer says that what is called gameness is nothing more than self-confidence. It's just having faith in yourself, he holds, and you won't get anywhere if you haven't got it. "I've always had it and I still have it," Loughran declares. "I still think I can beat any man in the ring today." That self-confidence, or gameness, or determination, or whatever it may be called, was the one quality that Loughran's father sought in him in the early days before he would admit that Tommy might become a success in the fight game. "I'll not know whether he'll make a boxer until I see him get up off the floor," the senior Loughran used to say.

Tommy has been on the floor several times, and twice, in bouts with Jack Sharkey and Steve Hamas, he stayed there for the count, though he came back to win decisions over both men in later meetings. Loughran, on the road to 32, says he can't see why the experts should figure his age as being a bar to his carrying on successfully in the ring, perhaps even to the capture of the heavyweight championship if he can get another shot at the title. Tommy overlooks the weightier side of the question. It is fights, rather than years, that count against a Queensberry warrior. Each fight takes something out of him. And the Carnera bout made a total of 140 that Loughran has fought in his 15 years of action. He can't have escaped paying the toll.

MENTAL ANGLE SEEN IN TRACK RECORDS

Joining in the general disagreement among the magazine-writing coaches on various angles of track and field sport, Dean Cromwell, veteran mentor at the University of California, contributes to current literature an article in opposition to the theory that the improvement in records during the last 50 years has been due entirely to better tracks and the like. He doesn't deny that improved tracks have had something to do with it, but contends that the real reason for the better records is the mental viewpoint.

Dean Cromwell

It is Cromwell's belief that runners travel faster today because they aim higher. A few years ago, quarter-milers aimed at 50 seconds. Now they aim at 47 seconds or better. It's all in the head, the Trojan coach avers. And he believes the same gradual improvement will continue to be in evidence in the years to come, as the athletes get better marks to shoot at mentally. He thinks that 50 years from now, the quarter-mile record will be 45.5 seconds, and the half-mile standard 1 minute and 46 seconds.

Reds Barry and Tommy Rios, a couple of visiting fighters from the East, apparently think Pittsburgh is a pretty good sort of a town, for they own judges' decisions today over two district scrappers who were picked to beat them in the feature 10-round bouts in the Motor Square Garden ring last night.

The referee in each bout thought otherwise, and so did this writer, but the referees were outvoted and what the scribes think doesn't count officially.

Barry's victory was one he can capitalize in New York, for it was over Charley Massera, heavyweight of East Monongahela, who recently caused a furore in New York's Madison Square Garden when he outfought King Levinsky, but didn't get the decision. Rios was declared the winner over Anson Green, the dusky destroyer from Homestead, in the semi-final, which by some quaint manner of reasoning was put on after the main bout, as was the case recently when Green boxed Danny Hassett on the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith card in the same arena.

BARRY TIRES NEAR END

There wasn't a great deal to the Massera-Barry bout. It started off in slow fashion, with Massera winning the first three rounds, all of which were fought inside, than which there is nothing duller to watch between heavyweights. In the fourth, Barry began to wise up and held his own by drawing back out of the clinches and socking home full-arm swings.

In the fifth, Barry went whole hog on his new style, keeping entirely on the outside and slapping and cuffing and swinging, often with open gloves. Many of these blows Massera blocked with his arms, gloves and shoulders, but they made a lot of noise and kept Massera off balance and out of hitting range, and the crowd cheered as Barry came from behind to win this round and the next three in Maxie Rosenbloom fashion.

Then Barry tired, and Massera began to get in close again in the ninth and drummed out an edge with his body punching. That gave them four rounds apiece, with one even, and the tenth found Massera enjoying his biggest session. He waded in and crowded Barry all around the ring, keeping him on the ropes and punching away with both fists. Barry was holding on near the finish and was glad to hear the bell that ended the fight. If there was any doubt about the winner that final round should have dispelled it in Massera's favor.

GREEN OUTPUNCHES RIOS

Barry weighed 193 pounds and Massera 182½. Al Grayber was the referee and he stood up manfully under one of Barry's wild swings in the second round, delivered when Reds began to attack furiously after being ordered to break from a clinch.

Rios, scaling 157 pounds against 160 for Green, absorbed a good softening up about the face and body from his hard-hitting Negro opponent, but kept on the move, stabbing and hooking and crossing with much lighter punches, and, like Barry, surprised with his

10:30 p. m.—Bayuk Phillies, Philadelphia; Shallcross, Philadelphia; Quaker City Americans, Philadelphia. (Roll singles and doubles following morning and afternoon.)

STRIKES AND SPARES

A duckpin record for women was set on the Pokes Alleys, Mt. Washington, last night, when Mrs. Alberta Garbett totaled 653 pins in three games. She also established a new mark for the singles with 223 pins in the first game. In the other games she rolled 218 and 212 scores. Recently she rolled a 658 set on the Elba Alleys.

The Central Pittsburgh Duckpin League rolls tonight. Casino No. 1 is setting the pace with 58 wins and 20 defeats. Center No. 1 is four games behind.

RUTH WORKS WITH YANKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 13.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth took his first workout of the season with the New York Yankees and stole the show as usual.

The Babe cavorted at first base yesterday and slapped the ball around with all his old-time vigor in batting practice. Lou Gehrig, Ben Chapman, Earle Combs, Bob Rolfe, Don Heffner and Myril Hoag also worked out for the first time, leaving Bill Dickey and Lyn Lary the only absentees. Both are holdouts.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—With Outfielder Roger Cramer doing the pitching for the Athletics, the New York Giants scored one run in the tenth inning to defeat the American League club, 4 to 3. The victory was the world champions' third in four games with the A's. The score by innings:

ORLANDO, Fla.—(AP.)—Casey Stengel sent his Brooklyn Dodgers through two more workouts yesterday despite the cool weather and announced the first practice game of the season would be played today. Johnny Frederick, regular outfielder, arrived in camp, donned a uniform and went right to work.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—The arrival of Don Hurst, first baseman, was all that was required to make the Phillies' training camp roster complete. Irving Jeffries and John Kroner, two infielders the club obtained during the winter, were the two latest arrivals in camp. The infield was kept busy by Manager Jimmy Wilson yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—Emil Fuchs, Boston Braves president, was keenly disappointed when he arrived in camp and learned that Wally Berger, his premier slugger, was still holding out on him. He said:

"I've offered Wally a salary consistent with his outstanding ability. His 1934 contract calls for a substantial increase, but he does not think it is high enough. Maybe he'll be able to swing me around to his way of thinking, but he isn't helping his cause any by remaining away from camp."

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—Pinky Higgins is due in the camp of the Philadelphia Athletics today to talk over his contract, and, if he follows the example of Jimmy Foxx, the last holdout of the A's will surrender.

PASADENA, Cal. — (AP.) — Harold (Muddy) Ruel, recently signed by the Chicago White Sox as reserve catcher and coach, has reached camp and will go to work today. The Sox had their first off day of the training season yesterday, but will resume their series with Los Angeles today.

AVALON, Cal.—(AP.)—Floyd (Babe) Herman, whose failure to hit last season was a huge disappointment to the Chicago Cubs, is on the spot. Herman will be given first crack at right field, but if he doesn't do a lot of hitting, someone else will be playing the position when the season opens, Manager Charley Grimm's plans now call for Herman in right, Chuck Klein in left and Kiki Cuyler in center.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia.—(AP.)—Eugene (Bubbles) Hargrave, former Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankee catcher, has signed a contract to manage the Cedar Rapids team in the Western League this year. Terms of the contract were not announced, but it was understood Hargrave would receive the highest salary ever paid a baseball manager here.

TUBERS DELAY SIGNING COACH

Action on the re-hiring of Bill Sullivan as football coach at McKeesport High School has been deferred until the next meeting of the school's athletic committee. The McKeesport school board, at a meeting last night, decided to delay signing Sullivan, although salary differences between the coach and board are reported to have been adjusted.

Sullivan served as head coach at McKeesport for four years prior to last fall. He then resigned when his coaching salary was cut, but remained on the school's faculty. Overtures recently were made him by members of the board and he agreed to resume the post. It was expected that he would be signed at last night's meeting.

Ace Bailey Gets $27,969 in Fund

TORONTO, March 13.—(AP.)—Irvin (Ace) Bailey, star Toronto player injured in a collision with Eddie Shore, of Boston, early in December, received $27,969 from the benefit game played in Boston, the all-star game here, and the balance of his contract with the Maple Leafs, according to President Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League.

Baseball Briefs

SARASOTA, Fla., March 13.—(AP.)—Ever hear of Julius Solters, of Pittsburgh? Well, you're likely to before the baseball season is far gone. Julius arrived at the Red Sox training camp just in time to be the sensation of the first full practice session. He lapped a homer over the right field fence, then dented the left field barried with a wallop that would have cleared the wall at the Sox new ball park in Boston.

TAMPA, Fla.—It seems the Cincinnati Reds may have a southpaw pitcher after all. Manager Bob O'Farrell, who lost his left-handed hurler when the veteran Eppa Rixey retired, is reported to be considering the addition of Joe Shaute, a free agent who formerly played with the Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn.

FORMER CHAMPS MEET TONIGHT IN STADIUM

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two former champions, one of them a former occupant of the state basketball throne, come together tonight in the Pitt Stadium pavilion in the first semi-final battle of the W. P. I. A. L. elimination series when New Kensington, representative of Section I, engages Scott High School, champion of Section VIII. The winner qualifies to meet the survivor of the Ambridge-Duquesne battle, tomorrow in the same place, in the championship game Saturday night.

Both New Kensington, coached by Carl (Dutch) Glock, and Scott, tutored by Johnny Reed, are experienced tournament quintets. Scott High won the W. P. I. A. L. and state championships in 1931, while in 1930 New Kensington was crowned standard-bearer of the W. P. I. A. L.

Having carried off the class A football championship of the W. P. I. A. L. last fall, Scott is attempting to emulate the great Wilkinsburg High School football and basketball teams of 1921-22, when they won the two major titles of the league in succession. No member of the W. P. I. A. L. has equaled that feat of taking both the football and basketball laurels in succession before or since Harry M. Springer turned the trick at Wilkinsburg.

EVENLY MATCHED

Picking a winner in tonight's contest is a difficult task as both quintets have much in common in so far as their exhibitions in the current tournament are concerned. Scott was impressive in scoring its 41-26 victory over Latrobe, champion of Section X, in a second-round engagement, only to show a complete reversal of form in its quarter-final duel with Mapleton, champion of Section XIII, which extended the Reedmen to the limit before bowing, 25-23, at Washington High School.

On the other hand, New Kensington failed to come up to expectations in its second-round battle with Ford City, champion of Section VI, despite the fact the Glockmen managed to squeeze out a 33-20 victory over the Armstrong Countians. Against Uniontown, champion of Section XI, New Kensington displayed the form that was expected of it and humbled the Fayette County entry under a 42-28 shellacking.

The Scott players haven't heard the end of criticism for their failure to make a better showing against Mapleton and Johnny Reed likely will have the boys on edge when they take the floor against New Kensington. Coach Reed has been warning his players that unless they show a decided improvement against New Kensington, their hopes for a second straight W. P. I. A. L. title will be shattered.

Three boys who are expected to carry the burden for New Kensington tonight are Eddie Waugh, star Negro forward and scoring ace of the team, and Joe Ross and Andy Trzeciak, splendid guarding duo of the valley quintet. While the former scored 16 points against Uniontown after going scoreless against Ford City, it was really the work of Ross and Trzeciak which kept the Uniontown total down to 28 points. Time after time they either intercepted passes or checked the man coming down the floor to keep the Fayette Countians from working the ball under the hoop. Breaking through the New Kensington defense may prove a real problem for the Scott passers tonight.

WANER BOYS, SWIFT JOIN BUC DRILLS

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 13.—Inter-camp battles are in the immediate offing for the Pittsburgh Pirates, doing their annual stint of spring conditioning here. The full squad reported for the workouts scheduled by Manager George Gibson today, and tomorrow the Bucco pilot will send his athletes a'battlin' in the first of three planned Regular-Yanigan contests.

The Pirate family was completed yesterday with the arrival of Scranton Bill Swift, he of the recalcitrant molars. Swifty lost plenty of weight while the dentists were battling with his teeth and while he was attempting to out-ante the Pittsburgh officials on the matter of salary. However, he expects to put on a few pounds by the time the opening of the championship race rolls around and to be fit and ready to go.

WANERS ON JOB

The Waner boys worked out yesterday, trying out a flock of new bats. Brother Paul caught hold of a couple and parked them over the right field fence just to make his appearance in uniform official.

Manager Gibson announced today that Harry Lavagetto, the youthful Coast League infield sensation, will get a real trial at second base and that he'll be used at the keystone sack during the camp contests. This means that Tommy Thevenow will be relegated to the second team, which certainly will do the reserves little, if any, harm.

Trainer Jorgenson had a workout of his own yesterday as he endeavored to take the soreness out of the left arm of Larry Johnson, the rookie pitcher. Johnson worked in the game with Portland on Sunday, and yesterday complained that his portside flipper pained him a trifle. He isn't worrying over the situation, but is taking no chances. Cy Blanton's right arm is a trifle stiff, too, and Heinie Meine is taking things easy as he gets into shape.

ETTEN SHOWS PROMISE

It begins to look very much as though Nick Etten, the Davenport (Ia.) lad, is going to desert the outfield and become an infielder. He has shown great promise at first base since coming to camp, and when he's farmed, as he likely will be, it will be as a first sacker.

COLLEGES SEEK TAX BREAK

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association has a trio of representatives in the capital to protest today to the Senate Finance Committee that a 10 per cent admission tax on college athletic events is driving spectators away and preventing college sports from making money.

Leading the battle for an exemption in the $258,000,000 tax bill under consideration by the committee are:

Frank McCormick, director of athletics of the University of Minnesota, representing the Big Ten; W. Don Harrison, University of Pittsburgh athletic director, speaking for the Eastern Collegiate Association, and C. P. Miles, athletic director at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, representing the Southern conference.

ONLY FOUR MAKE MONEY

They will present data gathered by the national association from 137 athletic directors. The three representatives are prepared to argue that the athletic associations at Notre Dame, Southern California, Army and Navy are the only ones in the nation now making money.

A survey, the committee says, shows 70 per cent of the colleges pay not only for football expenses out of their football gate receipts, but also, wholly or partially, for all other athletic games, physical education programs and health services. Seventy-one per cent of the colleges are operating athletic programs at a loss, due to the fact that they found it necessary to cut admission prices and to absorb the admission tax this year and last. These deficits are being made up by borrowing or by appropriations from general funds.

Sixty-five per cent of the colleges have been forced to cut athletic personnel, 72 per cent have cut salaries and 30 per cent have suspended payment on debts and interest. An indebtedness of $13,546,500 against their plants is shown by 40 per cent of the colleges.

It is the belief of the committee that the restoration of the exemption from admission tax on intercollegiate athletic contests, as in the 1926 revenue act, will increase income by millions of dollars, with a considerable increase in employment, increases in salaries, greater purchasing power for necessary equipment and a resumption of interest and debt payments.

FURTHER CUTS SEEN

The committee believes that contrary action will eliminate intercollegiate competition from scores of colleges and further curtail athletic activities, physical education and health services in all such institutions.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: STRANGEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT—Forty-two delicate glass bowls, tuned to chromatic scale, placed one within the other and fastened on a rod which in turn is supported at each end by a standard—that's the glassharmonica. Because of its extreme fragility it is enclosed in a specially made pianola case, the lid of which is opened when it is played. Its owner, Bernhard Fritzsch, of 201 Piedmont avenue, Cincinnati, an expert violin maker, wood carver and inventor, searched many years to find one of those unique instruments, as he believed there are only three in existence—his own, another in Vienna and one in Germany. THE BLIND CHESS EXPERT—Arthur Ford Mackenzie, recognized by some class experts as the greatest chess problem composer of all time, was without dispute one of the three greatest in chess composition. He gained 97 prizes and honorable mentions in international competition during his nine years of total blindness, as against 92 in his 16 years of visual competition. Mackenzie's wonderful chess problem composition achievements were submitted by H. R. Bigelow, who computed them from the official record of Mackenzie's chess career, "Chess Lyrics."

The ebullient Dr. H. C. Carlson, who takes his Pitt Panthers of basketball to Cleveland to wind up the regular campaign for 1933-34 by meeting Western Reserve, after some studying of the record of the Northern Illinois State Teachers' College basketball team (De Kalb to youse gents) has put the entire matter out of his mind and is concentrating on perfecting his own team's work.

The Panthers are to meet Dekalb in a series of exhibition games at the annual convention of the Basketball Coaches' Association of America at Atlanta, Ga., week after next.

DOC NOT WORRIED

The eminent Braddock surgeon reviewed the record of the "Little Nineteen" champs (15 wins and two losses, one of the latter avenged) and discovered when he was through that he still didn't know much about the brand of ball played by the Mid-Westerners. He said:

"These birds may be good or they may be terrible, but I figure that the less I know about 'em, the better. They can't be any tougher than the Dukes or Notre Dame or Westminster or even West Virginia, so what? If they beat us, it hardly will cause another Wall street crash. We've done pretty well for ourselves this season and can afford to drop a couple."

Old Normal and Illinois Wesleyan were the only teams able to take De Kalb in the Little Nineteen Conference (a league made up mostly of normal schools and teachers' colleges) and Old Normal was taken over in a return game. Just as a matter of record, the Panthers' opponents' record follows:

Alumni	36	De Kalb	32
De Kalb	39	Whitewater Tchrs.	26
De Kalb	32	Wheaton	23
De Kalb	24	Wheaton	21

DUKES FACE FINALE

Meanwhile, Chick Davies and his Dukes are taking things easy as they prepare for their final appearance of the intercollegiate campaign. The Dukes wind up their court affairs here at home tomorrow night, with Wash-Jeff the opposition, if it may be termed as such. The chances are the five Dukes who complete their brilliant careers here tomorrow will do so in a blaze of glory and scoring.

Pitt reports a splendid entry list for its annual interscholastic swimming meet, scheduled for Saturday. Thirteen teams are in line to date, with eight more entries expected in the mails today. For the first time in the history of the meet, West Virginia will be represented. Wheeling, Triadelphia and Warwood High schools having squads entered.

The university championships will be run off in conjunction with the scholastic meet.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—At what university did the present Turtle Creek Union High School football coach star?

2—Where did Fats Henry, the W. & J. graduate manager, play as a professional gridder after his brilliant career with the Presidents?

4—What Canadian Olympic Games captain starred at the University of Pittsburgh?

5—Who was the Chicago Cubs pitcher who just missed twirling a no-hit game against the Pirates at Forbes Field in 1927?

HAS WEAKNESS FOR WHEAT CAKES and SAUSAGE

HIS FAVORITE THOMPSON DISH

GEORGE Olson has sampled many types of cooking, but there is always one dish with which he never experiments. That's his favorite wheat cakes and sausage!

At Thompson's the cakes are so light and fluffy and tasty—the sausages so thoroughly cooked and so well seasoned and liberally served!

He likes lots of butter and syrup, too!

Why should anyone try to beat a dish like that—three big cakes, four links of finest sausage, maple blend syrup, lots of butter—for only 20c!

LOCAL HOCKEY STARS BEATEN BY HERSHEY

By CARL W. SHATTO

Twenty-four hours ago the City Hockey League All-Stars' return game with Hershey, of the Eastern League, was regarded as a major engagement, but today it is recognized as a workout to prime the locals for their appearance in the Amateur Athletic Union's national championships at Madison Square Garden, New York, on March 23, 24 and 25.

The abrupt change in the complexion of the game, carded at Hershey on Wednesday of next week, was brought about at Duquesne Garden last night when the Eastern Leaguers not only handed the Stars an 8-2 defeat, but dished it out in such a decisive manner as to make any further argument as to the merits of the two teams absolutely futile.

LOCALS MAKE FIGHT

Not that the Stars took one look at their big, accomplished opponents and gave up without a struggle; on the contrary, they fought hard at the start and were fighting their hearts out at the finish, but the local skaters, as well as the 3,500 fans who enjoyed the entertainment to the full, know that the national championships should be the next major objective, with the stop in Hershey just an unfortunate, painful interlude in the journey to the title competition.

The only difference between the first period of last night's skirmish, in which the Stars held the invaders to a 1-0 score, and a professional league stanza was that the boys didn't have one eye on the calendar and the other on the gent who autographed the checks. It abounded in quick, thrilling, offensive thrusts, fast back checking, violent body checking and excellent goal guarding, and at the first intermission the fray appeared to be anybody's game.

The second period was less than two minutes old, however, when Hershey started slamming goals home with monotonous regularity, and before John McSorley, hard-hitting and hard-fighting defense man, caged the first Pittsburgh goal, at 10:13 in the stanza, the score was 5-0 in favor of the invaders. McSorley's mesh denter was a baffling waist-high shot rifled in from just inside the blue line, and the cheering hardly had subsided when Roy Schooley, Jr., skated close in after receiving a pass from Frank Tyson and beat Goalie Ted Frazier, Olympic Games star, for Pittsburgh's second and last goal, at 10:53.

DEFENSE TIGHT

With the exception of these few minutes, the mouth of the Hershey goal was guarded very effectively by Beisler and Gilmore, a pair of six-foot 200-pounders, and Goalie Frazier, who was one of the main cogs in Atlantic City's national championship triumph of last season. The action never lagged, but the Stars' defense, which carried the major portion of the burden, had every occasion to sag, for about two of every three Hershey thrusts carried well inside the last blue line.

Lloyd Blinco, coach, captain and center of the visitors, appeared to have everything that a good hockey player should have, and to be the best man on the ice, despite the fact that Kinghorn, his substitute, engineered most of the scoring plays. Blinco is ready to move up into the pro ranks, but the locals are not ready to move into the Eastern League, as they contemplate doing next season, unless they bolster some weak links with imported talent. The lineup:

PITTSBURGH		HERSHEY
Curl	D	Frazier
McCutcheon	R. D	Beisler
McSorley	L. D	Gilmore
Scully	C	Kinghorn
R. Schooley	R. W	Thayer
Tyson	L. W	Grant

Score by periods:

Hershey	1	5	2—8
Pittsburgh	0	2	0—2

Scoring—Hershey: First period—Haidane (pass from Blinco), 3:34. Second period—Kinghorn, 1:26; Grant, 1:51; Haidane, 4:50; Dyment (pass from Kinghorn), 9:20; Thayer (pass from Knighorn), 14:54. Third period—Grant, 1:06; Grossman (pass from Blinco), 11:27.

Pittsburgh: Second period—McSorley, 10:13; R. Schooley (pass from Tyson), 13:53.

Penalties—Third period, McSorley, tripping.

Referee—Herby Drury.

likely will be found among the spectators tonight. Ambridge, coached by Moe Rubenstein, and Scott staged practice sessions in the Pitt Stadium pavilion last night. Duquesne already has played on the stadium court, defeating Dormont in a quarter-final duel, 33-19.

South High School, District VIII champion in the P. I. A. A. playoffs, tunes up for its first interdistrict game with Somerset High School, champion of District V, by engaging the Tech Freshies at the South Side Market House today. The South-Somerset game will be played in the Pitt Stadium next Tuesday.

Tomorrow evening at Charleroi High School, North Braddock Junior High and Charleroi Junior High clash for the Junior W. P. I. A. L. championship. North Braddock is Section II champion and Charleroi wears the crown in Section I. East McKeesport, Section III, and Ellsworth-Cokeburg, Section IV, were eliminated in the early playoffs.

Grade School Fives Near Final Round

Finalists in the Pittsburgh grade school basketball championship race will be determined today and tomorrow when the semi-finals are staged.

This afternoon, Morningside meets Frick at Herron Hill Junior High, while tomorrow, McNaugher, defending champion, meets Beechwood at Latimer. Today's game is for the Section II championship, and tomorrow settles the Section I championship.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Motor Square Garden—Reds Barry defeated Charley Massera, 10 rounds; Tommy Rios defeated Anson Green, 10 rounds; Al Quaill won by technical knockout over Andy Maskey, 5 rounds; General Burrows defeated Young Rudy, 6 rounds; Johnny Durso and Jackie McFarland drew (referee's decision), 6 rounds.

At Wheeling, W. Va.—Ross Fields and Frankie Wolfram drew, 10 rounds; Paul Toobe defeated Red Brinkman, 6 rounds; Tony Rocco defeated Frankie Rose, 4 rounds; Harley Washburn defeated Joe Maurer, 4 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Benny Bass and Cleto Locatelli drew, 10 rounds; Tony Falco defeated Johnny Jadick, 10 rounds; Harry Serody defeated Charley Jacobs, 10 rounds; Lou Amber knocked out Tommy Bashara, 2 rounds.

showing and grabbed off the sentimental decision. He was jolted badly several times, but managed to escape knockdowns. He pecked away at Green's left eye until he had it almost closed, and it began to bleed in the final round. Green kept up a relentless charge after his flitting opponent, and, in strong contrast, scored heavily when he connected. Red Robinson refereed this bout.

QUAILL STOPS MASKEY

A left to the body, delivered in close, dropped Andy Maskey, of Canton, O., for a count of eight late in the fourth round of his feature preliminary with Al Quaill, Brookline middleweight, and when he complained of feeling ill in his corner, Referee Grayber halted the bout as the whistle sounded for the next round. It was Quaill's fight all of the way.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, substituted on several hours' notice against General Burrows, rangy Aliquippa Negro welterweight, and gave him a tough six-round fight, but lost the decision. He took the place of Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale, who was four pounds overweight and 14 pounds heavier than Burrows at 164 pounds.

Jackie McFarland, of Canton, bested Johnny Durso, of Oakland, in the opening six-rounder, a fast battle, but the judges disagreed and the referee's vote was for a draw.

FREDDIE MILLER IN RING

A medium-sized crowd saw the bouts. Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, N. B. A. featherweight champion, was introduced with the announcement that he will meet Mose Butch at the Garden next Monday night.

Dr. George McBeth and Stanley Phillips served as judges and Harry Camins broke in as a timer, working with Tommy Grant.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

The Clarksburg (W. Va.) show Friday night shapes up as follows: Buddy McArthur vs. K. O. Christner, 10 rounds; Lloyd Clemmons vs. Carl Gross and Jimmy Columbo vs. Paul Oper, 6 rounds each, and Battling Hot Shot vs. opponent to be named, 4 rounds.

Despite warnings from the State Athletic Commission against suspending boxers who compete in unsanctioned tournaments while the feud between the A. A. U. and the commission is on, a group of amateurs today were declared suspended by John T. Taylor, Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. secretary-treasurer and boxing committee chairman, and notice given that all other boxers who compete in unsanctioned shows will be similarly dealt with.

Dundee Escapes Knockout, Wins

Joe Kaminski, Nanticoke puncher, staked everything on a first-round bid for a knockout against Vince Dundee and then took a beating in their 10-round bout at Holyoke, Mass. He staggered the middleweight champion with his opening rush, the latter's generalship saving him.

Rose Fields, of Weirton, W. Va., was held to a draw by Frankie Wolfram, of Canada, in 10 rounds at Wheeling.

Cleto Locatelli, Italian lightweight champion, held Benny Bass to a draw in 10 rounds before a packed house in the Arena in Philadelphia.

Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, permitted Gorden Fortenberry, of Florida, to pile up an early lead and then bested him in a non-title bout at Orlando, Fla.

Joe Glick, New York veteran, received only $36.19 as 12½ per cent of the smallest gate in Cleveland's boxing history for his six-round defeat by Joey Speigal, of Uniontown.

FAVORITES COP CITY SQUASH BATTLES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

First-round competition in the annual city class B squash racquets title tournament continues on the courts of the Keystone Athletic Club late this afternoon with four tussles listed. Topping the program is contest involving Bill Bickel, rangy home club star, with Dave Gilmore, Allegheny Country Club southpaw. Rumor is extant that Gilmore may be forced by business engagements to default, but if the pair can get together one of the hottest frays of the conclave lies in the offing.

Meanwhile McCook Reed, Keystone ace and odds-on favorite to retain the crowd that he annexed a couple of years ago, meets his clubmate, Larry Semans, former Uniontown tennis luminary and more lately a linksman of note. Joe Oliver, Pittsburgh Golf Club, and Jack Evans, P. A. A. should present another keen contest, though this affair, too, is overshadowed by a possible withdrawal, there being question as to whether Evans will be able to be on hand for the tilting.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

The dope prevailed in the quartet of matches reeled off yesterday as the competition got under way, but nary one of the headliners contrived to get through without loss of at least a game. Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, second seeded aspirant, carried the Winged Head to 15-12, 18-14, 14-18, 15-12 triumph over Chip Kennedy, clever Keystone veteran.

Henry Blaxter, K. A. C. product and third on the select roster, caught a real tartar in Theos Manos, handball premier and winner Sunday of the City Class B squash bauble. Blaxter's greater experience at the racquet game and tight consistency in the pinches accounted for 15-9, 10-15, 18-16, 18-14 victory. Jim Ebbert, Golf Club husky, started impressively against Frank McClintock, of the P. A. A., but wilted in the face of the nearly perfect defense of the Red and Gray driver, 6-15, 15-11, 16-13, 15-7.

Ed Seifert, talented Keystoner via Princeton, eliminated the writer, P. A. A. representative, 15-10, 15-11, 12-15, 12-15, 15-12.

KERN SCORES WIN

Bill Kern, assistant football coach at Pitt, scored a first round victory in the city junior handball tournament, which got underway on the Y. M. H. A. courts yesterday. The Panther grid tutor defeated George Levenson, Y. M. H. A. star, 21-19, 21-18.

Doubles hostilities will be held up till Thursday and entries may be filed up to 5 o'clock that afternoon. The following teams are already aligned: Parker Smith and Frank Koubek, K. A. C.; R. H. Wallace and Wilson, Downtown Y. M. C. A.; Bill Kern and Ed Roche, P. A. A.; E. B. Ashcraft and S. L. Burgwin, Westinghouse Club; Harry Walfish and Eddie Kimball, Joe and Morris Berman, Dr. Phil Lapidus and Dr. Sam Alpern, Jake Shulgold and George Levenson and Dave Olbum and Sam Gladstone, Y. M. H. A. Yesterday's summary:

Dr. Sam Alpern, Y. M. H. A., defeated R. H. Wallace, Downtown Y., 21-18, 21-8.

J. F. Smith, Keystone Club, defeated Eddie Roche, P. A. A., 21-4, 21-11.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

3:30—Carl Debbertine, Downtown Y., vs. H. F. Smith, Keystone Club.

5:00—Bob Clark, Keystone Club, vs. Sam Wolf, Y. M. H. A.; Dr. Sam Alpern, Y. M. H. A., vs. Lou Gendieberg, Y. M. H. A.; M. C. Hyrcha, Downtown Y., vs. William McGowan, Jr., Keystone Club.

GOLF TEACHING DEBATE DUE

By TOM BIRKS

When the tri-state golf professionals, now domiciled in all sections of Florida, arrive back in town around the first week in April ready for duty at their various clubs, their first task will be to obey the mandate of the National P. G. A. to get together a formulate plan whereby a standardization of golf instruction will be effected.

Yesterday all of the members of the national and local professional golfers' associations received a letter from the president of the organization asking that meetings be called to talk over the possibilities of teaching golf in a standard manner.

However, among the professionals themselves, there is a decided opinion that class method of instruction will not click. No two professionals teach alike and few pros will agree that certain methods are the best.

The first deadlock arose over the question of the grip. Practically all of the professionals use either the interlock or overlap. They must practice or teach what they preach. So if a standard set of rules are adopted, someone must change, and there is little or no chance of that happening.

The back swing has been a bone of contention for years. Many professionals teach a three-quarter swing; other pros teach taking the club back just as far as possible without the shaft hitting the shoulder.

The stance and the pivot also are taught differently, and bringing the club back too fast or not fast enough and a thousand other items will give the pros plenty to argue over when they meet.

FORRESTERS PLAY

The Forresters will meet the McCann South Siders, of the Allegheny County League, at Forresters Hall tonight. The St. Mary's Girls will meet the Leslie Park Girls in the preliminary game.

Dry Ice Plant Planned For Neville Island

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

WORK WILL BE started on the construction of a plant to make dry ice on Neville Island by the middle of next month. The plant will be the first of its kind in this district and will have an initial capacity of 20,000 pounds a day with provisions made for eventual expansion to 60,000 pounds a day.

The plant will be built by the Neville Gas Products Company and will be close to the by-product coke and blast furnace facilities of the Davison Coke and Iron Company. Davison Coke has a stock interest in the new company and its operations will be closely allied with the new organization since dry ice production will require the use of Davison products and a product of the dry ice production will be used by Davison Coke.

The exact cost of the new plant has not been stated except that the work will involve "several hundred thousand dollars." There will be no public offering of securities.

Dry Ice Is Solid Carbon Dioxide

DRY ICE IS solid carbon dioxide. Within the past five years it has come into general use for the packing and preservation of ice cream and for other refrigeration purposes. When vaporized it is the same gas which is used to provide the bubbles in soda water and other carbonated beverages. The new company plans to develop its use in soda fountains which now use tanks of compressed liquid carbonic acid gas, another name for carbon dioxide. According to plans, soda fountains in the future will buy chunks of dry ice in place of cumbersome tanks of gas.

At present about 5,000,000 pounds of dry ice are sold each year in Pittsburgh and its full commercial possibilities have not yet been tapped. Most of Pittsburgh's dry ice at present is trucked in from plants in Michigan.

Three Production Fecilities Needed

THE ECONOMICAL production of dry ice requires three facilities at low cost. These are limestone, fuel and power. All these are available as by-products of the Davison Coke and Iron Company, which makes by-product coke, cement and operates a blast furnace for pig iron production.

The Davison plant uses limestone to provide a blast furnace slag and for cement production. In making dry ice, limestone is placed in a retort and is heated to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. This limestone can later be used in either a blast furnace or a cement kiln. The heat can be obtained from surplus gas from by-product coke ovens.

The process produces carbon dioxide gas which must be compressed to form dry ice. Cheap power is needed to do this. Gas from the by-product ovens operates a power plant which will provide the needed power to operate compressors. Hence the alliance with Davison Coke and Iron provides all the requisites for dry ice and gives Davison a new source of revenue.

STEEL OUTPUT RATE DIPS

NEW YORK, March 13.—Steel operations for the week beginning today are indicated at 46.2 per cent of capacity, as against 47.7 per cent a week ago, a drop of 1½ points during the week, or 3.1 per cent, according to the Iron and Steel Institute. A month ago the rate was 39.9 per cent.

The decline is the first dip since the week of January 22, when the average was indicated at 32½ per cent. From that level there were weekly increases until the 47.7 per cent rate last week which was the high record since weekly figures were started by the institute on October 23, last.

No great significance is attached to the small decline, it being pointed out that a shut-down of one of the larger units for repairs or any other reason could affect the operations to that extent any time.

Demand has continued satisfactory, with indications there will be more activity in heavier products, notably structurals, in the near future because of a good increase in inquiries which has been noted recently.

Bowery Bank Cuts Deposit Interest

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP.)—Another sign of the current tendency toward the cheapening of credit appeared today with the announcement of the Bowery Savings Bank—largest mutual savings institution in the country—of a reduction in the interest paid on all deposits of more than $1,000 to 2½ per cent from 3.

The cost of credit has been almost steadily declining since the firse of the year, until banks are hard pressed to find profitable employment for funds in the choicest and most liquid forms of investment.

Make This at Home

The All-Occasion Frock for Your Spring Wardrobe

Pattern 1794

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

There's nothing like a truly wearable frock for daytime. This one has a bit of dash in its contrast trim, and is chic in every detail. Equally correct for campus, spectator sports, office and gad-about-town; equally smart fashioned of a rough crepe or a sporty wool-like cotton, and accented by large nobby buttons. Its lines are clean cut—there's not an intricate one to make you wrinkle your brow—and if you have your doubts, one glance at the Illustrated Sewing Instructor given with the pattern will show you that a frock was never before so easy to cut out and put together.

Pattern 1794 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3⅞ yards of 39-inch fabric and one-half yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING, 1934 EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK features all the best spring styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic this spring. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

CRITICS TOLD TO CONSULT PRESIDENT

By B. C. FORBES

ADVICE FROM a man very close to the administration:

"You can render a useful service through your column

by urging your business and financial friends to change their tactics at Washington.

"President Roosevelt declares that, instead of constructive, positive, progressive suggestions, about all he gets from business and financial men is criticism, opposition, obstruction to every new proposal made by him or by Congress.

"Whenever Wall street proclaims that something planned by the administration will 'wreck the country' or that 'it simply can't be done,' the effect upon the President is the very opposite of that intended. Frank Roosevelt is a fighter—stubborn, if you want to call him so, when he's sure he is right.

"He is very tired of the reactionary attitude of most capitalists. He is convinced their do-nothing policy would not get the country going ahead, certainly not within reasonable, safe time. He would like their help, their co-operation and also their constructive counsel.

"Advise business men to drop their shortsighted policy. Advise them, instead of merely condemning of or resorting to lobbying, to seek access to Mr. Roosevelt direct. He will be glad to see them if they have any practical suggestions to submit. They will find him open to reason.

"He has repeatedly admitted that he views certain of his plans as experimental. He will welcome a frank exchange of opinions and facts—always, of course, provided something positive is outlined, something beyond warnings to do nothing."

THAT SOUNDS sensible.

MORE THAN one businessman has complained that it is hardly worth while trying to offer suggestions to certain bureaucrats, or even to members of the "brain trust."

Their minds are closed. They are cocksure of their own infallibility. They have become obsessed by some particular notion, some particular objective, and are too narrow-visioned to brook opposition.

But, President Roosevelt has voiced his open-mindedness. He has never built a Chinese wall around the White House. He has listened to many men of many kinds and minds.

His associates and friends point out that, in the administration of the NRA, for example, he has approved the picking of outstanding men of affairs for responsible positions, regardless of their political affiliations. Also, that among his intimate financial advisers have been several Wall street banks.

NOW COMES the inner-circle man I have quoted, recommending that industrialists and other large employers and other men of experience invite opportunity to see the President, talk heart-to-heart with him, and, above all, offer something besides negation and calamity-howling.

SUCH face-to-face contacts, where both sides could talk freely and confidentially without fear of publicity or misunderstanding, could conceivably generate really helpful enlightenment—even, perhaps, what Latin-Americans call "sympatico."

I lived in South Africa in the days of Cecil Rhodes, by some measurements the most colossal figure, the greatest empire-builder of modern history—the only private citizen to found, to create, to carve out a big new country and have it given his name, Rhodesia.

Whenever his Kimberley diamond mines or any other company was negotiating to take over another negotiation to take ating any other gigantic deal—Rhodes negotiated a few such—he would rise from his directors' table, announce, "I'm representing the so-and-so company," and start firing objections to the planned deal as he strode up and down the room.

If his co-directors couldn't answer his objections satisfactorily, if they couldn't adduce facts and figures to prove it would be a good deal for the other side, Cecil Rhodes would not go ahead, wouldn't attempt to put it over until it was so modified as to be absolutely fair to all parties.

THAT PRINCIPLE, that practice worked effectively in the case of Cecil Rhodes.

It is most sincerely recommended to Washington and to men of affairs at this critical juncture in America's history.

BANKS EXPAND U. S. HOLDINGS

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—The federal reserve board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 91 leading cities today gave the following summary of the principal assets and liabilities with changes for the week and the same week last year (in millions of dollars):

	Mch. 7.	Feb. 28.	Mch. 8 1933.
Loans, total	8,168	†17	†142

STOCK MARKET STEADY AND NARROW

NEW YORK, March 13. — A steady but rather stagnant stock market today offered little encouragement to speculative enthusiasts.

As in the previous session, both buyers and sellers of equities were extremely timid in the early hours and prices generally held to a fractional range. A few stocks, including the utilities, pushed up moderately, but the turnover was small. Although yesterday's advances were fairly well held, there was no disposition shown to follow through on the rally.

Grains and silver were a trifle easier at times, but cotton was steady and rubber again firm. Bonds maintained their upward slant, a number of loans recording new 1933-34 highs. International dollar rates were without notable change.

Shares of Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and North American were up around a point each. American Tobacco B advanced a point and the rails were a bit firmer. The metals were virtually unchanged. United States Steel and American Telephone eased along with General Motors and Chrysler. The alcohols, rubbers and aircrafts did little.

The motors were a trifle hesitant in the face of labor hearings starting tomorrow which involve workers in a number of the more important plants. Automobile production last week increased some 2,135 over the previous period and the output for March was estimated at around 340,000 units provided the strike situations are adjusted.

Brokerage houses said that, while the pressure or list security and commodities had subsided to a large extent, there appeared to be no immediate urge to do anything extensive on the buying side pending actual stimulating developments at Washington.

Unlike other times, when a concerted bonus movement in Congress would have caused the markets to shiver apprehensively, the sweeping approval of the lower chamber of the Patman bill for the disbursement of $2,400,000,000 in cash to former soldiers apparently did not stir either stocks or staples to any appreciable extent. The reason advanced by financial commentators was that, if the bill is not killed in the Senate, it will be vetoed by the President.

While trading circles seemed to be less worried over the stock exchange control bill, apprehension was still evident in some quarters as to the final form in which the measure will reach Congress. Word that the redraft of the bill had been further delayed and probably would not be concluded until late tomorrow did not tend to reassure the doubters.

Some market analysts continue to hold that a drastic expansion of the currency is still more than a possibility, notwithstanding the fact that bonds, around their highest levels in two years or more, seem to indicate little fear of this and foreign exchanges have displayed no recent disturbing fluctuations. The silver activities in Congress were seen as straws in the wind and the authority of the President to further reduce the gold value of the dollar was not being overlooked.

France Establishes Import Quota Body

PARIS, March 13.—(AP.)—The foreign trade negotiating powers of Premier Gaston Doumergue were further strengthened today by the creation of a special import quota committee within the cabinet.

This body, composed of members of the various ministries, has full authority to create, abolish or modify quotas, which gives the government freedom to use quotas for tariff bargaining.

Stocks of Butter Show Big Decrease

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Butter stocks in storage in the United States on March 1 amounted to 36,842,000 pounds, compared with 75,995,000 pounds the preceding month and a five-year average for March 1 of 23,187,000 pounds, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports.

Detroit Exchange Building Auctioned

DETROIT, March 13.—The Detroit Stock Exchange Building has been sold at public auction to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for $129,521. The insurance company, which had foreclosed a $123,000 mortgage on the property, was the sole bidder.

Corporate Earnings

International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., and subsidiaries in 1933 earned 53 cents a share on 11,584,025 shares of common, against net loss of $135,344 in 1932.

Arnold Constable Company net profit in 1933 amounted to $154,051 after charges, equal to 45 cents a share, compared with net loss of $209,237 in the previous year.

Transamerica Corporation, holding companies and all controlled subsidiaries for 1933 report consolidated net profit equal to 48 cents per share on 23,681,926 no par shares, against 34 cents a share on 23,368,186 shares in 1932.

Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., reports 1933 net profit of $643,569, equal after preferred dividends to $1.27 a common share, against $511,705 or $2.99 a share on a slightly larger amount of stock in 1932.

HIGH PAY WILL GAIN BACKING OF EMPLOYERS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 13.—For the business situation as a whole, nothing succeeds like success.

Mr. Rukeyser

Sound re-employment of labor is a cumulative process, and the further it goes the more the domestic market for merchandise and capital goods is widened.

After business has struck its gait, there will be no serious opposition from enlightened employers to the doctrine of high wages. Such opposition as there is now to artificial boosts under the NRA springs mainly from a questioning of whether it is wise to put the cart before the horse. In past early stages of recovery, the process of rehabilitation was frequently quickened by the opportunity to snatch an operating profit out of the lag between profits and wages.

As the country ascends to a standard of more widespread leisure and improved working conditions, the cost of this improved sociology will have to come from heightened efficiency and economy in operations. This fact is of pivotal importance, and will have to be sympathetically grasped by trades unions as well as employers.

Modern, farseeing employers see no conflict between better conditions for labor and business profits. They have given up the old idea that labor was a commodity, which should be bought as cheaply as possible. These employers recognize that even in the peak years, 1927-1929 94 per cent of the national income came from the home market, which is of course dependent on the level of wages and salaries.

As one modern employer remarked, "I as an executive collect commissions on other people's labor." The higher the wages the bigger returns to business in serving the consumer market.

Adequate profits, which rest primarily on efficiency and elimination of waste, are not inconsistent with high wages and reasonable working hours. But in order to achieve such magic, executives need labor co-operation, and freedom from arbitrary and uneconomic restrictions.

R. F. C. Repayments Up Since Year-End

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(INS.)—Repayment of loans to the RFC in the January 1-March 10 period totaled $196,000,000, Chairman Jesse H. Jones announced yesterday.

This was a substantial increase over last year. The largest single repayment was $12,000,000 by a mortgage company.

The corporation has authorized the purchase of $1,029,000,000 in preferred stock in 6,261 banks. A total of $497,000,000 has actually been dispersed in 2,075 banks. Liquidation loans to closed banks amounted to $686,000,000.

Daily Oil Output Up 132,377 Barrels

TULSA, March 13.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended March 10 totaled 2,385,172 barrels, an increase of 132,377 barrels daily over the week preceding, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

ELECTRIC RATE CUTS SAVE U. S. $100,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP.)—Partial credit for saving the American public more than $100,000,000 in electric rate reductions in the last four years was claimed today by the Federal Trade Commission as a result of its five-year inquiry into public utilities.

Based on a survey of statistics in an electrical trade journal, the commission disclosed that electric companies cut rates at least $118,747,654 from 1930 through 1933, $66,454,240 of this reduction being accounted for by companies under examination by the commission. The commission said:

"The inquiry was begun in 1928 under authority of a Senate resolution passed in February of that year. During 1930, after the inquiry had gotten well under way, there were rate reductions resulting in estimated consumer savings amounting to a little more than $7,000,000, while during 1933, rate reductions noted involved consumer savings in excess of $31,000,000."

In 1930 there were 13 reductions, amounting to $7,090,710 in savings for that year, or $28,362,840 for the four years from 1930 to 1933. There were nine other known rate cuts but amounts involved were not available.

In 1931, reductions numbered 32, resulting in savings of $20,876,400 for three years. Amounts involved in 21 other rate reductions were not known.

In 1932 a total of 26 reductions brought savings of $38,205,414 for two years. Figures for 12 other cuts were not given.

Reductions in 1933 jumped to 68, with savings of $31,303,000. There were 16 other reductions for which amounts were not available.

"Further evidence that the cost of electric light and power energy to the American consumers is being steadily reduced, is to be found in figures recently carried by business journals showing that while sales of electric energy during 1933 increased 3.1 per cent over 1932, the dollar cost to the consumer decreased by 3.2 per cent under 1932.

"These business journal figures show that during 1933, current in the amount of 65,753,608,000 kilowatt hours was sold as compared with 63,764,024,000 in 1932, whereas the revenues from the sale of electric energy was $1,773,415,600 in 1933 as compared with $1,832,595,900 in 1932."

SALESMEN HOLD CONFERENCE

A regional conference of salesmen of the Pittsburgh district was held today in the offices of Lever Brothers, Grant building, as a highspot of the tenth anniversary of the marketing of Lux soap.

Speakers were Hallowell, Willard Mossman, also of the executive offices at Cambridge, and L. H. D. McLeod, Pittsburgh division sales manager. The conference is one of a series to be held throughout the country.

A national merchandising contest for salesmen, with $5,000 in prizes, was announced at the luncheon, to open March 19.

Reserve Member Banks' U. S. Holdings Show Gain of 1,851 Million Over Year Ago

Changes in the position of reserve member banks compared with a year ago are interesting at this time. The outstanding shifts, it is shown, in the weekly condition statement, are largely related to increased activity of the various federal agencies. Holdings of United States government securities are now $1,851,000,000 in excess of the total at this time in 1933, while investments in miscellaneous securities are $12,000,000 smaller. Deposits are greater by $2,239,000,000 with government deposits aggregating $1,462,000,000.

Member bank borrowings from central banks are now only $10,000,000, or $1,056,000,000 smaller than at this time in 1933 when the nation-wide run on banks was forcing them heavily into debt at the regional banks. Member bank loans on securities are $264,000,000 lower than a year ago, indicating that considerable liquidation of collateral behind institutional loans has been in progress.

Montgomery Ward & Co. will probably show a net income after charges and taxes for the year ended January 31, 1934, of close to $2,000,000. This will be the first net income reported by the company since 1934, when a profit of $423,211 was shown. For the 13 months ended January 31, 1933, the company had a net loss of $5,686,784, including loss of $857,676 on sale of securities. As of October 31, 1933, capital stock consisted of 201,554 shares of $7 class "A" stock and 4,467,240 shares of common.

Wall street believes that there is quite a likelihood of foreign bankers, particularly the English bankers, financing some of our industries if our bankers are overcareful as a result of legislation. English bankers have been gossiped as negotiating with American industry already in the matter of financing and, as one commentator said, the world has a large quantity of "nervous" money on hand with a large part of it in England at the moment.

Preliminary figures indicate that the Pennsylvania Railroad, for January, will show net income, after taxes and charges, in excess of $1,000,000, which would compare with a deficit for January, 1933, of $40,615. Carloadings indicate another good month in February.

Drastic reductions in rates for electricity and natural gas ordered by some municipalities have aggravated the decline in the net earnings of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, said Philip G. Gossler, president, in the corporation's 1933 annual report. The downward trend in earnings during the year, he said, was caused by increased taxes and operating expenses, which "more than offset the improvement in revenues resulting from the slight increase in business which has been evidenced in the past few months." As shown in the corporation's preliminary statement 1933 net income amounted to $12,496,759, equivalent after preferred dividends to 51 cents a share on the common stock, against $17,204,675 in 1932, or 96 cents a share.

Memory Test

1—In 1916, Tom Rodgers, pinch-hitting for Fred Toney, of the Cincinnati Reds, put both pitchers out of a 16-inning scoreless game in his only time at bat, in the twelfth inning. He automatically put out Toney when he went to bat in his place, and his line drive split the pitching hand of Dick Rudolph, of the Boston Braves, who had to leave the game.

2—Ken Ash was the Cincinnati pitcher who delivered one ball and was credited with a victory. He relieved Rube Benton with men on the bases in the sixth inning and the score was 4-2 in Chicago's favor, and Letty Grimm hit into a triple play on his first pitch. The Reds then scored six runs in their half of the sixth inning, in which a pinch hitter batted for Ash, and Ash was credited with the victory.

4—Charley Grimm, George Whitted, Rabbit Maranville and Cotton Tierney made up the famous singing quartet of the Pirates in 1921.

5—Rags Madeira was the Allegheny High School athlete who gained fame as a heavyweight boxer at Penn State College.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CAPTER XVI.

It was quiet with Jon away and Pippin gone all week. Old Jonathan wandered from room to room, drawing audible sighs and pulling out his watch. So long until 4 o'clock when the young lads came from school. He made tunnels for Bruce's electric train and built a fine house for Dadee's puppies. He put shelves here and drawers there. When all the odd jobs were done he followed Chickie to the nursery, painting cribs and making cabinets.

"And we don't seem to like it, do we, Jonny, darling?"

"I wish that girl didn't have to go to college. Seems to me she knows an awful lot right now."

One afternoon Chickie came home to find the radios whanging in every room, each on a different station. When she gave a startled look and went to turn them off, Jonathan grinned sheepishly. They both missed the gay young bedlam—sorely.

Over the week-ends the house burst into life. Pippin came singing upstairs and rushing down. How many letters did I get? Is my blue dress pressed? Why, mother—you're not going out, are you? You have all week for luncheons! I certainly expect Saturdays saved for me!

Never mind that she had dates last week and the week before—she had none today!

Letters for Pippin

So Chickie stood by while Pippin rushed to teas or dressed for dancing . . . all the while pouring out a glib, joyous narrative. College was wonderful—why, mother, did you know that long ago in Mexico the Mayans had a civilization equal to ours? And wasn't it grand of David to give me the little coupe! I don't know how Kathie and I could ever get along without it. We appreciate you—really we do! Some day I want an airplane. I'm just mad to fly. You won't stop me, will you?

There were always letters; sometimes two a week from Bill. Now and then one from Kevin.

Pippin grabbed them and ran to her room. If they were from Bill she reappeared in a light, capricious mood. All her gaiety heightened, she went out with one or another of the college boys, who were now her constant attendants.

Once Chickie teased: "You go quite joyously from one to another, don't you?"

"Didn't you tell me that was the proper caper and I'm far too young to be monogamous? Oh, why do they make men so wonderful! I wish I had a hundred hearts and could love them all."

Chickie caught the girl to her in a sobbing laugh. Her own youth returned with the tang of spring, the song of a bird in the tree. She remembered every fervor. Pippin's eagerness enfolded her like a shower of light. Often she had to brush away tears.

"Why do your eyes so often shine, mother, as though you're going to cry?"

"I'm so glad about you, Pippin. Glad all the happy things—the sweet, joyous things—are yours. I've wanted them for you. I remember so much. I've prayed."

Appreciates Machine

"You frighten me. Oh, mother, often you frighten me. Don't love me like that. I mightn't be worth it."

When the letters were from Kevin, a misty, far-away look came to Pippin's eyes. She refused dates and went with her father to his laboratory.

"I've decided to go in for science, mother, and David is a wonderful teacher. I want to be a great technician. Then I'll be valuable to him in his research work."

David knew it was Kevin she longed to serve. He didn't care. He loved to have her come chumming along; loved the hard, punishing zeal with which she struck at a task.

And they had grand, intimate talks that he reported to Chickie and that made her heart sing all the week long.

Once, for instance, Pippin said:

"You're a swell guy, Dad."

He folded his arms and grinned:

"I know, but why?"

"You gave me the coupe and you didn't append any lectures, though you surely know a machine can be a great aid to a gal in losing her reputation."

David felt pale, but he said breezily:

Pippin perked her head in that quick bird-like way. She winked:

"Took it right between the eyes and didn't wince! You old sport, you! But you should hear Edward. He wonders if you realize what a menace it might be, Kathie and I shouldn't be surprised if he'd pay you a little visit and wise you up about flaming youth and advise you to take the car and temptation away from us."

"Does he lecture you very much?"

"Oh, baby — does he! You'd think we invented original sin.

"He's taken the joy out of life plenty for us. But we like him and listen to what he says, though we pretend not to."

"Is youth so very flaming, Pippin?"

"Well—it's pretty hot in spots. But after all, Dad, there can't be more emotion in human beings now than before, can there? I don't know how it was in your time, but girls today—some of them—are just determined to find out for themselves and they do a lot of contemptuous talking about older people.

"They really feel proud about being frank and sort of scarlet. Some of them are just a big bluff. I know they haven't as much real blaze as I have and I don't have to go around making bonfires on every hillside.

"Of course there are some real hot numbers. They do as they please, and they please to do plenty. But they don't talk. They LIVE! I like them . . . I think they're really brave."

"But blind, Pippin. Aren't they a little blind?"

"Why is it blind, Dad? They're being true to themselves: they're living completely in the moment and not postponing to a day that may never come. And they usually are wildly in love for the time, anyway. . . . The world is blind to count emotion like that wrong."

"They do buck it, Dad. I KNOW girls who are getting away with it—plenty of them."

"But every once in a while some fearful tragedy happens, Pippin. And there's no counting that desolation . . . '

Father Nervous

"David!"

He didn't turn. He went on stacking books.

"Darling," she murmured with a soft laugh and rubbing her cheek against his sleeve. "Not afraid I'm going to try it? Not what I want. I want the big, thundering, supreme emotion—the tidal wave that sweeps you to a mountain top. I'm going to WAIT!"

"Let's go," said he, squeezing an arm about her.

'But Dad—you've always said I could be free—could make my own way. Would it be very terrible to you if I took you up on it? Suppose I wanted a fling or two? Jon will."

He looked down at her with eyes dark and burning in a face suddenly thin. He put his hand on her arm.

She said quickly, wounded by his look:

"I didn't mean it, Dad. Don't worry about me. I'm not for it—really I'm not!"

"Your life is your own. I've no right to stop you. But heavens, girl, how could I stand by and watch your heart break . . . I wonder how I could—"

In spring toward the end of that first joyous college year, Bill returned. He was weather-burned and glistening; even his blond hair a little parched. He came running up the steps, happy and impatient, his first day in port.

They went for a walk. As soon as the trees hid them, he swung Pippin about:

"You're prettier than ever! I didn't lose you down there, did I? You care? Just a little? Darling, you must!"

Goes to Party

Pippin felt glad. She felt like laughing. There was something tonic about him, something young and happy and sweet.

They went dancing together. They went to shows. She came home in the middle of the week, telling him:

"It's darling of you. It's sweet. I'm going to try awfully hard to be worth it."

One Friday night they were going to a Bohemian affair in the old art school. They were excited.

"It's going to be wild, mother, the maddest party I've ever been to. It's going to last all night. All the colorful people in San Francisco will be there. You and David should come. There will be lots of older people."

As they were leaving, Bill clasped Chickie's hand. He said, excitedly:

"Isn't she beautiful?"

Chickie followed them to the door ready to cry because they were so happy and all the world smiling on them.

Before midnight she heard steps in the hallway, then the door of Pippin's room opened and closed again softly.

The girl didn't answer. Then Chickie stooped down and kissed Pippin's cheek. It was wet, and in the moonlight she saw tears on the girl's lids.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past.

BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG (JULY 1-3, 1863)—TURNING POINT OF THE CIVIL WAR

Gen. Hooker, in command of the Potomac army, started his offensive end of April 1863, stopped by Gen. Lee at Chancellorsville, Va. On May 2 Hooker's right, commanded by Gen. Howard, was surprised and rolled up by Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, who was mortally wounded. Union Gen. Sedgwick, left by Hooker in command of three corps near Fredericksburg, was defeated by Gen. Lee May 4.

The Federalists now had their darkest hours. Their troops deserted en mass, the public debts increased daily by millions, drafting was resisted by rioting people, who lost hope of Union victory.

The South, in contrast, was at the peak of its success. Gen. Lee prepared a decisive thrust against the North by advancing toward Harrisburg, capital of Penna. His 73,000 troops were met at Gettysburg by Gen. Meade's (successor to Gen. Hooker in command of Potomac army) about 82,000 men on July 1, 1863. The battle raged three days; 50,000 men were killed or wounded. The Confederates lost the battle, and with it the tide turned in favor of the Unionists. (U. S. History)

FOUNDATION AND FOOTING

Foundation is the part of the building, below the surface on which the superstructure rests. Bottom of foundation, the footing, is enlarged to distribute weight of building not to exceed bearing value of ground. This is for soft clay 1, firm clay or sand 2, hard clay or gravel 4, rock 15-72 tons per square foot. Above: Views of footings.

BRICK, IMPORTANT BUILDING MATERIAL

Made from clay, molded to shape, dried and burned to a hard, artificial stone, brick was known to ancient Egypt, Babylon and Assyria. Above: Most common types and the position they are generally laid in walls. (General Science)

RIP VAN WINKLE'S RETURN AFTER 20 YEARS OF SLEEP

Rip Van Winkle, a story of Washington Irving, the distinguished American author (1783-1859), was included in "The Sketch Book" (1820), written under the name of Diedrick Knickerbocker.

Rip Van Winkle took refuge from a termagant wife in the "Kaatskill Mountains," where he falls asleep and awakens after 20 years. He finds his wife dead, his house in ruins and the world completely changed. Finally recognized, he is taken in by his daughter.

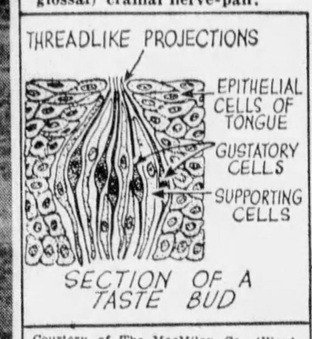
THE SENSE OF TASTE

This sense is restricted in higher vertebrates and man to the cavity of the mouth, particularly to the tongue, having special receptors, taste buds, papillae. There are three kinds of papillae. 1, Fungiform; appear as red points chiefly near edge of tongue, contain endings of the seventh (facial) and fifth (trigeminal) cranial nerves. 2, Filiform; numerous, widely distributed except on back of tongue. 3, Circumvallate; at root of tongue, contain taste buds, which are endings of the ninth (glossopharingeal) cranial nerves. The motor nerve of the tongue is the twelfth (hypoglossal) cranial nerve-pair.



Courtesy of The MacMillan Co. (Woodruff: Foundations of Biology)

TASTE BUDS

The taste buds contain sensory (gustatory) cells connected with the endings of cranial nerves, terminating externally in hair-like processes, able to receive chemical stimuli of taste. There are four kinds of gustatory cells, each responsive to a certain kind of stimulus (sweet, sour, bitter, salty) Some papillae contain all, some three, two or one only. Accordingly, papillae on tip of tongue are most sensitive to sweet, on base to bitter, on edges to sour tastes. The central area of tongue is insensible to taste. (Gen. Science)

STORMING OF BASTILLE, PARIS (July 14, 1789)

Antagonized by the British aggressive colonial expansion at their costs, France and Spain helped the American colonies in the war of Independence; the former with money and troops, Spain by declaring war on Britain in 1778.

King Louis XVI and Queen Marie Antoinette, aiding the "American rebels", unknowingly directed their own subjects toward liberation attempts, which finally cost their crowns and heads.

Louis XVI, in financial distress, was forced to call the Estate General in 1789, a legislative body of feudal order, of which the first and second estates (nobles, clergy) were enabled to outvote the third (commons). These, forming a National Assembly, requested recognition. Granted first, then revoked by the King, the infuriated people stormed the Bastille (fortress and prison). The first French Revolution started (July 14 1789).

HALOGENS (SALT PRODUCERS)

Flourine (F), a pale yellowish gas at room temperature, chlorine (Cl), a greenish yellow gas, bromine (Br), a red liquid and iodine (I), purplish red crystals, combine directly with metals, giving binary salts (halides). Above: Atomic structure of halogens. The electronic valence of halogens is 1—meaning they tend to borrow one electron to complete the 7 satellites (valence electrons) in the outermost shell of their atoms to 8. This is shown in the Lewis system: Symbols of elements surrounded with dots, representing the valence electrons. (Chemistry) (30—III—

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

I CERTAINLY ADMIRE THE SENSIBLE HINTS THAT WOMAN NEXT DOOR GAVE HER HUSBAND EVERY TIME HE GOT WOUND UP ON THAT INDUCTION BUSINESS.
LISTEN JO, THAT WORD IS DEDUCTION.
AND WHAT A BRAIN HE HAS ON THAT STUFF! 2 AND 2 IS ALWAYS 4 HE SAID, UNLESS IT'S 22.
FROM WHAT SHE SAID, I KNOW HE'S A SORT OF BUG ON THAT SUBJECT.
A BUG? LISTEN JO, HE HAS A CAMERA EYE. HIS MIND IS JUST ONE BIG FAMILY ALBUM OF FACES HE'S SEEN.
I HEARD HIM STUFFING YOU ABOUT THAT. I JUST KNEW YOU'D BELIEVE IT, TOO.
DID YOU HEAR WHAT HE SAID ABOUT FINGER PRINTS?
TO HIM THEY'RE AS SIMPLE AS FOLLOWING A ONE-LEGGED MAN THROUGH SNOW. TELL ME! HE DIDN'T GET THAT WAY JUST BY FALLING OUT OF A HIGH-CHAIR TOO OFTEN.

The Tops of Exclusiveness

All of the songs on there date back many years. There hasn't been any new melody to crash the line-up since the World War in 1917.

Look 'em over. Mother Was a Lady, Captain Jinks, Baggage Coach Ahead, Blue Bell, Break the News to Mother, Take Back Your Gold, Rosie O'Grady, Sidewalks of New York, Susannah, Moth and Flame, Kentucky Home, Hot Time in the Old Town.

They've been bawling and yodeling those tunes for 50 years and more. A few upstarts have muscled in since then. But they were war songs. Beautiful Kitty, Long, Long Trail, Indiana Home, Pack Up Your Troubles, Over There.

No chance of any others getting on the preferred schedule until we have another war. Strange thing is that the songs the soldiers sing all live. A couple of the oldtimers go back to the Civil War. Love Me Little, Love Me Long, is one of them. Captain Jinks of the Hoss Marines may be motorized now. But he dates way back further than that.

One reason the list is hard to make is that the songs must be sentimental and easy to sing. After three beers at a beefsteak dinner the boys let their hair down and start to weep.

Then they want to sing at each other. All you need is a big banjo, a piano that sounds like a hollow log and a wild desire to succeed. The boys may not be good. But they are powerful.

A stag singer piping away at a heart-breaking melody is the only musician who can make himself cry. The big, salty tears roll down his face and gather in the wrinkles of his neck.

How he tears the everlasting hinges off Comrades! How he batters Bicycle for Two into a sideswiped wreck! The City of Sighs and Tears is his dish. He doesn't want anything modern to bellow. And he considers a megaphone as unfair competition and machine labor.

Petition Offers Opportunity to Protest Against League of Nations Propaganda

As disclosed recently in the Hearst newspapers, an intensive propaganda has been undertaken by internationalist groups, financed by unlimited millions of dollars, to entice America into the League of Nations and the discredited League Court.

Along with this insidious propaganda goes an incessant campaign to cancel the war debts and to forbid the development of an army and navy equal to any emergency that may threaten our national security.

An administration that had attempted to lead us into the League of Nations saw its party swept from office by an overwhelming vote of the people.

At a later period, the United States Senate emphatically rejected League Court membership as dangerous and detrimental to American independence, and this action has been unquestionably sustained by patriotic public opinion.

By circulating petitions throughout the country, they are endeavoring to influence Congress.

This subtle propaganda must not succeed—and it will not succeed if the American people demonstrate their opposition.

But the people must have some means of expressing themselves.

Consequently, the Hearst newspapers are sponsoring the nation-wide circulation of a monster petition, whereby every loyal American may protest against any entanglement of America in war-breeding foreign politics.

A copy of the petition is being presented from time to time in the Sun-Telegraph.

If YOU want America kept free from foreign dangers, sign YOUR name and obtain the signatures of other loyal citizens, and return the petition to the League Court Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for presentation to Congress.

Grave Charges

The charges made by a self-confessed woman of the underworld, in a formal typewritten statement in the possession of the Bureau of Police, that certain Pittsburgh policemen have been in partnership with the owners of disorderly houses, deserves the attention of District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

While judgment must, of course, be suspended until further evidence has been obtained, it will not do to dismiss the charges as unworthy of consideration because of the character of the person who has brought them.

The fact that higher officials of the Police Bureau have had the accusations placed in writing and are keeping them on file indicates that they have regarded them as entitled to serious thought.

The accuser declares that men to whom Pittsburgh has looked for protection from crime were themselves criminals and professional associates of criminals. She gives names and dates and circumstances which should make it fairly easy to find witnesses who can testify to the truth or falsity of the charges.

The accused policemen should be exculpated or brought to trial, as the evidence warrants, without unnecessary delay.

Our Neglected History

Col. E. J. Pershing's Death Recalls an Interesting Incident of the Revolution.

Lieut. Col. Edgar Jamison Pershing, a member of an old Western Pennsylvania family and a cousin of Gen. John J. Pershing, died in Atlantic City Saturday night. In an obituary sketch in yesterday's New York Times we find the following:

"In 1925 Col. Pershing completed a protracted research into the history of a force of Westmoreland County (Pa.) Rangers, who were captured by the Indians while on an expedition in the Revolution, lost many of their number, and of whom no news reached their friends for more than a year. One of the enlisted men was a John Pershing, great-great-grand-uncle of Gen. Pershing."

Here is an interesting incident in the early history of Western Pennsylvania with which, we dare say, few native Pennsylvanians are familiar. Owing to the neglect of Pennsylvania history in Pennsylvania schools, Pittsburgh school children learn next to nothing of the part that Western Pennsylvanians played in the Revolutionary War.

More power to Dr. Hale Sipe, the Butler historian, and other educators who are trying to secure adequate treatment in the schools and history textbooks for the great men and great events of our district!

A Boy Scout's Good Turn

Jay Linn, a Mt. Lebanon Scout, has just given an impressive demonstration of the value of Scout training.

A woman living near his home found her husband had been overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in their garage. Responding to her calls for aid, Jay applied artificial respiration to the stricken man, at the same time directing the wife to call the Fire Department and tell the firemen of her husband's critical condition.

The firemen, responding with an inhalator, reinforced Jay's efforts and restored the victim to consciousness. They said the boy saved his life.

How many persons would have known what to do in the circumstances? Not as many as should know, we are sure.

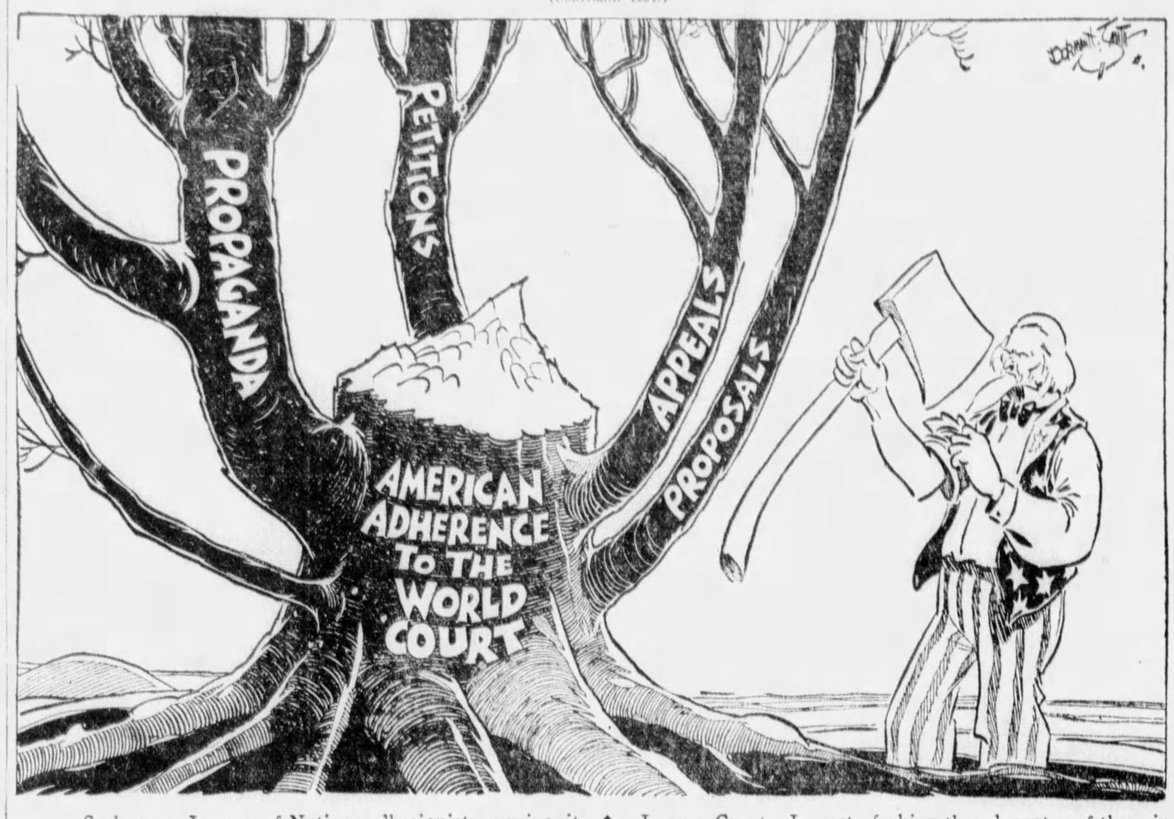
Permanently Employed?

(Copyright, 1934.)



So long as League of Nations adhesionists survive, it seems, Uncle Sam will never be among the unemployed.

As rapidly as he prunes away one growth of propaganda another springs from the same source.

But it is not so with the League of Nations and the League Court. In pesty fashion the advocates of these international failures return incessantly to their outgrown obsession of getting America into dangerous foreign entanglements.

What is needed now—in view of the present provoking revival of League Court propaganda—is a public protest against this kind of un-Americanism that will convince even a fustian-minded internationalist.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 13.—In the style of old-time vaudeville billing Deems Taylor would be threesheeted as "King of Versatility." Few figures in the New York scene have done so many things so capably. Also he is a member of that select local curiosia—the born New Yorker.

On the sunny side of 50, he is what S. Jay Kauffman would call a highlowbrow. He can wisecrack, jig, and with a row of hats do a one-man vaudeville skit, yet withal is one of the most erudite of music critics. A critic who has written musical comedy tunes, an orchestra suite and the opera "Peter Ibbetson."

Among his pals are Paul Whiteman, George Gershwin and Jerome Kern. He has been assistant editor of technical publications, a foreign correspondent, editor of a half dozen musical journals, a translator of French, German and Italian songs, after-dinner wit and a feature on the radio.

Although super-educated, he gets a wallop out of the street organ and mouth harmonicas of the East Side sidewalks. With all his many-splendored talents his most precious memory is of a Stamford carpenter offering him $17 a day to be his assistant. For he is an expert cabinet maker.

Another young man hiding his light under a bushel is Howard Lindsay, who dramatized and directed this year's comedy success, "She Loves Me Not." While this play achieved box office records, he himself presented a clearcut cameo of the suburban husband nibbling at philandering, in another play. It was one of those effortless delineations in support of the capable Dorothy Gish. And helped to check those dubious head-wags over the fate of the legitimate theater, although its run was brief.

It was interesting to spy on a thoroughly Americanized Chinese at the magazine stand of Grand Central, making his reading selections for a journey. After much careful inspection he picked up a Cosmopolitan, wavered between an American Mercury and Literary Digest, taking the latter. Then moving toward the train gates hesitated, turned back and sheepishly snatched a detective thriller. Even as you and I!

Nothing satisfies on a train trip like a chance Oppenheim. I never set off without one. The Oppenheim formula is as stereotyped as Pullman green plush—the Monte Carlo cafe in spring, the mysterious beauty in black roped in white pearls, the strange message delivered by a waiter and Inspector Frayne of Scotland Yard on vacation peeping over the top of his London Times from a near table.

Those who knew Henry L. Doherty during his isolated period in an apartment along Bridge street's tenement area are pleased over his sudden flowering into sundry social activities. In other days he gathered about him only a few choice friends, played his huge pipe organ in solitary melancholy or worked in his laboratory. Save for an after midnight subway ride he was a recluse. Then came his marriage, a long illness and with restoration to health he became a generous host in France, Miami and New York. Yet still working hard.

At the weekly lunch of the American Club in Paris once I saw the fiery little Corsican, M. Chiappe, deposed prefect of police and stormy petrel of the French flare-up. He was a Mexican jumping bean of energy, foppishly dressed and incessantly smoked cigarets smelling like buggy whip ends. Gilbert White, watching his continuous flibberty gibbering, observed: "He ought to find out where he itches."

New York's high wires being all underground gives metropolitan streets to a stranger an appearance of baldness that I think is the most vivid impression when stepping out of a big terminal. Without poles city children miss, too, one of life's biggest thrills. That is a "free shock" from a lineman!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

The Bridge

Toward evening I went down to Brooklyn Bridge.

Pretty muggy going. Fog coming in—blurring everything. I prowled around the streets for a while. One of the most interesting sights in America—that tangle of narrow, crooked streets on the New York end of the bridge.

Something terribly human about them, particularly on a foggy night—like the blind trails you follow through the years—blundering your way along—never seeing clearly where you're going—winding up so often at a dead wall, or in the gutter!

Presently I came out of the tangle, to the Bridge itself. Just the beginning of the Bridge—all the rest was lost in the fog—

No matter, how often I see them, I can never get over the beauty of those great spans, rising so suddenly out of all the muck and confusion—rising up so grandly and surely—taking off, into a clearer, higher air—rising up as life rises, out of tangled beginnings and taking off into—where?

Standing there, in the fog, with the darkness blotting out that flying arch, I asked myself that question. I was sad. Bitter, perhaps, I had been thinking of my dead boy and of the beauty and pity of that lovely life which had ended at twenty-one. So much had gone into that life. So much of my own love and effort, and such priceless contribution from all generations that had gone before.

Ever since the beginning of time life had been working toward that boy—forming him out of all the tangled beginnings until at last his life rose in a flying span . . . only to be cut off so quickly by the dark. WAS THAT THE END?

* * *

Standing there in the night I asked that question and I knew that all over the world others were asking that too. And suddenly, the Bridge itself seemed to give me the answer.

I could not see the other end of the Bridge. It was lost in the fog as my boy's spirit had been lost in that fog, which my love could not pierce. But I knew the Bridge had another end. I knew that it led to solid land, great highways, busy cities and, beyond them the sweet, green meadows and the sea.

I could not see the bridge go on but I knew that it did go on for I knew that men do not build great bridges to end in nothingness. One end of that bridge was proof to me of the other—even though the darkness lay between.

* * *

I had seen the beginning of life—the beautiful, complicated, infinitely precious beginning of life. And I had seen it vanish in the black, cold fog of death. But did it really vanish? Was that all there was?

'NEEDLE THREADERS'

By Winifred Black

He just threads needles, that's all.

No, not for money—not at all. Just for clean, good, manly sport—that's all.

They're taking prizes for threading needles, they're having needle threading tournaments. One young man in the northwest put seventy-five threads through the eye of one needle—there now, beat that if you can!

And there's a close second in San Francisco, working like mad threading and threading, and you have to have a clear eye and a steady hand to be a needle threader, let me tell you.

I wonder what the prize will be, an embroidered pansy to be worn like the cross of the Legion of Honor, or what?

Thread a needle and be a patriot!

Well, there's nothing so specially new about the needle threaders, after all, is there? The world has always been full of them.

I know a grown man who collects hats for an amusement and he's a fine fellow, too, but now I know what he is by nature.

He's a needle threader, a doer of small, finicky, unimportant things, and he has the time of his life doing it.

I know a woman who is always listening to hear someone mispronounce a word or put the accent on the wrong syllable, or use an infinitive in the wrong place.

He may speak with the tongue of men and angels, he may throw out to the world an idea that it is almost blinding—that is naught and less than naught to my friend the needle threader.

That's what she is. I've always been trying to think what ailed her, and now I know, it's needle threading.

She doesn't care a snap whether she is doing what is right or what is kind or what is courageous or even what is courteous.

She wants to do what is "correct".

I never could manage to make her out. Now I know what it's all about. It's very simple after all when you come to think of it.

She's a needle threader, a perfectly harmless, well-meaning, peculiar person who loves to see how many threads she can put into one particular needle's eye.

Navy Gets 'Clean Bill' In Airplane Purchases

By James T. Williams, Jr.

"TRUTH IS great and shall prevail."

Thanks to the initiative, impartiality and independence of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, of which Congressman Vinson, of Georgia, is the chairman, a sub-committee appointed by him, under the leadership of Congressman Delaney, of New York, has found and reported to the House the truth about the procurement by the Navy Department of aircraft for the fleet.

This sub-committee made a thorough investigation of the administration of the Navy Department under the secretaryship of Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, and his successor, the present Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Swanson, and his able and non-political assistant, H. L. Roosevelt.

The objects of this inquiry were:

Second: To ascertain if any profiteering has taken place.

Third—To ascertain whether there has been any collusion between manufacturers with respect to government contracts.

* * *

Finds Profits Have Been Moderate

CHAIRMAN DELANEY and his sub-committee pressed their inquiry in other directions in a firm resolve to determine whether the interest of the government is wholly protected under the existing law, upon which aircraft procurement procedure followed by the Navy Department in the purchase of airplanes in based.

This sub-committee finds:

That "the overall profit on the cost of manufacture of aircraft and engines for the Navy, covering the period from 1926 to 1933, has been only 11.5 per cent prior to deducting state and federal income taxes, as determined by Navy auditors."

That the average profits of the two principal contractors on Navy engine business were in line with national and international prices for comparable engines even at their peak, and in recent years have been substantially reduced.

That all companies contracting with the Navy Department for engines, except one, have actually lost money on experimental contracts.

That no evidence whatever has been found of collusion between contractors or between contractors and naval officials. On the contrary, it appears that there has been keen competition in a limited market and costs have been kept below original estimates and "below appropriations actually made for the purpose."

* * *

Navy Policy Declared Prudent

NOW WE come to one of the most important and significant findings of this bi-partisan sub-committee of the House committee on naval affairs:

"That the policy pursued by the Navy Department since the enactment of the aircraft procurement act of 1926 is a practicable and prudent one, and should be followed until a better plan is proposed."

The reasons given for this finding are, in the words of the report:

"Since negotiated contracts are necessary until the aeronautical art becomes more stabilized, and since under existing statutes procurement is being administered by the Navy Department in an efficient and satisfactory manner, no changes are recommended in the aircraft procurement act of 1926."

A federal grand jury is now investigating, among other things, the circumstances under which the same aircraft procurement procedure, which both the War and Navy departments have followed since the enactment of the aircraft procurement act of 1926, was reversed by a political appointee in the War Department, in spite of the fact that this procedure was authorized by law and is still being followed in the Navy Department, where President Roosevelt's distant cousin of the same name is so efficiently discharging the duties of Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

The findings of the House Committee on Naval Affairs come at a most opportune time for sincere seekers after truth. They relieve the public from the necessity of waiting until the House Committee on Military Affairs has completed its investigation, which its chairman says he intends to keep going until next December. That will tide chairman and members of that committee over their primary campaigns for renomination and re-election.

Human Side of the News

Charles Ponzi, the Get-Rich-Quick Operator, Is Again in the News, As He Awaits Deportation

By Edwin C. Hill

CHARLES PONZI, prize get-rich-quick operator of the century, is selling prunes and potatoes, grubbing in groceries, where he once soared in securities. How long he will be able to continue as Grocer Ponzi depends upon the decision of the federal government, as to whether or not he shall be deported as an undesirable alien and an ex-convict.

It's a curious fact that at least three of these celebrated get-rich-quick swindlers turned to selling groceries after they got out of jail. It was true of the notorious "Five-hundred-and-twenty per cent Miller" and Elmer S. Huckins, of Wisconsin fame. There must be something spiritually akin between groceries and godliness.

This reporter was privileged by the fates to have a look-in on Plunger Ponzi when he was going at full speed, and this was the way it came about. The city editor spoke:

So to Boston I went and found my quarry in an office at 27 School street.

Dressed Like A Tailor's Dream

HE WAS a slim man of 38 and didn't weigh more than 120 pounds. He was dressed like a tailor's dream, and down below his big Rolls-Royce waited at the curb. His pockets were crammed with money. The office in which he sat was over-running with money. Office waste-baskets—several of them, were crammed with green and yellow bills. There was even money on the floor. It looked like some kind of fantastic dream—the kind that down and outers have, when they go to sleep on park benches. No wonder the place was stuffed with money. For the young man with the shrewd black eyes, bland manner and persuasive voice, who sat at the desk, was taking in a million dollars a day at that particular time, which was in July, 1920. By the next October he could boast that he was forty million to the good.

Men, women and even school children—rich man, poor man, beggerman, thief—were throwing their money at him, begging him to take it. They believed him when he said he would pay it all back in 45 days and with 50 per cent interest. He had done so. Puzzled financiers, knowing that something must be wrong, investigated, but gave up. The affable, keen-eyed Ponzi was too much for them. Police inspectors assigned to the case promptly handed over their own savings.

Authorities Long Were Baffled

FOR MONTHS the authorities could do nothing with him. He seemed to have discovered the secret of unlimited wealth, a perpetual motion picture of finance. He was keeping his pledge to repay all investments with 50 per cent interest, and every person he repaid brought him at least five new investors. It was at this precise time that I called on him in his office at School street and Pie alley. I asked him how he did it. "I will tell you everything but the real secret," smiled Charles Ponzi. And he explained.

By chance he had received from Madrid, in Spain, a letter requesting him to forward a magazine to the Spanish capital. As payment for postage, the Spaniard had enclosed an international reply coupon good for five cents in American money. But the Spaniard in his own country had paid less than a cent for it.

The coupon was merely a courtesy and convenience arrangement between the two countries, and its value was not affected by the fluctuations of foreign exchange. I pointed out to Charles Ponzi that the supply of these coupons was extremely limited—that only eight dollars worth had been received in this country in the previous week, and that it seemed incredible that he could have secured enough of them, in a steady supply, to produce such enormous profits, running to millions of dollars. His reply was:

"Ah, that is the secret. How I arrange to buy and sell them I will not tell."

But the Boston Post cracked down on him and showed him up as a common swindler, in the old-get-rich-quick game, with improvements, and presently he was on his way to prison for four years. He ran away from a Federal charge but was caught in New Orleans and again clapped behind the bars.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Puppy

He is only a puppy; but who would guess
That a small heart could hold so much friendliness?
At morn or at dusk, or the whole day through,
Whenever you come he will welcome you;
His tail will wag, he will leap and prance
About your feet in a clumsy dance.

He is only a puppy, but ah! he knows
The faces of friends and the footsteps of foes;
He is quick to pardon and slow to wrath,
So his feet are set on the upward path.
He is jolly and gay when your heart is light,

He is only a pup; but his heart is true
And his world is charted and bounded by you;
If you give him a feast or you give him a bone,
He is yours forever and yours alone.
Few blessings can earth to perfection bring,

ISN'T IT SO?

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You may be urging your aged parents to give up their home and come to live with you.

So far they have resisted your requests.

This fact surprises you, for you feel that it would be possible for you to provide them many more comforts than it is possible for them to enjoy in their own home.

But you have not taken into consideration the most important things in the lives of elderly persons—their friends and scenes which have become dear because of association.

The old home may not be pretentious but it provides the things most dear to the old folks; for each piece of furniture brings back memories they do not want to forget.

Of course you and yours would be kind to them, furnish greater physical comfort perhaps, but there would be the great big something missing.

If you feel that you wish them to be more comfortable, and feel they must have more care, why not have these things incorporated in their old home?
